PRO-ROOSEVELT SENATORS OPEN DRIVE ON COURT

Change Their Stands to Back President.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Two masters of the art of casuistry, two mental acrobats who can leap from principle to principle with the greatest of ease and agility, never stumbling over the "foolish consistency" which troubles "small minds," regaled the senate this afternoon with a defense of their own conduct in defending President Roosevelt's scheme to pack the Supreme court.

It was the opening of the administration's big drive to convert dubious senators to Mr. Roosevelt's program and it was led by Senator Henry Fountain Ashurst of Arizona and Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, both, until recently, ardent advocates of a constitutional amendment to give the President the power he wants.

Robinson Quotes Editorial.

Today Senator Robinson read excerpts from a newspaper column dealing with the "futility" of amending the constitution and concluded: "That illustrates some of the inconsistencies in the position and the arguments of those who say that this proposition [the President's plan] is in some mysterious way a subversion of the fundamental rights of the people."

Senator Robinson, on Jan. 9, had declared for a constitutional amendment as the only possible way to secure federal power for social and economic legislation, but he was not at all embarrassed today. Nor was Senator Ashurst, the chairman of the judiciary committee, embarrassed when Senator Josiah W. Bailey [Dem., N. C.] quoted this statement he made on the floor of the senate shortly after President Roosevelt's famous "horse and buggy" press conference following the Supreme court's invalidation of the NRA:

"And among the unjust criticisms which have been uttered, or printed rather, about President Roosevelt, was that he intended . . . to increase by some legerdemain . . . the membership of the Supreme court, so that his policies might be sustained. A more ridiculous, absurd and unjust criticism of a President was never made."

Admits He Has Faults.

Senator Ashurst said there could be no doubt that he, as a statesman, had his faults; that he suffered from "cacoethes loquendi, a mania and itch for talking," as his middle name, Fountain, implied; that he suffered from "vanity, morbidity, and an inborn, inveterate flare for histrionics"; but that inconsistency was not one of his faults.

"I did not charge the senator with being inconsistent," said Senator Bailey. "I think he is entirely consistent. You can be consistently inconsistent."

While Mr. Ashurst was professing to "marvel in the present circumstances at the moderation of the President" in asking a mere increase of six in the membership of the Supreme court, Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], regarded as one of the most influential "liberal" leaders in the senate, was preparing a radio address in which, tonight, he shouted "dictatorship" and inveighed against Mr. Roosevelt's scheme with all the vehemence of a Carter Glass or the most "reactionary" Republican.

Wheeler Denounces Cummings.

Like Senator Glass already had done, Senator Wheeler denounced Attorney General Homer S. Cummings for his "evasiveness" and his "appeals to prejudice" in defending the President's plan.

"On last Sunday night the attorney general, speaking with the pride of authorship, presented to the country the administration's arguments for the proposal," Wheeler said.

"He told us that in the nine short days since the President sent his recommendations to congress 'unfriendly voices have filled the air with lamentations.' He goes on—'they have vexed our ears with insensate clamor.' So they vexed the attorney general! What a pity to vex him!

"What an attitude, my countrymen, that is, to the exercise of the constitutional right of petition by Amer-

NAZIS LAUNCH DRIVE TO 'RULE OR KILL' CHURCH

Demand Protestants Submit to Hitler.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—"The Protestant church must become the state church or it will have ceased to exist in five years, if not earlier," Hans Kerrl, Nazi minister for church affairs, told officials in his office when instructing them today to prepare for the church control election ordered by Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

The Fuehrer ordered the church ministry on Feb. 15 to conduct a free election for a general synod, which is to draw up a new constitution for the Protestant church. Hitler is convinced that when it comes to a showdown a vast majority of the Protestants in Germany will vote for a totalitarian state and church as conceived by him. Hitherto the Nazis have encountered determined opposition to Nazi control of the church from an influential group of pastors.

Vetoes "Strong Arm" Method.

The minister for church affairs favored a strong arm policy to end the activities of the Confessional church and other Protestant groups which support Hitler as the fuehrer but refuse to allow the church to be run by his political appointees.

When Hitler ordered the election Kerrl made a last attempt to obtain permission to use police power against the church opposition. Hitler refused to give him this authorization. Heinrich Himmler, chief of the G.S.P. [secret police] and of all German police forces, also objected, pointing out that the number of persons sympathizing with the Confessional pastors and freedom of creed is so great that the police would be unable to cope with them if they were aroused.

Kerrl retreated. The German Christians declare, nevertheless, that they are certain to win because their propaganda will be given government support, enabling them to carry on a gigantic campaign to defeat the Confessional pastors and others who are fighting for freedom of creed.

Support Racial Theories.

The German Christians are a group which supports enthusiastically the Nazi racial theories and the "blood and soil" slogan and agree to the complete Nazification of the church.

Many delicate points must be settled before the church election can take place. For instance, election organizers must decide whether they will allow baptized Jews to vote. German Christians assert that the church ministry will not allow pastors with Jewish blood to be candidates. This would automatically eliminate one of the main leaders of the Confessional pastors, the Rev. Gerhard Jacobi, who is one-quarter Jewish and thoroughly hated by the Nazi churchmen.

Victor Lutze, chief of the Storm Troops, and Himmler, as chief of the Schutz Staffel [picked Hitler guards], have sent notices to their officers instructing them not to allow their men to resign from the church now.

Plan "Prayer" Broadcast.

The Storm Troops will go even further. They will have a cultural meeting in Berlin next week under the chairmanship of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, in which the broadcasts will include one program called "German prayers." It will be broadcast on the anniversary of the death of the Nazi hero, Horst Wessel, and will affirm the unity of the Nazi party and the church.

When the church ministry has completed details of the program for the election, Kerrl will summon the governors of the German states and the highest party officials and issue instructions on how the election is to be conducted.

Cop's Tongue Wags; Jailed for 6 Months

Policeman Richard Downes, a patrolman attached to the Deering station, was sentenced to six months in the county jail yesterday by Judge Philip J. Finnegan in Circuit court for speaking out of turn.

Policeman Downes.

Attorney Norman Becker, counsel for Downes' wife, Anna, 39 years old, 4016 South Maplewood avenue, appeared in court to get a contempt citation against Downes for being $175 in arrears on his alimony payments. Under a separate maintenance decree entered nearly a year ago Downes was ordered to pay his wife $25 a month.

As Judge Finnegan issued the citation returnable March 9, Downes suddenly stepped from the courtroom crowd. He was in plain clothes. A service revolver bulged in his hip pocket.

Shouts His Defiance.

"I won't pay a dime," he shouted. "I don't owe her a cent. I'll go to jail before I pay. Norman Becker can't keep dragging me into court."

"Sit down!" thundered Judge Finnegan. When Downes refused, the court ordered his clerk to draw up a commitment. Then Bailif John Dufin removed Downes' revolver and hurried him down to the sheriff's lockup to await transfer to the county jail.

Attorney Becker once interceded for Downes when Judge Finnegan threatened to jail him for contempt. Yesterday Judge Finnegan refused a similar request from the attorney.

Judge Accuses Downes.

"Since the entry of the court's decree," Judge Finnegan said in dictating Downes' commitment, "he has appeared at all hearings in a semi-intoxicated condition. He has been belligerent and disrespectful to the attorneys and the court. His manner has been so disrespectful, his shouting so loud, his threats so violent, that he impeded the business of the court."

OWEN D. YOUNG AND MRS. LOUISE CLARK WILL BE WED TODAY

St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company, is to marry Mrs. Louise Clark of New York City and St. Augustine tomorrow at 5 p. m. at the home of her mother, Mrs. Walter Van Rensselaer Powis in St. Augustine. There will be a honeymoon in Florida, probably at Boca Raton, Fla.

Mr. Young will be 63 next Oct. 27. His first wife, the former Josephine Sheldon Edmonds of Southbridge, Mass., died June 25, 1935. They had six children, five of whom are alive. Mrs. Clark was described by friends as "young and attractive" and the mother of a 4 year old son.

Little is known of Mrs. Clark in New York. A telephone for Mrs. Louise Powis Clark is listed at 447 East 57th street, but it is reported "disconnected."

Mr. Young, a native of Van Hornesville, N. Y., gained international recognition for his work on German war reparations, one plan for settlement bearing his name. He was the son of a New York farmer.

SMOKE BILLOWS IN LOOP; BLAZE ON MICHIGAN AVE.

A 5-11 alarm fire that burned stubbornly for more than three hours last night and early today wrecked the interior of the Blackstone Manufacturing company, an automobile accessories concern at 1430-34 South Michigan avenue. The fire, a spectacular one, was fanned by a brisk wind that sent dense smoke rolling northward into the loop.

Two firemen, Battalion Chief Jerry Falvey of the 25th battalion and Howard Strokacher of engine company No. 9 were injured, Falvey by a bursting hose and Strokacher by flying glass. Both were taken to St. Luke's hospital across the street. Nurses in the hospital quieted the patients and watchmen were placed on the roof to guard against fire from flying sparks.

While the fire was still burning Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan began questioning witnesses, including Edward Payne, a Pinkerton watchman who discovered the flames. Sheehan declared that several unexplained facts would be investigated. Damage was estimated at more than $75,000.

A 'Message to Garcia' Stops Rubinoff Trial

New York, Feb. 19.—[Special.]—The spicy hearing of blonde Peggy Garcia's $500,000 breach of promise suit against Dave Rubinoff was abruptly adjourned late today until Tuesday when defense counsel hurled the accusation that the naive appearing girl already was married in 1933, when she charges the radio violinist seduced her on a promise of marriage.

Peggy Garcia.

The denouement came immediately after a messenger arrived at Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo's Supreme court with a telegram for Rubinoff's attorney, Abraham Halprin.

A moment later the attorney shouted his "message to Garcia" and declared he had a telegram from her father in Roanoke, Va., to prove his contention that she was not the unwedded and unsophisticated little country girl she says she was when she met Rubinoff four years ago.

Peggy Misses the Humor.

Peggy, who frequently had sent her court audience into gales of laughter or out to the edges of their seats with sallies and confidences, saw no humor in the situation as she flatly denied the statement.

But Rubinoff, who had greeted dourly her remarks which others thought funny, opened up with the "big beautiful smile" Miss Garcia previously had described.

Peggy declared she was married for the first time about six months ago and had separated immediately from her husband after he "socked" her on learning of her romance with the fiddler.

Questioned by both Justice Cotillo and Halprin as to whether she had been married to one Taylor V. Guinn

Expect Action Today to Oust Steel Strikers

With federal and state labor conciliators working to prevent further violence, sitdown strikers last night grimly held possession of the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation plant in North Chicago and prepared to carry the strike into its fourth day. Company officials, in a midnight conference to decide on their course of action, were reported to have decided to appeal to Gov. Horner today for aid of state militia in evicting the sitdowners.

Sherif Doolittle.

The strikers, who repulsed a force of 125 policemen and special deputies armed with tear gas guns early in the day, were without heat or light other than candles which blinked and flickered in the windows of the two buildings they occupy. There was plenty of food, however, and some had blankets.

Strikers Reduced by Ten.

Their number was reduced from 100 to 90 during the day. Ten men, some shaken b the tear gas attack, others notified of illness in their families went home.

Crowds gathered around the plant during the midnight hours and heckled the deputies. There was no violence and only one minor disturbance. This occurred where a group of young men grabbed the badges from three of the special deputies who were isolated from their fellows.

The young men disappeared in the crowd when other deputies appeared and there was no further disturbance except catcalls from the spectators.

Adelman Runs to Scene.

Meyer Adelman, union organizer, heard of the matter and ran to the scene. He made a speech urging the townspeople to support the strikers in their efforts to organize the plant.

In the meantime the battle lines were drawn in preparation for renewal of the warfare. The ranks of special deputy sheriffs who had made the unsuccessful effort to oust the strikers in response to a court order were increased.

The force of deputies was increased during the day and last night the plant was besieged by more than 150 men armed with guns, baseball bats, some with policemen's clubs. They kept a strict guard, allowing no one to come inside the high fence which surrounds the plant.

Owner Insists Strikers Leave.

Robert J. Aitchison, president of the corporation, and Max Swiren, general counsel, insisted that the strikers leave the plant at once. When Sherif Lawrence A. Doolittle

JURY CONDEMNS 2 FOR MURDER OF POLICEMAN

State Flays Act That Set Killers Free.

Frank Whyte and Stanley Murawski, who were paroled from Joliet prison less than a year ago, were found guilty yesterday afternoon of the murder of a Chicago policeman, and a jury in the Criminal court fixed their punishment at death in the electric chair.

Mal Coghlan.

The jury spent only an hour deliberating its verdict, retiring after hearing the prosecutors thrust bitterly at the state parole board in their pleas for a death penalty.

"A benevolent parole board gave these mad dogs a break—sent them back to society to rule again with a gun," cried Assistant State's Attorney Harry Posner.

"We're not here to run a clinic for ex-convicts," said Prosecutor Mal Coghlan. "A sympathetic parole board turned these men loose and the price was the life of a policeman."

Guilty of Toth Murder.

Whyte and Murawski were found guilty of the murder of Policeman Michael Toth, who was shot to death last Nov. 8 in a tavern at 4830 South Wood street. Murawski was arrested a month after the slaying in Decatur, Ill., and helped police trap Whyte in a Chicago hideout.

Their confessions were read Thursday to the jury, before Judge John Prystalski, when the state also introduced into evidence the two men's criminal records. As the state closed its case Whyte and Murawski offered to plead guilty if they could escape the electric chair. The state refused the offer.

Trial of the two killers, lasting less than four court days, came to an abrupt conclusion yesterday with Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach making a brief speech for the defense.

By agreement with the state he read an excerpt from the testimony of one of the state's witnesses, given at the coroner's inquest, in an attempt to show that Policeman Toth started the fatal shooting.

Defends Mercy Plea.

In his argument to the jury Bachrach contended that Whyte and Murawski had a right to defend themselves if the police were aggressors in the fight. He declared the defendants were entitled to go before a jury and ask for mercy, even if guilty, and asked the jurors to consider long terms in prison, rather than death, as their verdict.

The jury found the two parolees guilty on the first ballot. On the next ballot, to fix the punishment, the vote was 8 to 4 for death in the electric chair. The third ballot was 9 to 3, and the fourth was unanimous for death.

At 4 p. m. Whyte and Murawski, each with four guards, were led into the courtroom to hear the verdict. Twenty armed bailifs spread across the front of the room, and a heavy police guard was scattered through the crowd to prevent any attempt to escape.

Killers Flush at Verdict.

The verdict on Murawski, who is 38 years old, was read first. His swarthy face flushed, and he closed his eyes, but said nothing. Whyte, a heavy set man, 42 years old, reddened to the crown of his partly bald head, as he heard the verdict.

Later as they were taken to cells in the county jail, Whyte sat in sullen silence, but Murawski seemed to be in fairly good spirits. He cursed the newspaper photographers because they didn't give him a cigar.

Sitting in the front of the crowded courtroom as the verdict was read Mrs. Elsie Toth, widow of the slain policeman, dressed in deep mourning, She fought to control her tears as she said:

"I'm satisfied, very well satisfied."

Assistant Public Defender Frank Ferlich made the usual motion for a new trial. Judge Prystalski said he would hear arguments on the motion on March 1.

Policeman Toth was one of three Chicago policemen to be killed by paroled convicts in the last nine months. One of the others was Policeman Jerome McCauley, who was shot to death last May 29 in a chase after a robbery. For this crime Andrew Bogacki and Frank Korczykowski were executed, and Paul Jenkot was sentenced to 199 years in prison.

The third policeman victim of a paroled convict was Arthur Sullivan, who was shot to death on Jan. 14 by Joseph Schuster, now awaiting trial on a charge of murder.

Other Police Victims.

Other policemen slain in line of duty in the last three years were:

THOMAS MURPHY, died Feb. 1, 1934; shot by pay roll bandits who escaped.

JOHN R. OFFICER, colored, fatally shot by colored bandits; died April 13, 1934. Two of the bandits were executed and three sentenced to long prison terms.

PATRICK REDMOND, fatally shot May 8, 1934, by four bandits who escaped.

STANLEY ROBOSKY, killed July 6, 1934, by three auto thieves who escaped.

ANTON ZAPOLSKY, died July 30, 1934; shot by an auto thief who was killed by other police officers.

LOUIS FURST, killed Sept. 22, 1934, by colored robber who later was slain by other policemen.

THOMAS TORPY, killed Sept. 22, 1934, by colored bandit who later was slain by police.

LIEUT. JAMES DAY, beaten to death on Sept. 30, 1934, by colored bandit who later was sent to prison.

ALFRED STOKKE, fatally shot on Jan. 24, 1935, by three bandits who were each sentenced to 75 years in prison.

THOMAS KELMA, shot to death on May 23, 1935, by four robbers, three of whom were sentenced to long prison terms. The fourth died in jail.

WILLIAM STRINGFELLOW, slain on Oct. 3, 1935, by robber who escaped.

JOSEPH ISOLA, fatally wounded on Nov. 2, 1935 by two robbers who were never caught.

The two police killers now facing death in the electric chair both have long criminal records.

Record Back to 1919.

Murawski was sent to prison for robbery in 1919, paroled in June, 1924. He was sent back to Joliet for robbery in March, 1925, transferred to southern Illinois penitentiary on Oct. 28, 1931, and escaped on Nov. 25, 1931. He was convicted of robbery again on June 12, 1935, sent to Joliet, and paroled last June.

Whyte's record started in 1924, when he was acquitted on a charge of rape. Later he was arrested on charges of safe blowing, assault to kill and carrying a gun. He was sentenced to Joliet prison on June 6, 1930 [his third prison sentence] and was paroled last April 25.

Death Cell to Be Remodeled.

Sherif John Toman announced yesterday he plans to remodel the death chamber in the county jail so the electrician who throws the switch will be in a position to see the condemned person in the chair. The electrician now stands in a small room adjoining the death cell, and throws the switch when a signal is given by a guard.

Sherif Toman said the change will be made to avoid any possibility of an accidental electrocution of one of the guards strapping a victim into the chair.

CONVICT PAROLEE UNDER HABITUAL CRIMINAL LAW

St. Clair McInerney, 25 years old, a paroled convict, was convicted by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge John J. Lupe yesterday under the habitual criminal act, which carries a sentence of life imprisonment. He was tried for burglary.

With two companions he was surprised by police on Jan. 8 attempting to open the safe of the Swedish club, 1258 North La Salle street. Last June 22 McInerney was paroled after serving four years of four concurrent one to life terms for robbery with a gun.

His accomplices, Thomas Lanning, 29, and Edward Bell, 20, obtained separate bench trials. Judge Lupe found them guilty but deferred sentence until Tuesday.

3 IMPRISONED ON CHARGES OF GIRLS AND BOY

CRIMINAL COURT.

Steve Wolfranski, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; James Robertson, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge George Fred Rush.

Albert Brown, 41 years old, colored, former police sergeant of Robbins, and Arthur Johnson, 23 years old, of Harvey were sentenced yesterday by Judge John Prystalski of the Criminal court to seven years in prison on charges involving two young girls. Judge George Fred Rush sentenced Romiro Estrado, 23 years old, 4651 Kenmore avenue, to one to ten years in prison on the charges of a 14 year old boy.

Dies in Gas Filled Room with His $17,000 in Bank

New York, Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Four bank books showing total deposits of about $17,000 and a quantity of jewelry were found by the police in the furnished room in West 26th street, where Vincent Ely, 80 years old, was found dead of gas poisoning today. Ely, who had occupied the room only two days, was found lying fully clothed on the bed, with gas escaping from a heater. Police reported the death as accidental.

U. S. NEUTRALITY BILL COMES UP IN SENATE TODAY

What Are Munitions? Is Question.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—The administration's neutrality bill, which will determine the commercial conduct of the United States in the event of war abroad, will be reported to the senate tomorrow by the foreign relations committee. It is strewn with the same pitfalls and puzzles as to what is subject to embargo as the present neutrality legislation which expires this spring.

The bill, like the existing act, would make it mandatory upon the President to declare an embargo on shipment of "arms, ammunition, and implements of war" to belligerent nations or factions engaged in civil war.

The term "arms and ammunition" has a well settled technical meaning, but does not comprise raw materials. Neither does the term "implements of war" under use in American history. The term "munitions," which embraces every kind of weapon or supply, is not employed.

Must Pay in Cash.

The bill does go a step further than the existing act in that it provides that the purchasers of raw materials in this country would be required to pay in cash and gives the President discretionate power to halt such shipments in American vessels. This provision of the bill is a compromise agreed upon by isolationists and internationalists.

Those most seriously concerned over American neutrality in the next war feel that wider discretion should have been invested in the President to permit him to include raw materials in the embargo. At present and under the bill which will replace the existing act May 1 he can only determine what constitutes implements of war and could not halt the shipment of raw material if he wished to do so.

Faced with Six Categories.

The articles listed as arms, ammunition, and implements of war under the existing act, and which are to be redefined on the adoption of the replacing legislation, fall into six categories.

The first consists of all rifles and machine guns, their barrels and mountings and their ammunition in excess of caliber .22. This includes shells, grenades, torpedoes, and mines, filled and unfilled, and tanks, military armored vehicles and armored trains. Category IV. relates to revolvers and revolver ammunition.

Category II. includes vessels of war of all kinds, including aircraft carriers and submarines.

Category III. lists military aircraft, assembled and unassembled, and aerial gun mounts, bomb racks and torpedo carriers. Category V. lists commercial aircraft; propellers, fuselages, hulls, wings, tails, and undercarriage units, and aircraft engines, assembled or unassembled.

Category VI. lists gas and flame projectiles and the various poisonous gases.

Steel Not Embargoed.

At the state department inquiry revealed that there is no way in which this country could halt the shipment of pig iron, steel or even steel curved and punched to enable assembly abroad. Steel, according to the present act and the replacing bill, cannot be considered an implement of war until it is in a weapon, shell, warship or plane.

The present American neutrality policy is so designed as to contrive an unfair advantage to nations which might become aggressors in time of war, according to its critics. Industrial countries could purchase raw materials and in some cases parts and components of war materials, manufacture or assembled them within their borders, for use against countries with poorly established industrial systems for which such munitions would be virtually useless.

The present act had its test in war conditions during Italy's expedition into Ethiopia. The embargo was proclaimed against both countries, but Ethiopia had no facilities to transport or even make purchases here as did Italy.

At one time the act seemed more likely to get this country into war than keep it out of armed struggles. Then by persuasion and threats the administration attempted to halt the sale of war materials to Italy. In November, 1935.

Mussolini bristled in protest. The administration backed down.

Urges Control of German Pantries to Conserve Food

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—Regular control of pantries in Germany's 70,000,000 households to cut down waste of "sacred bread" and other foods was demanded by Peasant Leader Koerner of Saxony, in addressing a farmers' meeting in Dresden today. He suggested that members of the Nazi women's organization, "Frauenschaft," regularly visit pantries of their districts "to advise women how to store food to eliminate waste." Koerner also appealed to architects to see to it that in the future all houses are fitted with pantries.

26 NATIONS SHUT SPAIN OFF FROM WORLD TONIGHT

Warships, Guards to Keep Out Volunteers, Arms.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The organization which the international committee on nonintervention in Spain is setting up to prevent the movement of foreign volunteers into that war-torn country will require a personnel of between 1,700 and 2,000 men and will cost about $3,000,000 a year.

The committee's ban against the movement of volunteers and munitions into Spain will be put into effect tomorrow midnight. Twenty-six nations will participate in the agreement, which is to be enforced by a ring of warships and border guards around the country.

Creates Many New Jobs.

Inspectors and agents wh will carry out the surveillance of frontiers in Spain, France, Portugal, and Gibraltar, and others who will be placed on ships going to Spanish ports, will be paid salaries of between $1,500 and $2,000 a year. The director and higher officials of the control organization will be paid $10,000 to $12,000 annually.

This expense will be borne by the various countries represented on the committee on the same basis of wealth and population as is employed in fixing annual contributions for supporting the league of nations.

Only one nation—Portugal—is still showing opposition to the plan. Portugal is holding out against having agents of the committee on its soil to check up on gun running, but was stated today to have consented to a compromise under which Great Britain will exercise control along Portuguese frontiers and in Portuguese ports.

Britain Gives Guarantees.

Britain gave guarantees that it would assure control being kept in Portugal. Sixty agents will be sent to Portugal to keep watch, and 180 will be placed along the French frontier.

Neither Russian nor Portuguese warships will participate in the naval patrol which will control Spanish waters.

Details of the exact sea zones to be patrolled by British, French, German, and Italian warships remained to be worked out. Members of the neutrality subcommittee, composed of those four nations and Russia and Portugal, agreed at a meeting tonight to submit tentative plans to their governments.

The patrolling warships will not have power to halt and search suspected violators of the neutrality agreement, but will report activities of suspicious vessels. Participating governments under the agreement then would take diplomatic action if they found basis for the suspicions.

Ships bound for Spanish ports would be required to put in at "control ports" to take on a neutral observer to check cargoes and accompany the vessels to Spain. Ports tentatively agreed on as control points were: Cherbourg, Brest, Verdon, and Marseilles, France; Madeira; Gibraltar; Cagliari, Sardinia, and "The Downs," an anchorage off the east cost of England.

55,000 Italians Fight in Spain.

According to trustworthy estimates, Italian soldiers fighting in the rebel ranks in Spain had increased in number to 55,000 up to the time the rebels captured Malaga, important southern Spanish seaport, last week. German forces, according to this source, are much smaller. During the last few weeks, it was said, few Germans have gone to Spain.

Reports reaching here today said the Italians and Spanish rebel soldiers are having acute differences.

One explanation given here for the presence of such large numbers of Italian fighters in Spain, in addition to the fact that Premier Mussolini of Italy wants to see the Fascists win, is that the Italian government is glad to get rid of 55,000 returned soldiers [of the Ethiopian campaign], whose pay is in arrears and who would have to be fed if allowed to remain in Italy.

MODELS INAUGURAL GOWNS

Talks of Her Day

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Record crowds thronged the campus of Cornell university today, attracted by the presence of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Bailey hall was jammed at noon by 2,500 as the President's wife modeled her inaugural gowns at a fashion show.

Later she spoke informally of "A Day at the White House," asserting that "being the President's wife is hard work." It was her ninth successive visit to the annual Farm and Home week of the State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics, held this year for the thirtieth time.

Mrs. Roosevelt told her hearers that "any man who is President pays a price for being your public servant. He has very little time of his own. When a farmers' day is over, it's over," she said, adding that the President's state problems occupied him at night, too.

Official handshaking, a trial to many Washington figures, holds no terrors for Mrs. Roosevelt. She does not take off her rings, she said, explaining that "some people almost kill you."

POPE PIUS USES CRUTCHES SO HE CAN SAVE LEGS

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. today supported his ailing legs with crutches as he gingerly tested his ability to walk.

Attendants assisted the pontiff in walking about the papal apartments on the new crutches which he hopes will extend his radius of activity.

They were provided after Pius insisted on walking, Vatican sources said, to prevent him from imposing too great a strain on his feeble legs.

The holy father had a good night's sleep and was said to have expressed great pleasure that he was able once again to sit and work at his desk.

MADRID BATTLES 'BIGGEST REBEL PUSH' OF THE WAR

BY HENRY BUCKLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Feb. 19.—Government forces defending Spain's capital from a fierce rebel trust, described as the biggest offensive yet made by the Fascists in the Madrid zone, tonight still held their lines intact, although at one point the insurgents have forced their way forward so as to create a "bulge" or spearhead in the loyalist defenses.

The battle, which observers believe eventually will settle the fate of Madrid, is being fought in the Jarama river valley southeast of the capital. The rebel offensive is intended to break through the loyalist lines, cut the highway to Valencia over which Madrid receives its supplies, and take the capital from the rear while insurgents engage a good part of the defense forces on other sides of the city.

Reporter Describes Battle.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent this morning sat in an artillery observation post watching loyalist artillery shelling a white chateau perched on the edge of a plateau above the Jarama river. This white chateau, where formerly the owner of extensive olive groves lived, is situated at the spearpoint of the rebels, which brought them across the river at San Martin, from where they pushed a few miles up to the Arganda-Chinchon road.

The white house was just a mile from us. Behind us was loyal artillery. An artillery officer in the observation post would order: "Fire," into the field telephone. Then the batteries behind us roared. The shells whined overhead and a cloud of smoke and dust went up from the château.

Just in front of the château were the rebel lines, spattering fire with machine guns. On either side the loyalists held positions near the Jarama river, both at Titulcia and the Arganda bridge.

Moors Lead Offensive.

"This will be the biggest offensive yet made in the Madrid zone," an officer told me. "The rebels are using mainly Moors and Spanish troops and have sent wave after wave of men against our positions. Their losses have been tremendous. I estimate the losses at about 40 per cent of their strength. This is the tenth day of the struggle, and they already are having to bring up heavy reinforcements."

Returning to Madrid through Morata de la Tajuna and Perales de Tajuna I passed a heavy, motley trafic. Horse and motor vehicles move up toward the capital on an elaborate system of one way roads. Trucks were going to Madrid piled high with food and returning with refugees. Overhead passed an occasional loyalist plane on patrol, in order to prevent bombing of the food convoys by insurgent planes.

The government announced today that 52 persons had been killed and 162 wounded in the three rebel air raids on Madrid Wednesday night.

ROMANCE BROKEN

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Ellen McAdoo de Onate, daughter of United States Senator William Gibbs McAdoo and granddaughter of the late President Wilson, today filed suit for divorce from Rafel Lopez de Onate, charging nonsupport.

She asked custody of their son, Richard, 1½ years old.

They were married in November, 1934, after a lengthy controversy over De Onate's right to wed under the laws of California. They finally were married in Albuquerque, N. M., when the bride was 19 years old.

De Onate was born in the Philippine Islands, but claims his parents were Basques and that he was not barred from the marriage under California statutes.

REVEAL U. S. GUNS ARE BEING USED IN SPANISH WAR

PARIS, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Emplacement of American anti-aircraft guns on the Bay of Biscay front by Basque supporters of the Spanish government was described today in semi-official Basque dispatches from Bilbao.

Four such batteries have been placed against the San Sebastian territory now held by Fascist rebels, the reports said, and more are to be installed. The reports said nothing of how the guns escaped American neutrality regulations.

French military sources at St. Jean de Luz tended to disprove reports that the Spanish rebels, working under German engineers, had mounted artillery pointed across the unfortified French Pyrenees frontier.

BRITAIN'S NAVAL BUDGET LARGEST IN ITS HISTORY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The British naval budget for the coming year, with its program of building three new battleships and seven new cruisers, as disclosed in the government white paper, will run well over 100,000,000 pounds sterling [about $500,000,000] and will be the largest in the history of the nation.

The big naval defense act of 1889 also provided for an expenditure of 100,000,000 pounds, but spread over several years, while the 1937 budget estimates will provide only for one financial year's expenditure.

The total figures are not accounted for so much by the size of the shipbuilding program, however, according to naval experts here, as by the requirements for increasing stores of ammunition and fuel and by addition to the strength of the naval arm.

The three new battleships which are contemplated will cost $40,000,000 each.

Soviet Union Recalls Ambassador to Spain

MOSCOW, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Marcel Rosenberg, Russian ambassador to Spain, has been recalled, the government announced tonight. He has been replaced by Leon Y. Gaikis, hitherto ccunsellor of the embassy in Spain. Rosenberg was the soviet union's first ambassador to Spain and presented his credentials at Madrid only last August. Recently Marcelino Pascua, Spanish ambassodar to Moscow, returned to Spain.

PRO-ROOSEVELT SENATORS OPEN DRIVE ON COURT

Pair Defend Their Defense of President.

icans! What unrealized arrogance that reveals."

Recalling the funeral of his colleague, Thomas J. Walsh, who had been appointed attorney general in Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet, Wheeler declared:

"I cannot but believe that had Thomas J. Walsh lived, I would not be addressing you tonight.

"If he had been attorney general the present deplorable controversy would never have occurred. Loyal and true, he would have been candid with his President and as brave as he was loyal. He would never have advised his President to pack the Supreme court. And if his President had advised congress to do so, he would have had to look for a new attorney general

Opposes One Man Power.

"I believe I speak for the liberals of America when I say that true liberalism always opposes one man power, always defends the rights of the people, always stands for fair play, always opposes indirections, always stands on the merits of its cause, always insists on the due expression of the will of the people.

"There was a time in Europe when democracy and liberalism were synonymous. Today in most countries in Europe liberalism means fidelity to despotism and dictatorship. Believers in democracy are executed as reactionaries, and yet Hitler and Stalin talk of their democracies. Every despot has usurped the power of the legislative and judicial branches of the government in the name of the necesssity for hate to promote the general welfare of the masses and then proceeded to reduce them to servitude. I do not believe that President Roosevelt has any such thing in mind, but such has been the course of events throughout the world.

Ashurst Summarizes Stand.

Senator Ashurst after asserting he was opposed to "dictating to the Supreme court," declared:

"Summarizing we find that the constitution grants to congress the power to determine the number of judges who shall compose the Supreme court of the United States; to fix the salaries of the justices; to determine and make regulations as to the appellate jurisdiction of the court.

"Congress has from time to time changed and altered the number of justices composing the Supreme court.

"No one has risen in the senate, no one in the country has made himself so ridiculous as to suggest that this is unconstitutional. No one has made himself so ridiculous as to suggest that this is unprecedented."

Later on Senator Ashurst said:

"But I come back to the mildness of the proposal of the President. Out of the dozens of suggestions with reference to the Supreme court, he has adopted the most gentle. His proposal does not 'tinker' with the constitution. It does not 'curb' the Supreme court powers in any respect.

"The bill does not take any judiciary power from the Supreme court. No senator here will be heard to say that this takes any judicial power from the Supreme court and gives it to congress. No senator will be heard to say that this bill is unconstitutional.

Comments on Criticism.

Senator Robinson said it was unaccountable that all the criticism of the President's proposals centered on their relation to the Supreme court, while no one objected to the appointment of additional judges to the Circuit courts when members past 70 refuse to retire.

"Why should a judge who has become decrepit or senile be distinguished or discriminated in favor of because he is vested with the authority to pass final judgment?" he asked. "If it be admitted that as to the judges of the so-called inferior courts there comes a time in life when physical and mental powers usually are diminished and impaired, I ask now what is there either in the functions of the Supreme court or in the personality of the members that warrants the conclusion that those who have the greatest responsibilities, those whose duties are most arduous, are designed to assure general vigor and capacity both with respect to physical and mental being."

FOR COURT PLAN

HUNT AMERICAN LOST IN WILDS OF SOUTH AMERICA

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Joseph G. Le Van, American psychologist and explorer, was reported stranded today in the wilderness near Mount Roraima, on the borders of British Guiana, Brazil and Venezuela. Cattle ranchers near that district organized parties to search for him.

Le Van, who struck into the hinterland last spring, was deserted by his Indian porters at a point 100 miles from the nearest ranch, according to a belated dispatch dated Jan. 30, which reached here only today from the upper reaches of the Rupununi river, 400 miles inland from Georgetown.

The dispatch said the porters deserted when rival Venezuelan and Brazilian gold hunters in the Mount Roraima region clashed over a recently discovered diamond mine. The notice did not explain Le Van's connection with the trouble.

HOOVER TO SPEAK HERE TONIGHT ON COURT PROPOSAL

Ex-President to Address Union League Club.

Former President Herbert Hoover will address the Union League club tonight on the plan of his successor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, to pack the United States Supreme court.

In New York yesterday, where Mr. Hoover completed the draft of his speech, his secretary, Lawrance Richey, said the talk would be "a short, nonpartisan address on the Supreme court question." More than 1,000 reservations have been made for the dinner.

6th President to Speak.

Mr. Hoover will be the sixth occupant of the White House to address the Union League club since it inaugurated its Washington's birthday commemorative dinners fifty years ago. Preceding him have been Benjamin Harrison, Grover Cleveland, William McKinley, William Howard Taft, and Theodore Roosevelt.

The Hoover address will be broadcast over W-G-N at 9 p. m.

Magill Assails Scheme.

A new attack on the court packing plan was leveled yesterday by Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Investors, who called it "a step toward dictatorship."

"This revolutionary proposal was never submitted to the people, but was, in fact, prepared by the President and sprung as a surprise on congress," Dr. Magill declared, "notwithstanding the constitutional provision that all legislative powers are vested in congress.

"Any attempt to break down the safeguards of liberty established by our constitution, with its three free and independent departments of government, should be resisted by every liberty loving citizen irrespective of party."

IN 30,000 LETTERS ON COURT PLAN, 29,700 OPPOSE IT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Senator Royal S. Copeland [D., N. Y.] has received 30,000 letters and telegrams since President Roosevelt submitted his federal court reform message to congress, and the score today stood: for the President, 300; against, 29,700.

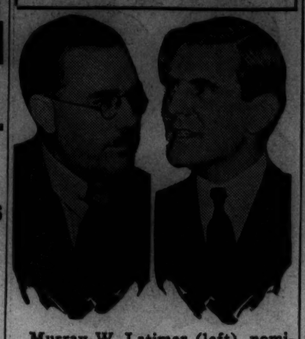
Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.] has been receiving between 500 and 1,000 messages daily, but his office declined to revela the ratio in which they were divided. At the senator's office it was said it was felt that in fights of this kind the opposition was always articulate out of proportion to its actual strength.

Communist Paper Backs Plan.

New York, Feb. 19.—[Special.]—The Daily Worker, central organ of the communist party of the United States, a section of the communist international, announces in an editorial that it is thoroughly in favor of President Roosevelt's plan to curb the Supreme court.

"The landslide for Roosevelt in November was an overwhelming mandate for Roosevelt to destroy the powers of the Supreme court," the editorial declares.

IN AND OUT



Murray W. Latimer (left), nominated for social security board, and John G. Winant, who resigned.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—John Gilbert Winant, former Republican governor of New Hampshire, who became a New Deal convert, today resigned as chairman of the Social Security board.

The resignation was announced when President Roosevelt withdrew the renomination of Winant as a member of the board and substituted that of Murray W. Latimer of New York, chairman of the railroad retirement board. At the same time Mr. Roosevelt made public Winant's letter of resignation and his letter accepting it.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, a member of the board, was named to serve as its chairman. Upon senate confirmation of his nomination Latimer will begin serving a term which is to expire Aug. 13, 1941.

The President said that Winant, who has been mentioned as a logical candidate for the post of secretary of social welfare if the White House government reorganization plan is adopted, was leaving his post to take care of some pressing personal matters. He added that the former governor will be back again in the federal service fairly soon.

Decree for Cripple

A bailif supported her hand while she took the oath. Then from the wheel chair to which she has been confined by arthritis for nine years Mrs. Alma Campany, 6322 Lakewood avenue, testified yesterday in Superior court in her suit for separate maintenance. Judge George E. Bristow of Paris, Ill., sat next to her in the jury box to hear her testimony. Mrs. Campany, who is 37 years old, told of sending private detectives to raid an apartment where they found her husband, Floyd Fred Campany, and a young woman, both clad in pajamas. Judge Bristow awarded Mrs. Campany a decre and $25 a week alimony.

ALBERTA DEBT LAW IS VOIDED BY HIGH COURT

Blow to Social Credit Premier's Program.

EDMONTON, Alberta, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Alberta province's debt reduction and settlement act, considered the cornerstone of the debt legislation of Premier William Aberhart's social credit government, was declared unconstitutional today by Justice A. F. Ewing in the Alberta Supreme court.

The decision said the act encroached on a field reserved to the federal government under the Canadian constitution.

Passed last September, the act divided private debts into two classes: Old debts, contracted before July 1, 1932, and new debts, contracted since that date. It provided that payments of interest and principal which have been made on old debts should be applied to reduction of principal, that there should be no further interest and that the debts should be made payable in 10 years. On new debts the maximum interest rate was set at 5 per cent.

The provincial government did not announce whether it intended to appeal.

The premier and other officials had intimated earlier, however, that an appeal would be carried to Lnodon if the court held against the debt measure.

Premier Aberhart declared the decision was "naturally disappointing," and added:

"I feel satisfied that our citizens generally will not expect us to cease operations along the lines that are so vital to their economic welfare. Of course, no definite statement can be made on any future action until the full text of the judgment has been considered by the government."

Judge Ewing discounted the argument of the attorney general of Alberta that the act was within the province's rights because it dealt with property and civil rights and that it fell within the legal field of "matters of a merely local and private nature in the province," prescribed by the constitution as provincial affairs.

"A perusal of the sections of the act dealing with reduction of debts," the judge said, "leads to the conclusion that, in their aim and purpose, these sections strike directly and solely at interest."

ROOSEVELT UNDECIDED ON NOMINEES FOR TWO CHICAGO COURT SEATS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today said he had not decided upon appointees for the two vacancies on the bench of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago. He gave no indication at his press conference as to when he might be ready to send the nominations to the senate.

One post has been vacant for almost eighteen months and the other for a year. In that time a host of candidates have been advanced for one or the other of the seats, but there has been no unqualified agreement on any candidate by Senators Lewis and Dietrich, Gov. Horner and the Nash-Kelly Cook county machine.

William M. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has been persistent in his demand that one of the seats go to a labor selected man. He is pushing the candidacy of Benjamin F. Goldstein, Chicago attorney.

Stephen O'Meara Elected to Police Pension Board

Election of Stephen O'Meara, retired police lieutenant, to the police pension board was announced yesterday by Secretary Patrick E. Dwyer. O'Meara defeated four other candidates for the vacancy caused by the death of James Small.

YOUNG MOTHER, DAUGHTER DIE IN APARTMENT FIRE

22 Families Flee or Are Rescued by Firemen.

Overcome by smoke in their fourth floor rear flat, a young mother and her daughter, 2 years old, were burned to death yesterday when fire swept through a fifty year old apartment building at 4347-49 Oakenwald avenue. Twenty-two other families, mostly women and children, fled to safety or were rescued by firemen.

The victims were Mrs. Edna Short, 21 years old, an expectant mother, and her daughter, Mary. Mrs. Short's husband, Wayne, a clerk, was at work at the time.

The fire broke out shortly after 10 a. m. Fire Marshal Corrigan said it started apparently from spontaneous combustion in a refuse heap in the basement at the bottom of a refuse chute. The flames spread quickly up the chute and into the building, blocking off stairways and hampering rescue work.

Smoke Envelops Structure.

The flames, confined to the rear center portion of the four story brick building, shot out of windows, and smoke was so dense it virtually enveloped the structure. The building formerly contained only eight apartments, but had been converted into 25 small flats, which open off only into hallways.

There are no fire escapes or outside stairways at the rear and most of the residents there had to be carried down ladders by firemen. Mrs. Florence Mantell, building manager, attempted to arouse residents by ringing electric bells in their flats.

Her husband, Robert, ran through the building. He said he knocked at the Short flat but received no response. John Graham, who lives in a front flat with his wife, Helen, and their son, Howard, discovered the flames after his dog "Pup" had acted nervously and fidgeted around.

Attempt to Escape Indicated.

After the fire had been extinguished the bodies of Mrs. Short and her daughter were found on the floor near the door of the apartment, indicating the mother and daughter had made a desperate effort to escape. Their bodies were identified by Mrs. Short's mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Lyerla, of 2537 West 68th street, who had come to visit the two.

Earlier in the day Raymond Waslewski, 10 years old, of 920 West 35th street, was fatally burned when an oil stove exploded in the kitchen of his home. The inquest into the child's death was continued until March 11 for further investigation. Deputy Coroner Louis J. Nadherny ordered representatives from the company which manufactures the stoves, the fuel company and the fire attorney's office to attend the hearing.

KISS THAT COST LIFE AND PRISON VALUED AT $100

Sidney, Ia., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—A stolen kiss, which resulted in the kisser being slain and an avenger sent to prison for eight years, brought only $100 today in a settlement of the kissee's suit to recover damages.

Ruby Brown, 19 year old Phelps City, Mo., girl, who sued for $5,000, charged that W. J. Mawhor seized her and kissed her against her will in December, 1935, while she was employed in his home. Mrs. Mawhor was in a hospital at that time.

Ruby's father fatally wounded Mawhor and was sentenced to the state penitentiary. The girl's lawyer said her suit against Mawhor's estate was settled out of court for $100.

IMMIGRANT YOUTH OF 1861 OBSERVES HIS 100TH BIRTHDAY

Nels Quam, of 1405 North Keeler avenue, celebrated his 100th birthday yesterday. Born in Norway, he came to this country 76 years ago—in 1861—on a sailing vessel, spending a month on the ocean. He settled near Strongs Prairie, in Adams county, Wis., when there were "mostly Indians" living near there, he said. He still owns a farm there, but has lived at the Keeler avenue address with his son, John, for 15 years. He said his hobbies are still fishing and farming. Mr. Quam has 11 children. Two sons were with him to celebrate the birthday. The other is Julius, also of Chicago.

HELD FOR FARMER'S DEATH.

Vincennes, Ind., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Lyman Bennett, who resides near Oaktown, faced court charges here today following the death earlier today of Ben Ravellette, 62 years old, Oaktown farmer, injured when an automobile driven by Bennett overturned. Bennett was arrested as a drunken driver.

Charges Shotgun Wedding in Plea for Annulment

Charles F. Lyons, 20 years old, of 2311 West Jackson boulevard, a department store employé, filed a suit in Superior court yesterday for the annulment of his marriage to Miss Elizabeth Enright, 21 years old, 3918 Flournoy street. Lyons charged he was kidnaped on Jan. 4 from a loop corner by two armed men and two women, including Miss Enright, and forced to agree to marry Miss Enright on the threat of death. They were married that day by a Berwyn minister, according to the bill.

A 'MESSAGE TO GARCIA' HALTS RUBINOFF TRIAL

Marriage News Arrives; Peggy Denies It Again.

at Salem, Va., in 1925, she promptly declared she had not. But, she added, she had a cousin by the same name who was divorced in Roanoke.

"Sweetheart" or "Darling."

Peggy, who used to work in a Harlem night club "when she was just a little country girl," was born Pauline Taylor but got her friends to call her Garcia because she admired that name on the band of a cigar.

Earlier the pretty witness related in soft tones that she had been very much in love with the maestro, "or at least very much infatuated," and told how he had introduced her to an artist as his sweetheart, "or maybe he said my darling."

Rubinoff's attorney skirmished with her as to whether the fiddler had said sweetheart or darling, and she finally settled on darling. At any rate, the artist had stopped into a night club where she and Rubinoff were dining and the violinist said: "Why don't you sketch my darling"—or sweetheart.

In telling of her early acquaintance with Rubinoff, Peggy confided a bit of feminine philosophy on how difficult it is for a girl to know "what a man's intentions are when he first begins petting."

But Now She Knows.

She related how Rubinoff "got fresh" the first time she visited his apartment, but she didn't lose confidence in him. He got a bit "out of control and I didn't know why he got so excited when he told me he adored me, but I would know now," she declared.

But with all the romance, her friendship with Rubinoff lasted only four months, Peggy said. Then he began to show signs of indifference, and she learned she was not the only blonde in his life. Platinum-haired Frances Stutz was one of the girls who took her place in the fiddler's love life, she declared.

NO TRESPASSING
CITY ZONING

By CALEB

UNTIL recent years, cities simply grew like Topsy. Although there was no definite planning in their connection, they conformed roughly to a pattern. Business would select its location and residences would be commenced out a ways. Then the two would grow toward each other until they rubbed shoulders—not always in friendly fashion.

In larger communities, apartments crowded themselves between businesses and residences. Regardless of each type development's self-opinion, each was accused of encroaching by others.

In 1916 a zoning ordinance was passed in New York — the first in the United States. Zoning cannot undo much of what has been incorrectly done, but it can obviate most of the future's repetition of the wrong.

By 1920 Chicagoans, in their much younger city, were becoming aware of the benefits which should flow from zoning. The City Council created a Chicago Zoning Commission. That Commission went to the Chicago Plan Commission and obtained the services of the Plan Commission's engineering staff.

After the voluminous preliminary work was done, the City Council in 1923 adopted a zoning ordinance and for the last fourteen years that ordinance has regulated the use of property and the height and bulk of buildings in Chicago.

By this ordinance the city is divided into four districts of "use": residence, apartment, commercial, and manufacturing. It similarly divides the city into five "volume" districts, in each of which the height, maximum bulk, and area of building to lot size are prescribed.

The Commissioner of Buildings enforces the zoning ordinance. The Zoning Board of Appeals interprets its terms or the Building Commissioner's application of its terms. It also occasionally varies its application to preclude instances of extreme or unnecessary hardship.

But zoning involves far more than the two general ideas presumed by the public—convenience and appearance. Zoning prevents the helter-skelter invasion of areas by types of buildings and uses of property which would tend to destroy land and building values or to impair the public health, safety, comfort, morale, or welfare.

The Chicago Zoning ordinance promotes adherence to consistent principles among neighbors. This in turn advances neighborliness and neighborhoods.

EXONERATE WIFE OF POLICEMAN IN MOTOR FATALITY

Tells Story at Inquest; State to Ease Charges.

After listening to her own story and the testimony of a few other witnesses, a coroner's jury yesterday exonerated Mrs. Alice M. Kelly, wife of Policeman Edward J. Kelly of the morals squad, for the death of Attorney Henry L. Chatroop.

Chatroop was struck and killed by a hit and run automobile driver on Jan. 18 as he left a birthday party at 1809 North Park avenue. In technical custody of her husband, Mrs. Kelly on Tuesday confessed to Hudson avenue police that she drove the death car.

The inquest was conducted in the county morgue by Deputy Coroner E. J. English and Chief Deputy Coroner Anthony C. Prusinski. No mention was made after the verdict of Mrs. Kelly's failure to stop after the accident or of the fact that she waited a month before confessing.

Manslaughter Charges Pending.

Mrs. Kelly, who is 30 years old, and the mother of a small son, is free in $2,500 bail until Feb. 24 when a charge of manslaughter and of leaving the scene of an accident will be heard in the Automobile Safety court.

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley questioned the Kellys after the inquest, then announced the state will proceed only on the lesser charge which Mrs. Kelly admitted in her own testimony. Crowley declared there appeared to be no evidence to support a manslaughter charge.

After leaving her husband at home upon their return from a motion picture theater late at night on Jan. 17, Mrs. Kelly said she took the dog and went for a ride because it was a nice night.

Man Emerges from Row of Cars.

"It was dark in North Park avenue," she testified nervously. "Cars were parked on both sides of the street. I was traveling about 15 miles an hour. Suddenly a man stepped from between two cars.

"I put on the brakes. Some one screamed. I saw several people gather about the man. Then I became panicky. I was afraid of what they might do to me. So I turned east at the corner and went home."

Her license number was obtained by Chatroop's companion, Miss Dorothy Birch, 3716 East avenue, Berwyn. Policeman Kelly was questioned the next day, but proved he was home at the time. His wife was not suspected.

Miss Birch testified she thought the Kelly car was going fast. Attorney Jay Stough, Chatroop's host, who saw the accident from his car parked near by, said he was unable to judge the speed. Adam Reyer, 1847 Burling street, another witness, also said he could not tell the speed of the car.

WOMAN HELD FOR AX ATTACK ON TWO; 'MIGHT HAVE' DONE IT

Kenosha, Wis., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—District Attorney John P. McEvoy announced tonight that persistent questioning of Mrs. Charlia Caudill, 42 year old housekeeper, resulted in an admission that she "might have done it."

The district attorney said his question referred to the brutal ax attack on William A. Bennett, 45, by whom Mrs. Caudill was employed, and his 14 year old son, Quinn, in the Bennett farm home in Kenosha county early Wednesday.

Mrs. Caudill was questioned throughout the afternoon by Sherif Leo Schend after more than 200 stitches had been taken to close wounds in her body. Suffering intense pain, the woman made her first break in her story as the sherif fired questions at her.

She had insisted originally that two men entered their home and after trying to attack her beat Bennett and his son.

GET A JOB AT A PIN A WEEK AND STICK YOUR BOSS

Your chances to get 13 spades in one bridge hand are practically nil. But if you want to get rich quick, go to work for one pin a week.

So, at least, state the statistical charts covering the fourth floor of the Palmer house as the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics meets. And if the mathematicians can't figure correctly, it is to be presumed that no one can.

Here is the way for easy money, if you can find an employer who will pay you in pins: Go to work for one pin a week, doubling your income every week. At the end of the year you can sell the brass for $1,000,000,000—so the chart says.

Your chance to get 13 cards in one suit, however, is only 1 out of 615,613,559,600. Your chance to throw a lucky seven is one out of six. If you are 20, your chances to live to be 80 are 3 out of 20.

BLAME ABSENCE OF BOLTS FOR 10 DEATHS ON SPAN

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 19.—(AP)—A coroner's jury of mechanical experts tonight blamed "failure to use certain safety equipment" for collapse of a scaffold which killed 10 workmen on the Golden Gate bridge Wednesday.

The verdict, after several hours' deliberation, followed testimony that four bolts, recommended to strengthen the structure by state inspectors, had not been used.

A. F. Mailloux, accident inspector, testified he inspected the scaffold before the accident and told a foreman to "put those bolts in place."

"I warned James Graham, general superintendent for the Pacific Bridge company about the missing bolts," the inspector asserted.

The jury declared the tragedy was due to "spreading of the hooks used to support the scaffold . . . evidently through the failure to use certain safety equipment, namely, a bolt."

"The bolt arrangement we believe to have been in itself most unsatisfactory from a safety standpoint," the verdict added.

Two Seriously Injured in Milwaukee Ave. Crash.

In a head-on crash last night between a Milwaukee avenue street car and a speeding sedan one man was killed and two were seriously injured in the automobile, and several were shaken up aboard the street car.

The dead man was John Sobon, 23 years old, of 868 North Hermitage avenue. He died shortly after being taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital. The injured at Mitchell Skorupa, 23 years old, 2132 North Menard avenue, and Walter Ptak, 22 years old, 1228 Augusta street. Physicians at St. Mary's hospital, where Skorupa was taken, said he appeared to have incurred internal injuries which may prove fatal.

Ptak was taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital. All three were employed by the Dole Valve company, 1923 Carroll avenue.

The accident occurred at Milwaukee avenue and Wabansia avenue. The street car, inbound, carried comparatively few passengers.

City Employé Loses Life.

As the result of injuries incurred Thursday night, Melvin S. Graul, 47 years old, died last night at the Columbus Memorial hospital. Mr. Graul, who lived at 555 Barry avenue, and who for many years had been chief clerk in the health department, walked against the automobile of Ralph W. Bradford, 6363 North Sayre avenue, while crossing Lake Shore drive near the Grant monument. His skull was fractured.

Bradford told Hudson avenue police that Graul was walking with his head down to shield his face from the brisk wind. He was not held.

Editor's Wife Injured.

One woman was killed and three companions were seriously injured yesterday when their automobile, driven by Mrs. Richard J. Finnegan, 7462 Sheridan road, ran off the high way and overturned several times near Marshfield, Mo., according to a dispatch received here.

The woman killed was Mrs. Anna Ferris, 60 years old, of Kenosha, Wis. The injured are Mrs. Finnegan, wife of the editor of the Chicago Daily Times; Mrs. G. J. Schickluna, 3650 Lake Shore drive, and Mrs. C. P. Chaffin, 1234 North State parkway. The four women were en route to Hot Springs, Ark.

According to Marshfield police, Mrs. Finnegan said she lost control of the car. The injured were brought to Springfield, Mo.

Orris Wiltjer, 27 years old, of 22 South Mason street, was killed early today when the car in which he was riding on Longcommon road in Riverview struck the concrete abutment of a bridge over the Des Plaines river. George DeVries, of 3301 Hartzell street, Evanston, the driver, was injured only slightly. Witnesses said another car forced DeVries to swerve and strike the abutment.

John Hassett, 55 years old, 222 South Morgan street, was almost instantly killed early today at 7th and State streets when he was struck by an automobile driven by Melvin Cook, 21 years old, of 628 Buckingham place.

An unidentified man about 40 years old died in the county hospital yesterday of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile driven by Olaf Schie, 27 years old, 2448 Irving Park boulevard, in front of 1440 North Western avenue Thursday night.

Alexander Waddell, 56 years old, of Barrington was ordered held to the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury at the inquest over Miss Florence Ryan, 42 years old, 6317 Kenmore avenue. She was killed on Feb. 7 when her automobile was struck by one driven by Waddell.

Held Driver for Manslaughter.

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered George J. Bradac, 24 years old, 1528 Gunderson avenue, Berwyn, held to the grand jury for manslaughter after testimony was given that he was drunk when his automobile struck and killed a cyclist on Jan. 29 in Cermak road near 59th court, Cicero. The victim was Percival C. Faull, 37 years old, 447 South Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park.

At 4 p. m. yesterday 134 persons were killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 108 were killed in Chicago. In the same period 2,698 persons were injured in trafic accidents in Chicago.

ONE WAY TRAFIC LETS BUS BETTER STREET CAR TIME

Loop to West City Limits in Less than 40 Minutes.

Almost no trafic obstacles were encountered by a Washington boulevard bus on which a TRIBUNE reporter and photographer yesterday made a trip to Austin boulevard, the boundary between Oak Park and Chicago, and return.

The bus made the outbound route from the loop, a distance of approximately 8 miles, in less than 40 minutes. It made the return trip in just a few minutes more, the extra time being allowed for in its schedule because normally there are more passengers on their way downtown than on their way home in the early afternoon.

The same two TRIBUNE representatives made a similar trip the day before on one of the new streamlined surface cars in Madison street. The street car was comfortable and probably it was capable of greater speed than the bus. However, it took 15 minutes longer to reach the city limits, due almost entirely to the solid miles of parked automobiles along either curb of the narrow reach of Madison street.

Clear Road Ahead for Bus.

Thanks to a one way street and the small number of parked cars, the bus had a clear road ahead of it all the way. The same thing was true for the street car once it reached the western, widened stretch of Madison street.

Reporter and photographer boarded the bus yesterday at Wabash avenue and Washington street at 11:36 a. m., just about three minutes after it had started its run at Wacker drive and Michigan avenue. Progress through the loop was relatively slow, but not once was the bus brought to a full stop, except to pick up and discharge passengers.

Trafic was thinned out by the time the passage beneath the North Western station was reached. Here a parked car caused the only difficulty of the trip. It had been left carelessly far from the curb and it was necessary to slow down a bit to get by.

From then on it was clear sailing, except for an occasional red trafic signal and a stop at Keeler avenue while school children were crossing the street.

Slight delay on Return.

Halsted street was reached at 11:45, Ogden at 11:49, Kedzie at 11:57, and it was two minutes before noon when the bus crossed Homan avenue and entered Garfield park. Pulaski road [Crawford avenue] was reached at 12:01 p. m., Cicero avenue at 12:06, Laramie at 12:08, and the bus turned north in Austin boulevard at 12:12, arriving at its terminal, Austin and Lake street, a minute later.

The eastbound schedule in Warren avenue, the other lane of the one way Washington boulevard trafic artery, was comparable. The bus left its terminal at 12:20 p. m. and arrived at Wacker and Michigan at 1:04. The only untoward incident was a slight delay at Union avenue where cross trafic blocked the right of way. There is no signal control at this intersection.

Street Car's Schedule.

On Thursday the street car left Dearborn and Madison streets at 11:30 a. m., reached Halsted street at 11:40, Ogden avenue at 11:43, Western avenue at 11:50, Kedzie at 11:56, Pulaski road at 12:02 p. m., Austin boulevard at 12:13. Despite an apparently faster pickup than that of the bus, it required 43 minutes to cover a route about two miles shorter.

The street car made better time between some points than did the bus, for example, it took the car a minute less to get from Halsted street to Ogden avenue. Its slower time over the whole route was apparently due to the fact that it was forced to contend with trafic obstacles not encountered on a one way boulevard.

Held for False Story About Accident

REV. BERGSTROM'S SON $970 BEHIND IN ALIMONY; JAILED

Served in a tavern Thursday night with notice of his ex-wife's contempt citation, Carl F. Bergstrom, 35 years old, of 8008 South Aberdeen street, was sentenced yesterday to six months in the county jail for being $970 in arrears on a $75 a month alimony payment. He is the son of the Rev. Amandus Bergstrom, pastor of St. Mathew's Lutheran church.

Bergstrom's wife, Elva, 5717 Race avenue, mother of three children, obtained a divorce on June 7, 1935. Bergstrom later remarried. The Rev. Mr. Bergstrom pleaded for leniency for his son, asserting the latter was ill. Judge Lewe said the younger Bergstrom could get medical attention in jail.

BERT ACOSTA IN JAIL AGAIN WITH WIFE TROUBLES

Mineola, N. Y., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Bert Acosta is in jail again. It's family trouble, once more, for the famed flyer, one time bad boy of aviation.

He was remanded to the Nassau county jail today by Judge Cortland Johnson of Children's court when he was unable to provide $500 bail to insure his appearance in court a week from today to answer a nonsupport charge brought by his wife, Helen.

When he gets out Nassau county police will present him once more with a ticket for speeding which he has ignored since September.

Seven years ago he was sentenced to six months in jail for abandonment of his wife and family.

In the present action Mrs. Acosta charges that the flyer has failed to support her and her two children. The case was set for trial on Feb. 11, but Acosta did not show up. A bench warant was issued for his arrest. That brought him to court today.

Acosta returned recently from Spain where he flew in the service of the Loyalist army.

QUIZ ATTORNEY ON ACCIDENT LIE TOLD BY CLIENTS

Attorney Edmund H. Grant was questioned at the state's attorney's office yesterday on charges made before Judge Charles S. Dougherty in Trafic court that he had advised a couple to testify falsely in an accident case.

The charges were made by James F. Fenn, 27 years old, 7044 Vernon avenue, and his wife, Rose, 24 years old. They were arrested Feb. 16 after their car was in a collision in Drexel boulevard near 42d street. Mrs. Fenn was charged with driving while intoxicated and her husband with disorderly conduct.

In court yesterday both admitted they lied at a previous hearing when they said a third person drove their car. Fenn asserted he acted on the instructions of Attorney Grant who, he said, had solicited the case from him in the courtroom. Attorney Grant denied the charges. He promised to appear before Judge Dougherty on Feb. 24 when the Fenn cases are heard.

Mrs. Fenn was released yesterday and her husband was held when he admitted that he was the driver of the car and not his wife.

NEW LAKE DRIVE PLAN OPPOSES PARK BOARD'S

Assn. of Commerce Urges Radical Changes.

The street trafic committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce has prepared a plan for improving Lake Shore drive north from the outer bridge development in opposition to the one already adopted by the Chicago Park district and on which construction has started.

Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district, said yesterday that the association committee's draft had been shown to him and that he was opposed to it because it would cost the taxpayers five times as much as the park boards; also because it would prevent motorists south bound in a new high-speed lane from swinging into Michigan boulevard at Oak street.

How Cost Would Go Up.

Both plans call for the conversion of Lake Shore drive from Ohio street to North avenue into three separate drives. The cost to taxpayers under the park district's plan would be about $300,000; but under the trafic committee's plan it would be about $1,500,000, Mr. Dunham said.

Explaining the great difference in cost, Mr. Dunham said, the park board project could be done with about 90 per cent WPA labor, while under the association committee's plan the relocating of electric conduits and other work would have to be done by skilled labor.

Robert Nau, trafic expert for the association of commerce, would not discuss the committee's plan pending its presentation to the executive committee of the association on next Friday.

Rush Work on Third Lane.

Mr. Dunham did not say flatly that the new proposal would be ignored but he did remark that he did not "find it based on our belief on what trafic demands will be, as shown by our surveys."

The park district has for the last 60 days pushed construction of the new, third lane north from Oak street to the vicinity of Elm street. This lane will carry through north trafic, while the present north bound lane, which adjoins it on the west, will carry southbound through trafic. The present south lane will be used as a two way drive connecting with Michigan boulevard, as at present, at Oak street. Each of the three drives will be 45 feet wide.

The park board also intends to construct a cutoff from the through speedways into Michigan at Oak, thus allowing southbound motorists wishing to go south on Michigan to stay on the expressway until they reach Oak.

The trafic committee's proposal calls for the narrowing of the present parkway between the north and south drives to a width of four feet. Two forty foot north and south through boulevards then would be constructed between the parkway and the lake. Local two way trafic would move on a 59 foot drive paralleling the through ways on the west.

No cutoff from the high speed ways to Michigan at Oak street is called for in the committee's proposal. Instead, those wishing to enter Michigan from the south bound way would have to leave the express lane either at Goethe or Division streets.

JOYCE KERR

SYNOPSIS.

Adrian Somervell and Diana Lake become engaged when the young scientist learns he is heir to the fortune of his late stepmother, Rose Somervell, ex-star of the theater, who was Diana's godmother. Until shortly before her death Adrian and she had been estranged. Adrian had lunched with her shortly before her death. Also there were Nicholas Blundell, wealthy bachelor solicitor, who lived in the London flat below Rose; Felix Arenson, an old friend, and Blundell's neurotic secretary, Elsie Dilworth. Elsie was madly in love with Adrian, who'd repulsed her. Blundell is Diana's godfather. She'd always disliked him. An autopsy reveals that Rose was poisoned. Then Diana's mother is murdered. Robbery is thought to be the motive. Adrian is arrested, suspected of Rose's murder. Blundell persuades Diana to move to Rose's flat. Elsie Dilworth, who has left Blundell's employ, returns to search the premises. Diana sees and trails her to a rooming house. Adrian is indicted. Remnants of the poison, which killed Rose, are found in his pocket. Diana meets Michael Hull, Adrian's lawyer, obtained for him by his friend, Dr. Ladbroke. Diana hires a private agent, Mortimer Bream. Bream calls at Elsie's lodgings and learns she has disappeared. Watching the house, he sees an East Indian trying to break into the girl's room. Inspector Headcorn, assigned to the investigation of Diana's mother's murder, believes there is a link between the two murders. He discovers a secret stairs between Diana's flat and Blundell's. The East Indian is found dead, apparently a suicide. Diana receives a letter from Elsie Dilworth, promising information. Diana goes to Elsie's lodgings, but Elsie refuses to commit herself. Next morning Diana receives a package of newspapers from Elsie which she states contains clews to the murder. Then Elsie commits suicide.

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

HOPE AND HORROR.

Blundell was not yet in his office when Bream reached there, but a telephone message from him had suspended all work while the staf conferred in awed voices over their late associate's death. Resolving to tackle one point before attempting to solve the whole exasperating riddle of Elsie Dilworth's behavior, Bream put concrete questions. He learned that Blundell dictated his letters in the morning, but that he sometimes had an additional one to give later in the day. No one remembered just what had happened in this respect on Oct. 28, though the young girl typist did recall that Miss Dilworth, who for several days had seemed "very queer," had, at about three in the afternoon come over sick and faint.

"Maybe it was a liver attack, as she said; but I remember thinking it seemed more like—well, some sort of shock she'd had."

"Do you know what she had been doing just before she felt faint? Dictating letters, typing correspondence?"

"That I can't say, I'd been out to buy stamps. Look, here's Mr. Blundell just coming in. Maybe he can tell you."

Bream turned and saw the solicitor, looking weary and preoccupied, just entering the door. Already, in the early morning the two had met in Floyd's square, and Blundell now gave an understanding nod as though he had half expected to find inquiries going on in this quarter. Inviting his visitor into a small, untidy private office and sinking heavily into an old-fashioned swivel chair he asked at once if Bream had reached any conclusion.

"Here's Mr. Blundell. Maybe he can tell you."

"I'll put it more plainly," he said, surveying the agent with keen attention. "No good mincing matters, is there? Are you completely satisfied this affair is what it appears? In three words, is it suicide?"

Bream returned his scrutiny without flinching. If he was taken aback he did not show it.

"I don't see quite how we can make it anything else," he answered frankly. "I'm glad to have a word with you because you may be able to help me over one small question. As you may realize, the possibility of Miss Dilworth having poisoned Mrs. Somervell is somewhat intensified by what has just happened, for which reason I'm hoping desperately to get some line on her last day in your employ. You see why, of course?"

"Not quite. What day was it, by the by?"

"Oct. 28. It was on that date she saw the home office officials and I believe—but correct me if I'm mistaken—on the same date your communication acquainting Doctor Somervell with his inheritance was sent. I suppose Miss Dilworth took down that letter?"

"She must have done. You were thinking——?"

"I'd like to know if you can recall what time of day it was when you dictated the letter."

"I've got it!" he exclaimed. "She took that letter with the others about eleven in the morning. Know why I'm sure of it? Because——" As he spoke he drew toward him a black bound diary, fluttered the pages, and laid it out for Bream to see. "There you are, Oct. 28. See those appointments? They cover the whole time from lunch onward. I was chockablock just then filling income tax forms for half my clients."

Bream rose, and fingering his bowler turned back to ask if he might be allowed to see a copy of Mrs. Somervell's will.

"Just to make sure what, if anything, the witnesses were able to see," he explained. "You'll appreciate why."

"Naturally. Well, I've the original here in my safe."

The document folded crosswise in three sections consisted of four pages, the last of which revealed nothing but the tail end of a sentence and the various signatures. Instantly Bream saw that Elsie Dilworth could not have gleaned any information from the sheet revealed to her.

"Did you happen to notice," he inquired, "whether when signing her name the will was folded so that the other sheets were invisible?"

"They were when the will was handed to her. After that I'm less sure what happened. It's a question I've bothered about a hundred times. Brutal as it sounds if we could save young Somervell by loading that crime onto an unfortunate woman who's out of harm's way it would be only common sense to do it."

Bream left him and took cautious stock of his impressions. He was now almost convinced that the letter to Somervell was dictated not as Blundell said, but shortly before three in the afternoon. Already he had ascertained that Blundell was alone at that time, the first of his clients not arriving till three-thirty.

"That letter was the shock," he decided. "And yet I have to admit it's quite on the cards she didn't feel actually sick till some hours later, which vitiates my whole argument. If it took immediate effect, then it was entirely due to her having shot her bolt as it were before knowing the terms of the will. Is it so or not?"

There was simply no determining. Such a belief once proved would shift the kaleidoscope into a new and startling pattern. Picture the emotional state of a woman who, unwittingly has sprung a trap on a man she loves!

"But it's sewn up at both ends. Only one person in that office knows when that dictation occurred, and if he's lying about it no human power can call his bluff. Is there any way left to tear a hole in this suicide theory?"

Just one. If it could be shown that Elsie on going to King's Cross had taken a bag with her then one could be sure at that time she intended not to take her life, but to quit London. He hurried to King's Cross to find that the night officials were not due to come on duty till late afternoon. Forced to wait for his information, he returned to Floyd's square to be met by a disgruntled inspector just taking his departure. No fresh discoveries had been made. He drew Headcorn aside and offered a tactfully-worded bit of advice.

"Inspector, you won't think it out of place of me if I mention that Miss Lake has something more to tell you? It may concern you as well as myself. And while on the subject, might I suggest you conduct your interview with her away from her flat?"

The big man's eyes showed there was no necessity for plainer speech.

"Thanks," was the laconic response. "I'll get her along to the chief's office."

So it was that Diana for the first time saw the interior of Scotland Yard, a place far less awe-inspiring than she had imagined. She recounted her tale about the newspapers to an audience composed of a keen-eyed Assistant Commissioner and Inspector Headcorn was questioned closely but could not make out what effect she had produced. However, she was once more warned to preserve complete silence over certain incidents, and left with a feeling of dizzy hope, interwoven with incredulous horror.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Another Novel Has Civil War as Background

Ford Madox Ford's New Book Also Reviewed.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

TWO books related in a hands across the sea friendliness are published this week. Ford Madox Ford, one of the best known of modern English writers, literally as well as figuratively travels across the Atlantic in his "Great Trade Route." Among other spots he writes of the home of Allen Tate and his wife, Caroline Gordon. When Caroline Gordon's first novel was published in 1931, Ford Madox Ford proclaimed it "the best novel that modern America has produced." This week her third novel is published.

Ford Madox Ford.

Story of South Told by Caroline Gordon.

"None Shall Look Back," by Caroline Gordon. [Scribners, $2.75.] Published yesterday.

"A new 'Gone With the Wind'" will be the inevitable description of "None Shall Look Back"—inevitable and essentially not true. For although the material in both novels is historically the same—the years of the civil war in the lives of the members of a great southern clan—the treatment is wholly different.

"Gone With the Wind" was primarily the story of one woman's surcharged and fate filled life, and through her eyes the reader saw the historic panorama. "None Shall Look Back" is the panorama itself, necessarily populated with human beings, and made more poignant by them, but essentially a great and terrible force going its own inevitable way.

There are memorable historic scenes in "None Shall Look Back." There is, for instance, the brilliantly executed escape of Forrest's men from Fort Donelson to Chickamauga, relived hour by hour, all made more understandable by Caroline Gordon. There are scenes of life behind the lines, of women's tragedy, of women who "were the devil because they never knew when they were licked." There is a main love story and lesser loves. "None Shall Look Back" is like a print of the civil war with every minute figure, every cannon, every shattered tree brought to life.

Here's a Piece for Mental Gymnastics.

"Great Trade Route," by Ford Madox Ford. [Oxford University Press, $3.] Published Thursday.

"A Book of Mental Travel" is what Mr. Ford's book is labeled and that is as good a caption as any, for although its framework is a trip to America, and especially to the south of the United States, from France, Italy, London et al., that framework is no more solid than a spring board. From it Mr. Ford dives off into seas of discussion, not only about places but about peoples and ideas and things and food and the ruin of war.

He declares in one place that "it is the moral of this book and the fruit of all my observations of life" that one can live very happily in pleasant places on an astonishingly small income if he has his own little plot of land. But that moral is barely more than stated.

He finds war "does not pay. It really does not." And he tells many reasons why, but those reasons are as scattered as the few reddened leages on a maple after the first frost.

He writes a great deal about the south, tells his readers an infinitude of interesting or amusing facts as well as shares his own judgments, but his flights from Washington to Geneva are no less sudden or distant than his leaps from elucidating Gertrude Stein to proposing "the proper building really to meet you at Sandy Hook."

If you like to follow an intelligent mind and hear a sharp tongue "Great Trade Route" will amuse you. But unless you have your own wits about you confusion will more than once overtake you. Mr. Ford's leaps are very sudden, completely incalculable, and their route seldom well marked.

Book Views in Brief

Resident of Wheaton Pens Worthy Novel.

"The Invaders," by Stuart David Engstrand. [Knopf, $2.50.]

From the pen of a young Wheaton resident, Stuart David Engstrand, comes a first rank novel of farm life in the middle west, of such power and versatility that the author seems headed for an assured position among American writers.

The theme of "The Invaders" is old—man's ceaseless struggle to wrest a living from the soil—but the treatment is fresh, alive, exciting. As Fred Miller and his stolid mother crawl slowly along the rows of tomatoes and beets and carrots, you feel acutely their aches, you understand completely their absorption in the monotonous toil which must be done hour after hour and day after day.

Then Miller brings to his poor plot of ground a passionate, young city bred wife, who can never grasp the meaning of his work. She is one of the invaders. Another is a clear thinking, out of work college professor, a mild Red who unites the truck farmers into a coöperative. But when these intruders have gone, there remains the farm, the daily labor of tending growing life, the soil which has become as deep a part of Miller as life itself, which brings a meaning to his living. A Delightful Story of an English Lady.

"Portrait of a Lady" is an entertaining, delightful novel of Victorian England and of a young person named Medora Venn, who starts her colorful career as an obscure governess, becomes a beautiful and charming but inept actress with a traveling stock company, and finally marries a title and is surrounded by wealth and all the rococo conventionality of the era.

The reader begins by disliking Medora, or at least by having no active sympathy for her, and ends by being fascinated with her. The author uses this method, too, in portraying the character of Lord Cheyn, Medora's husband.

"Hitler Over Russia," by Ernst Henri. [Simon & Schuster, $2.50.]

Ernst Henri sets out to prove that Hitler and his associates are a vicious gang of cutthroats who have crushed the workers of Germany, betrayed the middle classes and now are preparing to serve their masters—the steel trust and the big landowners—by waging a war on lily white Russia, the world's last hope.

Henri's feverish prejudice in favor of the socialist state spoils what might have been a powerful tract in favor of his cause. He succeeds in proving only one thing—that the mad state of mind on both sides of the Fascist-socialist conflict in Europe might lead to almost anything.

Most of "Hitler over Russia" is devoted to an analysis of the plan for a conquest of Russia devised by the late Maj. Gen. Max Hoffmann, commander of Germany's forces on the eastern front at the close of the world war. Henri asserts this plan is now the passionate goal of the Nazi régime. The crusade will fail, Henri says, because Russia's air force is superior, Germany will be handicapped by long transportation and supply lines, and the Fascist soldier is inferior[sic] to the socialist soldier.

Henri smacks his lips with relish as he describes Hitler's imagined Waterloo and his subsequent flight and execution by his own soldiers. In the lexicon of the author, apparently, the word terror means terror as applied to the methods of Fascism, but as as applied to the methods of socialism it means good clean fun. C. J. W.

An Expatriate Views the American Scene.

"America: A Re-Appraisal," by Harold E. Stearns. [Hillman-Curl, $3.]

Viewing the American scene, Harold E. Stearns, an expatriate for twelve years, finds that he is still an American, and glad of it. He shares the average citizen's opinion that this is the best country. Then, as if to apologize for his scornful absence, he has an observer from Mars find us a basis for Utopian hopes.

Just as often as he sees breaks in the American tapestry, he sees forces already at work to do the mending. And what's more, Mr. Stearns sees that this woven and rewoven picture is increasingly independent of Europe.

Between "The Salient Points of Our Attitude" and "The Main Drift of Our Hopes," he packs fifteen other chapters giving an estimated 217 reasons for pride in country. They are convincingly written.

His reappraisal whacks at formal religions, but declares the country is rich in charity and good will toward man. And his last line sums up his faith in these words:

"We may have sinned again and again against the light, but we are still the children of it." G. H. T.

A Naval Battle of 1905 Made to Live Again

'Tsushima' Provides Both News and Thrills.

"Tsushima," by A. Novikoff-Priboy. [Knopf, $3.50.]

THE last book you'd expect to grab you on the first page and hold you for 425 pages is the record of a naval battle between the Russians and the Japanese somewhere in the Japanese sea in 1905. Neither news nor thrills would seem to live in those pages. Both do.

"Tsushima" is told by one of the men who fought in the battle. It is news because in the growing discontent, the lack of discipline, the plain inefficiency of the czar's men the reader dramatically recognizes the seeds of the Russian revolution of 1917. It provides thrills because the author has incomparably thrilling material and the gift to transmute it into spine shivers.

Novikoff-Priboy, the author, was paymaster's steward on the battleship Oryol. He was in the battle until its end, when he was taken prisoner by the Japanese. During his long imprisonment he began to collect the memories of other prisoners who had been with the squadron on other ships.

Then in the riot described so vividly in this book everything was burned. He started all over again; reconstructed his note material, and by recontacts refreshed his memory of what he originally had done. He had just completed the manuscript when he was shipped back to Russia. A revolution threatened. He turned over all of his "Tsushima" material to his brother and joined the revolutionists.

In 1913, when he returned home, nobody could find the notebooks. They had been hidden too well. It was not until 1928 that the bundle of papers was discovered in an abandoned beehive on the family farm.

Novikoff-Priboy returned to Moscow, searched out the survivors of the battle, renovated his material and completed the book in 1933, and it was published in soviet Russia, where more than a million and a half copies already have been sold. F. B.

BRITISH CAST EYE UPON ABDICATION AND ARE PUZZLED

Wonder Why King Really Gave Up Throne.

In the Graphic section of tomorrow's Sunday Tribune will appear a comprehensive article by Charles Collins dealing with the mysteries surrounding the abdication of King Edward VIII. of Great Britain. That there was a great deal more back of the abandonment of the throne than Edward's mere proposal to marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson is brought out clearly in tomorrow's article. Many of the underlying factors leading to the abdication—factors heretofore kept secret—are revealed.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 19.—What actually happened during abdication week and just where lies the truth in the dramatic events which preceded the departure of Edward VIII. from the throne remains the most intriguing of subjects to English people.

Newspapers and magazines are still bombarded with letters from people expressing their views on what happened, although there is a strong tendency to discourage discussion of the subject and consign the affair to the past.

Many believe that what caused the sudden ejection of the king was fear about the solidity of the empire. Even though Edward's morganatic marriage with Mrs. Wallis Simpson might have been accepted by a majority of parliament [to whom the question was never submitted, however] it never would have been accepted by the dominions after the adverse publicity which he got in the United States and dominion press, it is stated in some circles here.

See Baldwin Forced "To Act."

Those who hold this belief say that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin was, therefore, forced to topple Edward over in order to save the empire.

Some others are convinced abdication week was a show staged for the benefit of the populace and designed to show what a grand and majestic thing monarchy is.

This idea was expressed by E. C. Large in a letter to a London weekly magazine. Mr. Large wrote:

"When King George V. died everybody wondered whether Prince Edward would take on the throne, as it was generally thought that he did not want it. He did accede. Why? Surely because both Prince Edward himself and all those who were stage-managing the monarchy perceived the real grief among the people at King George's death. Prince Edward could not have refused the throne just then. It would have been considered in very bad taste.

"What happened? It was arranged that he should wait until a decent interval had lapsed after his father's death, but not so long that it interfered with the coronation, and the abdication was staged halfway between the two events.

Hunt for a Motive.

"Then there had to be some dramatically adequate reason for the abdication. That a man of King Edward's intelligence, who knew all about the throne, should renounce it, because he did not care for it, was not the sort of thing that could be put before the people.

"Here events helped and King Edward, who had just as much savvy as you or I and was vitally concerned in the success of the production, knew that he had only to go about often with some one whom the public fancy would seize upon at once as his lover to start a fine volume of discussion and rumor.

"This happened and the next move was to place an absolute ban on the publication of any of these rumors in the English press. By lifting this ban in the middle of the second act and instructing all the newspapers to publish the rumors all at once a most dramatic situation was obtained just at the right moment.

"Then King Edward was put on the stage in the part of a youthful monarch torn between love and duty. That the lovers were both over 40 did not matter. It never does matter on the stage. Mr. Baldwin appeared as the heavy villain, and, with proper delays and difficulties, the play progressed and closed on the conventional happy ending."

SHUN UNIONISM, IS FORD'S ADVICE TO U. S. WORKMAN

Ways, Ga., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Henry Ford today advised all workers to "stay out of labor organizations" and charged "international financiers are behind the labor unions."

The Detroit automobile manufacturer, in an authorized interview, also criticized the proposal to increase the number of Supreme court justices.

"International financiers," said Ford, "are behind the labor unions because they want to control industry and kill competition. They are the cause of all these strikes."

He said he opposed the plan to revise the federal judiciary because "it gives one man too much power—more power than the constitution defines.

"The Supreme court now is ideal," he said. "Changes over the years have seen to that. But if it is suddenly increased to the proportions considered, then it cases to be a court at all."

REPORTS MRS. SIMPSON AND EDWARD WILL BE MARRIED MAY 22

New York, Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Edward, duke of Windsor, and Mrs. Wallis Simpson will be married May 22 in the English chapel in Vienna, and thereafter she will be the social arbiter of the smart British crowd on the continent.

That word was brought back today by Frances Clyne, modiste, who said she had heard the marriage date "stated definitly" at a cocktail party attended by Lord Brownlow and other intimates of the duke. It was Lord Brownlow who escorted Mrs. Simpson when she fled to Cannes. Miss Clyne arrived on the Bremen.

Miss Clyne said that at the same party a "very widely known woman in London society" announced, with Lord Brownlow nodding assent:

"When Wally Simpson's the duchess of Windsor she is going to be the social arbiter so far as the English set is concerned on the continent. You mark my words, they'll lick her boots."

The duke's friends said May 22 had been selected for the wedding so it would follow the coronation of his brother, George VI., on May 12.

Miss Clyne said, too, that the London talk is that the political powers who opposed Edward as king have decided that after the coronation George must grow a beard.

Mrs. Simpson is expected to be awarded her final decree of divorce from Ernest A. Simpson, New York born London shipping broker, on April 27.

EDWARD, WALLY MAY HONEYMOON IN ELLIOTT VILLA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANNES, France, Feb. 19.—Edward, the duke of Windsor, and Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson will spend their honeymoon in Maxine Elliott's $350,000 villa, "Chateau de l'Horizon," between Cannes and Juan-les-Pins, according to reports here. Agents for the villa today refused comment "for the present" on a report that Miss Elliott plans to sell the villa. She will arrive here Sunday from Hollywood.

Edward rented the villa last summer, when he was still King Edward VIII. of England, but canceled his plans to stay there because, it was said, the French police asked to be relieved of the responsibility of looking after him.

Mrs. Simpson denied tonight, through her spokesman, Herman Livingston Rogers of New York and Cannes, the report that she is trying to buy a villa at Gaeta, Italy.

It was learned that Lady Yule, whose yacht Nahlin was used by Edward for a vacation last summer with Mrs. Simpson, paid a secret visit to Cannes five days ago to discuss the sale of the Nahlin.

PRAGUE ACCEPTS BERLIN PLAN TO SETTLE DISPUTE

PRAGUE, Czechoslakia, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Settlement of the difficulties between Germany and Czechoslovakia appeared near today. The Prague government accepted a four point plan for elimination of friction between Czech and German elements within Czechoslovakia. It makes various concessions to German racials. Its outstanding features re:

1. Important public works will be executed in German sections of Czechoslovakia under the control of Germanic cabinet members.
2. Germans will be allocated a proportional share of civil service posts and German youths will be given facilities for entering the civil service.
3. Social welfare allowances for Germans will be increased.
4. State subsidies for German theaters, art and scientific institutions will be increased to aggregate twenty per cent of the total Czech budget appropriations for such purposes.

A MENACE TO THE NEGRO.

Senator Charles Diggs of Detroit, the only Negro member of the Michigan legislature, introduced a resolution approving the President's plan for the appointment of six additional members of the Supreme court. Fortunately for the Negroes of this country, Mr. Diggs' resolution was defeated and another, taking precisely the opposite view, was adopted.

It is difficult to believe that Mr. Diggs had thought through the question when he introduced his motion. The stake of his own people in preserving the authority of the court is very great. The influence of the southern wing of the Democratic party upon the administration in Washington is out of all proportion to its numbers. There is every reason to expect that if Mr. Roosevelt is allowed to appoint half a dozen new members of the court several of them, at least, will be men with the traditional southern attitude toward the Negro and his rights. All of the new justices, it can be confidently predicted, will be disposed to allow the administration to override constitutional restrictions.

The Negroes, like all other racial and religious minorities in the country, must look to the constitution for protection. It is their Magna Charta. Their lot leaves much to be desired, but if it were not for the constitutional guarantees protecting their lives, their liberty, and their property the Negroes could not have made the astonishing progress which they have achieved since they were freed from slavery. To jeopardize their hard won rights now by tampering with the court, as Mr. Diggs desires, is to commit an act of suicidal folly.

We know that Mr. Diggs does not speak for any considerable number of his people, but he has spoken, and some men in and out of Washington may jump to the conclusion that his is the voice of the Negroes of this country. The matter ought not to be allowed to rest there. Leading Negroes, and especially the editors of influential Negro newspapers, should lose no time in stating their attitude toward the court and the constitution.

We know that the court as now constituted will protect the civil rights of minorities and of Negoes in particular. The court protected the Scottsboro defendants. It protected the three Negroes sentenced to death in Mississippi on evidence extorted from them by the lynchers' rope and the sheriff's lash. It is very far from certain that Mr. Roosevelt's packed court would do anything of the sort. It is altogether certain that if the precedent of packing the court to suit a President's wishes is accepted, and if a President with Ku Klux leanings is ever elected, the Negroes will be menaced as they have not been since the civil war amendments were written into the constitution.

It is only a few years since the klan was politically powerful in a score of states and dominant in half a dozen of them. Passion and prejudice against the Negro are always smoldering and can burst into flame at any moment. If that moment comes the existence of an independent judiciary, determined to enforce the mandate of the constitution against a President, a congress, and popular passion, will save the Negro from the loss of his rights as a man and as a citizen. The existence of a subservient court at such a time might be fatal.

ALIMONY FOR THE PHILIPPINES.

The president of the Philippine commonwealth, Manuel Quezon, is on his way to Washington to obtain preferred tarif treatment from our government. He hopes that after complete independence is granted in 1946 the United States will continue to take large quantites of the products of his country, notably coconut oil and sugar.

President Quezon's position is somewhat ambiguous. Philippine independence was obtained, as he well knows, because congressmen from sugar producing states combined with congressmen from the dairy states and the corn belt to rid their constituents of a competitor. For years there was a small group in congress which favored Philippine independence either for reasons of sentiment or because these congressmen saw in our far eastern possessions a possible cause of war with Japan which they wished to avoid. The independence bloc made no progress until reinforced by the farm bloc. It was the economic interest of American farmers which made the passage of the bill possible. That was as plain to Philippine observers in Washington at the time as it was to everybody else. They accepted independence, knowing that it meant removing their country from its special position within the American tarif system.

Now, having obtained their decree of divorce and having waived all claims to alimony, they are seeking alimony. On the record they are entitled to no favors. The only justification for preferred treatment to the Philippines must be a clear showing that it is to our interest to grant it. If we ever were under special obligations to the Filipinos, that day is past. Today we should deal with them precisely as we would with any other foreign country.

In fact, there is much to be said for avoiding intimate economic or political relations with the Philippines. The islands are within the area which Japan regards as her sphere of influence. The Filipinos knew that, also, when they obtained their independence. Our naval force is insufficient to protect the islands from a possible Japanese aggression, yet if we tie our economy too closely to that of the Philippines we may find ourselves forced into a war from which we can gain nothing and which must be fought with the odds strongly against us. The more we entangle ourselves in the Philippines, the greater the menace of a war with Japan.

MADAM PERKINS AND THE SUBMARINES.

The Walsh-Healey act was put on the federal statute books with the active support of the American Federation of Labor and the benediction of the present secretary of labor.

The act provides that no government contract exceeding $10,000 shall be valid unless the contractor institutes a forty hour week, pays wage scales approved by the secretary of labor, eliminates workers under 18 years old from his force, and meets the secretary's pleasure as to other working conditions. That is why Miss Perkins wants it and why the industries can't take it.

These powers of telling industry how to manage its affairs explain the interest of Madam Secretary Perkins. As for the A. F. of L., it cherished the hope that this "little NRA" would revive the policy of shorter hours and higher pay, which its leaders believe to be the prescription for recovery.

The Supreme court's NRA decision made it impossible for the government to impose such standards directly. The Walsh-Healey bill was an attempt to get to the same end by indirection. Industry could not be forced to accept the desired standards in general, but it could be required to institute them on government contracts. As a practical matter, if it accepted them for government work it would have to apply them to private contracts as well.

It was not anticipated that industry, rather than let the secretary of labor run its business, would forgo the government contracts. But that has happened in the steel industry. The navy asked bids on 25,000,000 pounds of steel. It got bids on only 7,000,000 pounds. That steel was for destroyers and submarines to be built in navy yards. In the absence of deliveries, construction has been held up on the craft for nearly three months.

There are two solutions to the difficulty. In cases of emergency, the provisions of the Walsh-Healey act may be waived. To do that would be to admit that the steel industry is on a nonunion basis, since the conditions set by the act are in general those insisted upon by organized labor.

The A. F. of L., which has 4,500 members in navy yards who will get work on the ships, is willing to see the provisions of the act waived in this instance and material delivered. But John L. Lewis is trying to organize the steel industry and Secretary Perkins is loath, on his account, to do anything which might embarrass his campaign.

The other solution is offered by the terms of the naval construction bill, which allow the contracts to be turned over to private shipyards. They employ nonunion labor, in the main. If this is done the first important result of the federation's pet legislative measure will be to put 4,500 A. F. of L. members out of their jobs.

HAMS AND HAMS, FOREIGN AND NATIVE.

American farmers when they first learn of Representative Sam Dickstein and his bill in the immigration committee will be pleased to note his activities and purposes. They have been waiting for something like this.

"Don't you," Dickstein asked one of the critics of his bill, "don't you want to close up a gap in the new law which brings thousands of foreign hams into this country?"

The corn-hog farmers have heard of those hams. Their answer to Mr. Dickstein would be yes until they began to wonder why the opposition to closing the gap came from Broadway actors, singers and music and play writers. The corn-hog farmers have been led to believe from their reading of drama and art periodicals that Broadway's business was picking up and was out of the lower ham an' subsistence level, stimulated, no doubt, by Mr. Hopkins' WPA theater groups.

Gradually the farmers will learn the truth. Mr. Dickstein's thousands of foreign hams are not the hams which bother the farmer. They are the foreign artists who come over from countries where the American ham or artist is inhospitably received. He gets in only if he or she is of the highest order of talent or if no employable person is available at home.

The gap to be closed is not to protect the farm hams and the hams of Mr. Dickstein's concern are interested not with him but against him. They welcome the imports, possibly because they want to be exports.

Editorial of the Day

MEN OF SHORT MEMORY.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

The men who mold the thought and sign the decrees of present day Germany either have marvelously short memories or else feel confident that their people have. For they periodically ask the German nation to believe quite the reverse of what they were told to believe a year or two ago.

A striking case is to be found in the remarks of Dr. Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister at Berlin. "The Jews," Goebbels said, "want war, but German rearmament is frustrating them and insuring peace." The statement is, of course, a silly one and will deceive nobody outside Germany. But what is more to the point, it is the exact opposite of what Reichsfuehrer Hitler has been telling the German people for years.

According to Hitler, the Jews are pacifists. It was they who stabbed Germany in the back during the war by their pacifism. It was they who fostered the "pacifist" policy of compliance with treaties in the post-war epoch. One cannot help wondering what the loyal Nazi in the ranks will conclude with such divergent assertions dinned into his ears by two eminent practitioners of Nazi dogma.

It is not the first paradox into which their sedulously fostered hatred for the Jews has led them. Earlier, when he was building his popularity by Jew-baiting, Hitler assured the people that communism was a Jewish idea. To those who were not interested in this he said that big business in Germany was Jewish and therefore wicked.

At this distance, and with the opportunity to see both sides, we can only hope that the German people have longer memories than their fuehrers suppose, and that they are quietly preparing their minds for the eventual restoration of civilized, tolerant men to places of power in the reich.

NEW MOON.

O slender golden chalice of the night,
Hanging luminous in the dark'ning sky,
We heap within thy curvéd bowl our bright
And fragile dreams and memories; they lie
Enfolded by the clouds, swayed by the wind,
Laid on her heart who down the timeless years
Has held all loving dreams closely enshrined
Against a world too filled with wrath and tears.
Briefly we hold them; swiftly they are gone
When passes that sweet, tender, magic hour.
O deathless loveliness, lie still; the dawn
Closes the fragrant, white, night-blooming flower.
And while we turn to follow sterner drums,
Moon, guard our dreams until fulfillment comes.

THE ARDENT SUITOR.

Admittedly it has the classic flavor, but W. Dee recalls the 70 year old gentleman in Tennessee who made a proposal of marriage to the 16 year old miss, and was refused. "I can't marry you," she said; "I'm too young." The suitor sighed romantically. "All right, I'll wait," said he.

MAKING A JONAH OF EDGAR.

Edgar arrived home the worse for alcoholic wear at 3 a. m. After getting past the front door, by no means a mean feat under the circumstances, he concentrated on creeping up the stairs without disturbing his war department. All went well until he tipped over the goldfish bowl. Following a blood chilling crash, the voice of f. w. floated down to him: "Did you fall, Edgar?" The answer, with great dignity: "No, but I'll teach them goldfish not to snap at me." G. W. R.

THE GRATEFUL PATIENT.

[Hammond Times, via T. T. K.]

James Landon of Davis avenue continues to improve very satisfactorily from a major operation to which he submitted a week ago at the Wesley Memorial hospital in Chicago. Mr. Landon, who is well known and has many friends in this locality, will be pleased to know this.

YEARS AGO my mother said to me: "I am always afraid to leave the church sewing guild before the others; I'm afraid they'll say something nasty about me after I've gone." Now I'm married to the best woman in the world, but I can't cure her of gossiping. She brought home a lot of scandal from a church meeting the other night and I could not stop her by saying "sh-sh-sh." It was interesting. Frank Edwards.

THE THREE WOLVES.

IV.

'Twas Undersecretary Swivel who heard the Wolves plotting to give the country back to the Indians. Knowing that the Indians would surely scalp him, he hurried back to Washington and told each of the 1,200,000 newspaper correspondents in the capital that the three Wolves were trying to quit being Forgotten Men and ruin the age of abundance. The correspondents were so tired of hearing people cry "Wolf! Wolf!" that they paid no attention, but the word got to John L. Lewis, who misunderstood the circumstances slightly and sent 2,000 miners from West Virginia to go on a sitdown strike against the Wolves. The shack was mighty crowded with 2,003 people in it, but the Wolves said they wouldn't get up till somebody gave them a square meal and the miners said they wouldn't until they knew what it was all about. Finally the Sec. of Labor arranged a compromise; the Wolves got a ham and egg sandwich apiece and the miners were told it was a Pyrrhic victory. . . . "This just shows us," said Woof-Woof to Ba-Ba and Boo-Boo, "that we can't bite the whole world. I've got an idea. We'll write a book." Boo-Boo said everybody already was writing a book. "Not this book," said Woof-Woof. "Little puny books with only 1,000 to 1,200 pages. We'll write THE book, one with 2,400 pages." . . . "Yipee," cried the other Wolves. That night they wrote the book and the next day it was published. The following Saturday they collected their royalties of about two million dollars and on Monday, when the negotiations for the tomato can shack opened, the three Wolves were in Hollywood bargaining for a carload of Little Red Riding Hoods to sit with them on the next strike.

INFORMAL ROMANCE.

The young woman was standing in Michigan avenue, leash in hand. Her dog stood on a narrow runner of frozen grass. Both were well dressed; she in a fur coat, the pooch in a red wool blanket. The young man stopped and took off his hat. "Excuse me," he said; "I don't think your dog is well. If he doesn't get enough exercise try a little bran in his food." The young woman started with a frown, then unfroze, raised an eyebrow and smiled. "Thank you," she said. The young man took a few steps and turned back. "Considering the size of the dog," he suggested, "I'd say not over half a teaspoonful." She nodded. That was all. Mt. Joy.

ATTACK SQUINT EARLY.

FEW of us realize that most persons who squint—whose eyes are crossed—do not see with both optics. This is a defense reaction on the part of the victim. In some individuals the vision in each is equal, that is, he can see with either eye perfectly well, but not with both at the same time. One may have lost its acuteness or have decreased so markedly as to be practically blind from disuse. The reason that we see one image with two normal eyes [binocular vision] is because the images are superimposed or fused.

Squint in children can be corrected sometimes without surgical intervention. The earlier the situation is diagnosed and treatment begun, the greater is the chance of avoiding an operation. One of the commonest causes of crossed eyes is a refractive error and this handicap can be overcome in from 20 to 40 per cent of the cases if proper glasses are worn at an early age.

It is not necessary that a child be old enough to answer questions intelligently in order to determine the presence of a refractive error. Those past the age of 18 months can be examined and the need for glasses determined. The principal indication is the presence of crossed eyes. The refraction must be accurate and drops are required to dilate the pupils. The solution used is harmless when administered by one familiar with its effects. If glasses are needed the child rapidly becomes accustomed to them.

If only a slight error of refraction is disclosed we must not anticipate that its correction will relieve the squint. Furthermore, a patient who has used proper treatment for six months without relief will probably not be benefited. We can no longer assume that the child will outgrow the condition.

Aside from the use of glasses there are other measures available. One is to restore vision to the unused eye by compelling it to look and see. This may be brought about by covering the good organ or clouding that structure through the use of some drug such as atropine. This procedure is carried out for a definite length of time each day and will be followed by considerable improvement in a fair percentage of cases.

At first the youngster will be unable to navigate, but he soon becomes able to use the defective eye unless the vision is exceedingly poor. The greatest gain is observed in very young children who are treated by occlusion of the better orb. After the age of 7 benefit is less marked, but some may be obtained up to the age of 10.

Another method of treatment is the training of both eyes to see together, that is, to fuse objects. Instruments such as the stereoscope and its various modifications are of value in this work, but training and intelligence on the part of the physician and the parents are essential. With some children such education may be begun at the age of 4, but in others is impossible until the age of 5 or 6.

Surgery required to bring the abnormal eyeball into line with its normal fellow is not serious or fraught with danger. Again, this course, if it becomes necessary, should be carried out early. Children 3 years of age make suitable subjects. It should be applied to youngsters 4 or 5 years of age only after other plans have been given a trial. Occasionally more than one operation is called for.

It is often desirable to follow corrective surgery by additional training through the use of special glasses. In this manner patients who have been unable previously to fuse images can now do so and they must be taught to use both eyes together. When such postoperative training is given it is possible in a large number of instances to restore good binocular vision. When it is not employed there is a tendency to revert to the abnormal position of the eyes.

Patients frequently wish to know if glasses can be discarded after such an operation. The answer is yes! with those who have only low errors of refraction so that vision is good without glasses. Many persons still require glasses for good sight and will need them, just as would be the case if the eyes had never been crossed.

BLOCKING OF ARTERIES.

Mrs. T. writes: My 12 year old boy has Friedlaender's disease. Will you write something on this affliction?

REPLY.

Friedlaender's disease, or thromboangiitis obliterans, is a chronic blocking which affects the medium sized arteries, chiefly those of the lower limbs. It is found commonly in males and begins ordinarily about the age of 40. As a rule, the first symptom to attract attention is pain in the muscles. Blanching and chilling of the parts may precede the symptom. It is chronic and tends to progress. The disease may develop in young persons as the result of various exciting factors, such as cold, lead poisoning, and various infections.

DRINKING MILK.

G. R. H. writes: I used to drink a great deal of milk as a boy, but now it sours in my stomach, even when taken with a meal. I have gas on my stomach when I am hungry and sometimes suffer from nausea.

REPLY.

Milk sours and curdles as soon as it reaches the stomach. If digestion is normal, however, one is not aware of the fact. You evidently have symptoms of indigestion.

If milk does not agree with you why drink it? You can get the same amount of nourishment from custards, puddings, etc. Sometimes if gas producing foods are omitted from the diet some relief is obtained. Vegetables of the cabbage family increase gas.

LET SURGEON DECIDE.

H. S. writes: I was operated on for hernia several months ago. Should I wear a truss?

REPLY.

The surgeon who operated upon you should tell you what type of aftercare is best in your case. Sometimes extra support is called for, although some patients are all right without it.

It all depends upon the condition after operation. If you need a truss your physician will recommend it and see that you are fitted properly.

A MODERATE AMOUNT.

M. E. writes: Is it all right for one with kidney trouble to drink coffee?

REPLY.

Yes, a moderate amount may be included in the diet.

ON THE CHIN AGAIN?

From the Tribune's Columns

20 Years Ago Today

FEBRUARY 20, 1917.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Maj. Gen. Frederick Funston, commander of the department of the southwest and responsible for the direction of all the troops, regulars and guardsmen, on the border, died in the lobby of a hotel here while talking with a group of friends with whom he had dinner a few minutes earlier. Apparently he had been in the best of health, with the exception of an attack of acute indigestion two weeks ago. Ever since last March when he was placed in command of all United States forces on the border he had worked at an unusual pace. He was 52 years old. Maj. Gen. John J. Pershing will succeed him in command of the division. Gen. Funston made an enviable record in Cuba during the Spanish-American war and later in the Philippines, where he captured the rebellious Aguinaldo after a long campaign through the jungles.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Mrs. Frederick Funston, who is living here with her three children at the Presidio, was informed by Maj. Gen. J. Franklin Bell of the death of Gen. Funston. She is prostrated. She and the children came here a month ago from Fort Sam Houston to escape the southern heat.

WASHINGTON.—It was stated at the White House that President Wilson is marking time until the Berlin government discloses its intentions in regard to the treatment of Americans and American ships in the submarine war zones, although his appearance before congress any day to obtain authority for further action against Germany would occasion no surprise.

COPENHAGEN. — Four hundred Americans are stranded here waiting anxiously for some development in the trans-Atlantic trafic situation which will make it possible for them to sail for home before they are thrown on public relief. These 400 are in addition to the small diplomatic body accompanying Charles J. Vopicka of Chicago, the American minister to the Balkan states, recently ordered home.

WASHINGTON.—The senate concluded debate on the administration bill to punish espionage, violations of neutrality and conspiracies by agents or sympathizers of foreign governments. Passage of the measure is expected tomorrow. A poll of 35 senators present showed a large majority in favor of what is known as the "spy bill."

CHICAGO.—The city council ordered an investigation of the alleged "seditious" utterances made in public statements by John C. Kennedy, Socialist alderman from the 27th ward. Ald. W. E. Rodriguez, Ald. Kennedy's Socialist colleague, said he would like to be included in the investigation as his name had been included in the charges.

WAR SUMMARY.—The British report the capture of two lines of Turkish trenches on a wide frontage in the Tigris field. One heavy Turkish counterattack was unsuccessful, but a second forced the right back of the British to the original line.

STREET PARKING.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Kindly advise just how much power city law or state law has regarding parking on wrong side of street.

2. What is the penalty, if any?

3. In case of accident—whether parked for night or day [motor running or not], rear end away from curb [or front], or too far from curb—what can be done? Which party is in wrong—the one parked or the one who strikes the parked car?

4. What should a person do if he runs into a car parked wrong by accident and there is damage or even injury?

J. E. M.

1. It is controled by section 2018 of the city code.
2. We find no provision for a penalty.
3. Depends on all of the facts as to negligence and as to what caused the accident.

THE FARLEY DINNER INTERPRETED.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Did Willard Edwards give us the exact significance of the Jim Farley dinner? He seemed to attach too much importance to the farewell air.

It seems this dinner was most timely, a call by the President for renewal of "loyalty to friends which results in loyalty from friends" being very noticeably stressed. His reversal from his very recent demands for "immediate action" on the Supreme court to his later instructions not to hurry the matter in order that public opinion will be able to crystalize can mean but one thing: Time for Jim Farley [the greatest of organizers] and others to put out a campaign of propaganda, and to again maneuver the administration's wishes and demands down through the arteries, veins and capillaries of their entire organization and back after contacts with renewed strength to win their point.

Our only hope is that many attending that dinner, and other New Dealers throughout our land, who are at present so utterly opposed to the Roosevelt Supreme court plan, will remain unmoved in their stand by pressure or any scheme.

H. Randolph Girault.

THE HAPHAZARD LAW.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Judging from all the raving about the Supreme court it would seem that some people think the law is an exact science. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Anybody who has had even the most elementary association with the study of law knows that it is the most haphazard outgrowth within the realm of thought. Exact sciences are ruled by the laws of nature; nothing rules the vagaries of the so-called human mind. The differences in the laws of the various states on real estate, divorce, commerce, etc., are a joke, and even The Tribune truck laments the idiosyncrasies of the trafic laws.

The world is becoming so small and interdependent that laws affecting the general welfare must be more uniform and this cannot possibly come about as long as local myopia controls them. The writer has no revolutionary tendencies, and believes that the American way will work the matter out, but in his opinion the American way is the progressive way, based on the principle of the Declaration of Independence and the rights of man.

All theories of Utopia notwithstanding, improvement in the affairs of man will come only with the improvement of his social thought. As long as big business is allowed to play poker with economics the players will try to outbluff and beat each other. They do not trust one another, and the rule is to get the other fellow's roll before he gets yours. This very atmosphere forces us all to become gamblers. A. W. Schonne.

THE MANDATE.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Mr. Roosevelt speaks of the last election as a mandate to him to put through the legislation found unconstitutional by the present Supreme court. I wonder if it ever occurred to him that many may have voted for him because the Supreme court was so successful in keeping his legislation within constitutional bounds. They believed in the Supreme court. J. W. Young.

A RESPONSIVE COURT.

Racine, Wis., Feb. 17.—In order to make a Supreme court more responsive to public opinion, why not have congress pass a bill allowing the President to appoint one judge from each congressional district? The term of the judge should be just one year, and no judge should be eligible for reappointment.

I am sure Mr. Farley would greatly approve of this plan. R. G. Harvey Jr.

FOR MORE SWEEPING CHANGES.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—I cannot understand so much controversy and delay over the insignificant change in the status of the Supreme court. As a matter of fact the entire constitution should be changed and modernized to be more in agreement with the needs of modern life, and the Supreme court should not be allowed to revoke acts of the congress.

Everybody knows that the constitution and the Supreme court were made 150 years ago to serve the needs of another era. Since that time radical changes have been made in the mode of life. So why not revise the constitution and the Supreme court to conform with the present needs of life?

In last November's election the people overwhelmingly voted a Democratic congress to coöperate with our beloved great humanitarian President Roosevelt, and as a protest of the interference of the Supreme court with the liberal legislation enacted by the congress.

So now why should some members of the elected congress revolt against our great President's noble efforts?

A. Belasco.

LUTZEN AND WATERLOO.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—On the map in last Sunday's Tribune accompanying the article by Liddell Hart it says that on Nov. 17, 1632, the Germans defeated the Swedes under Gustaf Adolph, which is not correct. The Swedes defeated the imperialists under Wallenstein, the imperialists flying in disorder and the Swedes remaining in possession of the field.

In the reading matter the statement is made that the duke of Wellington was the conqueror of Napoleon. If it had not been for Blucher and the timely arrival of the Prussians Napoleon would have been the conqueror, as the duke was in a bad way, with his center broken and with no adequate reserves to throw in the gap. As early as 1 o'clock in the afternoon the arrival of Buelow disarranged Napoleon's plan of battle. He was obliged to detach several squadrons to engage Buelow and protect his flank. The proper credit is never given the Prussians. J. A. Miller.

A FOUR HOUR SHOW.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Double features are a nuisance. I entered a movie at 2:45 and was shocked to find that it was 6:45 when I came out. There were two features, a comedy, a serial, newsreel and previews. Many people are complaining, but the managers do nothing.

As for the women, there is flashed a request for them to remove their hats, but some of them are either too smart or too selfish to comply.

TRIBUNE TRUCK HALTED 4 TIMES ON ARIZONA RUN

Indiana Driver Ordered to Buy $124 Plates.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—In 171 miles of Arizona travel the Tribune trafic survey truck has been stopped four times for questioning by state authorities. It is part of a vigorous enforcement of rigorous motor vehicle regulations that have given this state a reputation as a barrier to highway transportation between the Pacific coast and the Mississippi valley.

A cursory investigation indicates that passenger car operators are likewise subjected to petty annoyances with an occasional serious abuse of their rights as law abiding citizens. And this in a state where the tourist trade rivals mining and live stock as an economic mainstay.

The crew of the survey truck was aware of this Arizona reputation as the vehicle rolled westward in U. S. 80 after surrendering New Mexican clearance papers at a port of entry at Lordsburg, N. M.

Papers Are Scanned.

At a shack in a broad desert valley of red rocks spotted with green cactus we were commanded to halt. A uniformed inspector scrutinized ownership, registration and cargo papers, and had the semi-trailer van opened for a peek inside.

An Indiana truck was parked off the highway, its driver held for the purchase of $124 Arizona plates for a single crossing of the state.

We were permitted to proceed, informed that our load of used furniture, owned by the truck operator, was about the only freight movement across Arizona exempted from paying a full year's registration fee in this state. Losing altitude as we headed south toward the border town of Douglas, walking cane and prickly pear cactus, and the thorny ocotillo grew higher as we continued.

Again we were halted. Khaki clad men with stars weighed the vehicle on portable scales while another asked questions about the origin and destination of the trip and the cargo —part of a state trafic survey.

Demand Whole Year's Fees.

We passed through Bisbee and Tombstone and at Tucson were halted for our fourth questioning.

"It's all part of our system," said Sergt. O. C. Robertson, in command of the highway patrol for the southern district. "All common carriers, contract carriers and private carriers using our highways for profit for a day or for a year are required to have our license plates. There are no temporary permits and a whole year's fee must be paid."

PROPOSE $1,000 REWARD IN HUNT FOR BOY SLAYER

A reward of $1,000 for the apprehension or information leading to the apprehension of the murderer of Roger Loomis, 5 years old, was recommended yesterday by the finance committee of the Du Page county board of supervisors. The proposal that the reward be offered was made by State's Attorney Russell W. Keeney, who believes it will be approved by the entire board at its next meeting, March 2.

The Loomis boy disappeared on Feb. 4 from the residence of his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Loomis, at 140 West Grove street, Lombard. He was found in a lonely section of the village the next morning strangled to death.

Yesterday State's Attorney Keeney announced that after taking statements from mor than 100 persons concerning the case he had obtained "nothing of value."

DIVORCED, WED AND SEPARATED BY SAME JUDGE

When Judge Phillip J. Finnegan of the Circuit court awarded Mrs. Vera Corrigan, 40 years old, 1326 West 97th place, $100 a month yesterday on her separate maintenance suit against Elmer Corrigan of 4753 Broadway, a building engineer, he thought he recognized the couple.

"Haven't I seen you before?" Judge Finnegan asked.

"You have," replied Attorney Norman Becker, counsel for the wife. "On Feb. 9, 1936, you remarried them. Four years before on Dec. 7, 1932, you gave Mrs. Corrigan a divorce. They were first married on July 7, 1917. Since the last marriage twins have been born. Now they have four children."

LINDYS PAUSE IN ARABIA ON AIR TOUR OF EAST

KARACHI, India, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The Charles A. Lindberghs tonight paused at one of the least visited spots on the globe in their air tour of the near and middle east.

Flying early today from Bushire, Iran [Persia], the famous couple landed at 1:30 p. m. Greenwich mean time [7:30 a. m. Chicago time], at Gwadur, on the northern coast of the Arabian sea about 300 miles west of Karachi.

Col. Lindbergh said he would continue the flight tomorrow. Karachi is the next stopping place.

EIGHTH INQUEST FAILS TO TURN UP MRS. FREED

Mrs. Ruth Freed, sought as the chief suspect in the killing of Audrey Vallette, party girl, remained in hiding yesterday. For the eighth time the coroner's inquest was convened at the county morgue and when Mrs. Freed failed again to make an appearance, it was continued until March 23.

Miss Vallette was shot to death last July 3 in her apartment at 1211 North La Salle street. Police and Capt. Dan Gilbert of the state's attorney's office have announced they want to question Mrs. Freed because [1] she was identified from pictures as the woman who left the building after the slaying and [2] Miss Vallette's diary indicated that Miss Vallette and Mrs. Freed's husband were friendly.

Field's diarist broadcasts the news from Paris for

YOUNG CHICAGO

Sizes 11 to 17

Our Cheerio Club listened in this week to a fashion broadcast from Paris. The lady talker made it definite that spring and Easter have gone all romantic, fashion wide. You have to look like the fairy books with flowers and all sorts of garden variety of life. It's pretty thrilling because there are even flourishing birds, ribbons, fluffy lace trims and prints by the carload. And, above all, she said, every smart young thing should fill her wardrobe with rainbows. It all convinced me that Paris hasn't a thing on Field's Junior and Petite Miss Fashions. They've got every Paris "must"!

Junior and Petite Miss Fashions—Sixth Floor, South, State

DOTTY COCKED HER HEAD proudly when Paris said navy was rampant. No wonder! She had on Field's new waffle sheer navy dress with pique lacing. (Black, brown, navy. 11 to 17.) $16.95

FRANCES BEAMED when gray with mahogany-red was broadcast as tops in color pairs. Her cute Field's dress was in those colors! (It also comes in aqua or navy with mahogany or beige with terra cotta. 11 to 17.) $12.95

YOU COULDN'T TOUCH GERT with a ten-foot pole after the lady said her guardsman type of sheer woolen dress was the rage. (It comes in gray, rose or powder with navy, or beige and black. 11 to 17.) $15

SWING-IE SAILOR $5.95

Shiny patent cloth is about the smartest thing a Young Chicagoan can wear on her head. Here it is used for a swagger sailor with small, flat crown, narrow brim and trimmings of flowers, veils or what-have-you. Choose from many bright colors. $5.95

Moderately Priced Hats
Fifth Floor, Middle, State

CHERRIES for the holidays and all through spring. Cherries to put on your suit lapel, on your hat, pinned to your scarf, slipped through your bracelet—oh, dozens of ways. 50c to 95c

PALL MALL

THE MODERN BLEND

A cigarette without a secret

Pall Mall, The Modern Blend, at 15 cents for 20, is a combination of selected domestic tobaccos enriched by the best Oriental types

The new Pall Mall is the only cigarette of its type that does derive its flavour from fine tobaccos and from nothing else. It needs no artificial flavouring or sweetening under which to hide imperfections. Naturally, its straight tobacco flavour leaves no after-taste.

Thus, Pall Mall, The Modern Blend, adheres to the simple English method used by the famous Turkish Pall Mall, long famous as "A Shilling in London, a Quarter Here."

MOTHER OF SEVEN MOVIE BALABANS DIES IN FLORIDA

Fortune Stems from Her $500 Theater Here.

Mrs. Goldie Balaban Levin.

Mrs. Goldie Balaban Levin, 67 years old, mother of seven sons who built up the 20 million dollar motion picture enterprises bearing the Balaban name, died at Miami, Fla., yesterday after a brief illness. Mrs. Levin, who lived in Chicago for more than half a century, was spending the winter in Florida. She made her home here in the Park Lane hotel.

Four of six surviving sons, Barney, John, Harry, and Elmer, and her husband, Max Levin, whom she married in 1935, were with her when she died. The two other sons are David of Chicago and A. J. Balaban of Geneva, Switzerland.

Sons in Theater World.

Barney, who lives in New York, is president of Paramount Pictures corporation. John and David are officials of the Balaban & Katz theaters. Harry and Elmer are owners of the H. & E. Balaban theaters here and in Detroit. The sixth son, A. J., has retired. The seventh, Max, died in 1932.

Mrs. Levin and her first husband, Israel Balaban, came to Chicago from Russia in 1885. They opened a small grocery on Chicago's west side and most of their children were born in the rear rooms of the store where the family lived.

Years later with a meager capital of $500, most of which was borrowed, she set up her sons in the theater business at Kedzie and Roosevelt road. The whole family worked in the theater, the mother acting as cashier. The children took tickets, ushered and cleaned up the theater.

Credit Mother for Rise.

Mrs. Levin's sons have always accorded her the credit for furnishing the inspiration and determination that eventually enabled them to build their business to its present size.

Mrs. Levin was interested in many private charities and was prominent in the affairs of Marks Nathan Jewish home, the Hebrew Theological college, the Institution for the Blind in Jerusalem and various institutions for the aged.

Funeral for Helen J. Blake, 94, to Be Held in Plattville

Funeral services for Mrs. Helen J. Blake, for more than forty years a resident of Chicago, will be held Monday at Plattville, Ill., where she was born. Mrs. Blake died Thursday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alfred Moore, in Alliance, Neb., on the eve of her 94th birthday. She had fallen while visiting her daughter during the holidays. Mrs. Blake, a widow of a civil war drummer boy, lived at 82d street and Woodlawn avenue.

Samuel G. Llewellyn Dies as He Drives in Evanston

Samuel G. Llewellyn, a salesman, of 1707 Ridge avenue, Evanston, died yesterday of a heart attack as he was driving his automobile on Ridge avenue at Dobson street in Evanston. He was 49 years old. Miss Mary Fulton, an Evanston health department nurse, saw Llewellyn try to steer his car to the curb, then collapse, just before it struck a light pole. He was pronounced dead at St. Francis hospital, Evanston.

Funeral Services Today for Mrs. Minnie Conklin

Funeral services for Mrs. Minnie Pearl Conklin, who died Thursday in the Geneva Community hospital, will be held at 1:30 p. m. today at her home in Warrenville. She was 63 years old. Mrs. Conklin was president of the Warrenville Women's club. Her husband, Edward, two daughters and four brothers survive.

Attorney W. R. Taylor Dies of Heart Ailment

Wesley Randolph Taylor of 1308 East 64th street, an attorney, died yesterday of a heart ailment in his home. He was 60 years old. A graduate of the University of Illinois, Attorney Taylor came to Chicago twenty-five years ago. Survivors are his widow, Mrs. Louise Taylor, and a son, Cecil.

HOLD BATTLE LINES IN STEEL PLANT SIEGE

Expect Action Today to Oust Sitters.

of Lake county announced in North Chicago late last night that he did not plan any further move to evict the strikers before this morning. Aitchison and Swiren went into conference in a Waukegan hotel to consider, they said, five or six plans of action.

The strikers are members of Lodge No. 66 of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America, an affiliate of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. The strike began at 3 p. m. Wednesday when the union members, failing to obtain recognition of their union by the company as bargaining agency, sent home a dozen foremen and fifty-five girl employés and seized the plant. They nailed up some of the doors and barricaded others.

Orders Sitters Taken to Court.

President Aitchison Wednesday night notified the strikers they no longer had jobs with the company. On Thursday Circuit Court Ralph J. Dady in Waukegan granted a temporary injunction calling for the sitdowners to leave the plant. They listened to a deputy sheriff read the order, then slammed the windows in his face. Then Judge Dady issued a writ of attachment, empowering Sheriff Doolittle to bring the strikers into court to show cause why they should not be cited for contempt.

To serve the writ Sheriff Doolittle had mobilized a force of 125 deputy sheriffs and policemen from North Chicago, Waukegan, and Lake Forest. At dawn they advanced on the buildings, with tear gas guns and bombs and steel battering rams. They called on the strikers to surrender.

"Come and get us!" shouted the strikers. "We'll never come out alive."

Bomb Shatters Window.

One of the deputies threw a tear gas bomb, shattering a window. Others followed. Tear gas guns were shoved through the windows and fired into the plant. But after two hours Chief Deputy Sherif Thomas Kennedy and his forces ran out of tear gas, and retreated in the face of the barrage of tools and bottles of corrosive acid thrown by the strikers. Hoots and catcalls followed the retreating deputies.

Reports were circulated that much of the $200,000 in valuable electrical machinery were damaged by the sitters. This was denied by Carl Swanson, union secretary inside the plant, who, in a statement thrown out of a window, said not one machine had been touched.

Swanson also revealed that in addition to seeking union recognition the strikers have several grievances against the company. They charge the company instituted a speedup system; that there were unjustifiable wage differences, and that spies were hired by the company.

John O'Connor of Chicago and Robert Pilkington of Washington, federal labor conciliators; A. L. McInerney, assistant to Martin Durkin, director of the state department of labor, who arrived in Waukegan at midnight, and Patrick Cullen, state mediator, attended a conference with union officials last night in the North Chicago city hall.

Adelman Blocks Plan.

They suggested that a committee of strikers be guaranteed freedom from arrest and given a chance to meet with company officials. This plan was blocked by Adelman, who insisted that he would do any negotiating for the strikers.

Attorney Swiren, speaking for the company, refused to have anything to do with outsiders. He would not accept Adelman or Leo Krzycki of Milwaukee, C. I. O. organizer, as representatives of the strikers.

Officials at Conference.

Also at the conference were Mayor John M. Dromey of North Chicago, Sherif Doolittle, and Joseph M. Jacobs of Chicago, CIO counsel. Father Julius Grzezinsai of the Holy Rosary Catholic church in North Chicago appeared to protest to union leaders over the calling of the strike.

Attorney Swiren said he had information [presumably from strikers who had left the plant] that half of the sitdowners were ready to come out, but were being intimidated by the others.

A second conference was later this morning but with the same results.

President Aitchison, in denying that any speedup system had been installed in the plant or any vital wage differences said the Fansteel corporation pays the highest wages of any industry in Lake county outside of the wire mills. He said the average was 70 cents an hour for a 40 hour week, with time and a half for overtime.

The Fansteel corporation, a pioneer in the metal alloys field, manufactures fine wire for radio tubes, electrical transformers, contact points for ignition systems and other goods in this field. In its laboratories are chemists constantly working out new alloy formulas, not only for use in the Fansteel plant, but in other industries. Large stores of chemicals are on hand in each of the company's buildings. It was from these stores the strikers obtained the acid which helped them win their fight against eviction.

A. C. O'LAUGHLIN $70,000 ESTATE WILLED TO KIN

The will of Andrew C. O'Laughlin, president of the Consumers company of Chicago who died Dec. 4 at the age of 64, disposing of a $70,000 estate was admitted to probate yesterday. Three sisters, two brothers and eight nephews and nieces are to share in the estate.

The $100,000 estate of J. Frederick Wallack, retired camera manufacturer, who died at Pasadena, Cal., on Oct. 20 at the age of 76, was willed to the widow, Louise, and a son, J. Frederick Jr.

An inventory of the estate of Theodore Hohenadel, assistant city treasurer 40 years ago, showed he left property valued at $150,000. Three sons and a daughter share the estate.

Henry S. Osborne Heirs Win in Fight for Estate

The Appellate court yesterday decided that three heirs of Henry S. Osborne, an attorney who died in 1914, have prior claims to $50,000 remaining of his $188,000 estate over five charities named by his will. The suit was brought by the Moody Bible institute and four other residuary legatees who sought to prevent payment of a bequest of $2,500 to Mrs. Grace Osborne of Melbourne, Fla., a sister-in-law, and $2,000 a year life income to each of two nieces, Mrs. Annie S. T. Hanscomb and Miss Louise Thompson of New York. The Appellate court ruling upheld a decision of Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski.

'L' Lines to Open Platform Extensions at Two Points

FATHER-IN-LAW AND FATHER DIE 15 MINUTES APART

Two deaths, 15 minutes apart, bereaved two related families in Evanston and Chicago last night.

Christopher G. Cooper, 61 years old, superintendent of the Evanston district of the Prudential Life Insurance company, died in his home at 2638 Lawndale avenue, Evanston, at 11:30 p. m. While his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Roland E. Cooper, was still at his bedside she was notified that her father, Dr. Clifton K. Timmons, 53 years old, was near death at his home, 5913 Winthrop avenue.

Mrs. Cooper reached his bedside just as he died at 11:45 p. m. His death, as was Mr. Cooper's, was caused by heart disease. Inhalator squad No. 3, called by Dr. Timmons' physician, Dr. Lester E. Bower, worked more than 30 minutes in a vain effort to revive him.

Dr. Timmons was graduated from the old Chicago College of Medicine and Surgery in 1910. He has been on the staf of the Illinois Masonic hospital for many years. Dr. Timmons was a fellow the American Medical association and a member of the Chicago and Illinois Medical Societies.

Samuel Rusnak, Pioneer Furniture Dealer, Dies

Samuel Rusnak, pioneer Chicago furniture dealer and president of Rusnak Brothers, Inc., died Thursday at Miami Beach, Fla. He was 70 years old and lived at 4300 Lake Shore drive. Mr. Rusnak had been engaged in the manufacturing and retail furniture business for the last 45 years. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Ella Rusnak, and two sons, Earl and Raymond Rusnak. Funeral services will be held Monday at Rosehill cemetery.

18,000 PASS ANOTHER PAYLESS PAY DAY IN CITY'S SCHOOLS

Eighteen thousand teachers and other school employés passed another payless pay day yesterday as the board of education's $45,000,000 pegged levy, passed by the legislature, awaited the signature of the governor. James B. McCahey, local president, declared another pay day will be skipped on March 5 before the machinery for obtaining necessary funds will have been set up. On March 8, Mr. McCahey said, checks totaling $6,000,000 in back pay will be ready for the employés.

14 of Men Accused from Outside Points.

Anderson, Ind., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Nineteen men, all members or sympathizers of the United Automobile Workers' union, were indicted here today on charges of rout and riot by a Madison county grand jury which is investigating the bitter labor clashes that brought martial law to Anderson.

The indictments were returned soon after military authorities turned custody of the men over to civil officers. The defendants had been military prisoners since their arrest following a fight last Saturday in which several men were wounded.

Fourteen Are Outsiders.

The violence occured at a south side tavern where union and non-union forces met Saturday. The county has been under martial law since then.

Only five of the men indicted are from this vicinity. One is from New York City and the others are from Flint, Mich., strike "capital" of the union's widespread automotive strike against General Motors. Two local General Motors factories — Delco Remy and Guide Lamp—were affected but are now operating full force.

Strikers Return to Jobs.

Morrison, Ill., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—About 200 striking employés of the Ice Cooling Appliance corporation returned to their jobs this afternoon without the five cents an hour wage increase for which they walked out yesterday morning.

Want Informer Fired.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—A demand that General Motors agree to discharge all known "stool pigeons" will be added to other odds and ends still unsettled from the recent widespread automotive strike, union leaders announced tonight as they ended four days of conferences on these issues with corporation officials.

Meantime, more than 2,000 strikers, most of them women, held possession of five Detroit factories in efforts to enforce demands for wage increases.

The most women involved in any one of the labor disputes was at the Webster-Eisenlohr, Inc., cigar plant, where more than 500 of them had held the three story factory since noon Wednesday.

3 Die as Souvenir Shell on Exhibition Blows Up

BILBAO, Spain, Feb. 19. — (AP) — Three leaders of the Unified Socialist Youth organization, visiting Bilboa on a political mission, were killed today when a souvenir shell burst while on exhibition to visitors at the party headquarters.

JURIST REBUKES SITDOWN STRIKE AS DISORDERLY

New York, Feb. 19.—[Special.]—In a decision in the Bronx Magistrate's court today Magistrate William Klapp upheld the right of property owners to bring actions against sitdown strikers by finding seven such strikers guilty of disorderly conduct.

On the motion of the complainant the magistrate gave the seven men suspended sentences after trying without success to obtain promises that they would not participate in such strikes again. He warned them he would fine them if they were brought before him again on similar charges.

The seven defendants participated in a sitdown strike in a large apartment house from last Sunday until day before yesterday when they were arrested.

Sues Chicago Heights for Injury from Gun

Miss Clara Pavone of 1209 5th avenue, Chicago Heights, yesterday filed suit for $5,000 in the Circuit court against the suburb. On July 31, the bill charged, a policeman tried to shoot a dog in front of her home, but a shotgun pellet struck Miss Pavone in the left arm

IRON AND STEEL UNION DRIVE IS ON IN TRENTON

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—"The president wants you to join the union."

With this unqualified declaration in bold type across the top of its circulars, the steel workers organizing committee of the Committee for Industrial Organization has undertaken to recruit employés of three large Trenton companies as members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers of North America.

Workers have received circulars back of which appears in large type: "A message to you from the president."

There is nothing in the wording of the envelope or circular to indicate what "president" is meant, but the text of the circular might easily lead the workers to assume the reference was to President Roosevelt.

FUGITIVE WARANT DISMISSED.

A fugitive warant against Edward E. Arken, 40 years old, of 1640 East 50th street, was dismissed in Felony court yesterday when Judge Frank M. Padden was informed a larceny charge had been withdrawn in New York City.

HARDING'S GUARD ENDS OWN LIFE IN MICHIGAN HOME

Former Secret Service Chief at New York.

Mount Clemens, Mich., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Alan G. Straight, 52, former director of the secret service division at New York and Michigan state police commissioner, was found shot to death tonight in his home here. Coroner John J. Stark returned a verdict of sulcide. Straight was police chief here from 1916 to 1921, then entered the secret service at Washington. He was a personal bodyguard of President Warren G. Harding.

Straight returned to Michigan in 1925 to become commissioner of public safety, in charge of the state police, and later was assistant federal prohibition administrator for Ohio and Michigan. In 1929 Straight was appointed head of the New York secret service district. He returned here to live a few years later.

Straight was born in Cattaraugus, N. Y. As a young man he worked for his father, the late Charles D. Straight, publisher of the Olean, N. Y. Times. Upon coming here in 1908 he worked on the Mount Clemens Daily Leader.

The widow and a son, Alan Jr., 17, survive.

ESTATE OF T. R. SHRINKS 10 PCT. IN SIX YEARS

New York, Feb. 19.—(AP)—An accounting filed in Nassau County court today in connection with the appointment of a new trustee said the estate of the late Theodore Roosevelt shrank $89,844, or 10 per cent, in value in the period from 1930 to 1936.

The accounting listed the value of the estate as $997,056 on Oct. 27, 1930, and $908,056 on Oct. 8, 1936. Roosevelt, who died in 1919, left the estate in trust, with the income going to his widow, Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt.

The estate's income during the six year period, said the accounting, totaled $196,148, of which Mrs. Roosevelt received $166,159.

The accounting said George Emlen Roosevelt, one of the three original trustees of the estate, had asked to be relieved of his duties because of the press of other business and nominated as his successor William Cruikshank of New York.

The other trustees are Mrs. Roosevelt, the widow, and the Guaranty Trust company, the trust company having been named in 1930 when Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. resigned as one of the three original trustees.

TWO CONVICTED OF VOTE FRAUD IN KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Two Kansas City election workers, who allegedly would not permit a counting of votes in one precinct in last November's general election, were convicted of a vote fraud conspiracy by a Federal court jury today.

The defendants are Edwin M. Walker, Democratic judge in the 13th precinct of the 12th ward, and John H. Drummond, precinct captain.

The jury reported it was unable to reach a verdict in the cases of three other defendants accused in the same fraud plot. They are Mrs. Anna V. O'Loughlin, Democratic clerk; Miss Loretta McEntee, Democratic judge, and Elijah Burke, Republican judge.

The five were among 75 election officials and precinct workers indicted by a federal grand jury in a sweeping investigation of wholesale vote frauds alleged to have been perpetrated on Kansas City, which is controled by a Democratic political machine.

They were accused of miscounting votes in the congressional contest won by Jasper Bell, Democrat, against Paul R. Byrum, Republican

SCHOOL TEACHER KILLED BY TRAIN IN RIVER FOREST

Mrs. Adella Dawson, 63 years old, a teacher in the Sayre school, 1850 North Newland avenue, was killed by a North Western passenger train last evening while taking a short cut to her home at 739 Ashland avenue, River Forest.

She had been shopping in the loop, police learned, and rode on a Lake street elevated train to the end of the line in Forest Park. The "L" station is just south of the North Western tracks, which are elevated at this point. Police surmised Mrs. Dawson walked along a switch track to reach the top of the North Western embankment, and then west along the tracks, intending to descend the stairs at the Lathrop avenue station.

Dogs Attack Alcohol Tax Unit Agents During Raid

Agents of the federal alcohol tax unit under E. C. Yellowley yesterday raided a house at 1220 Harrison street and seized two 100 gallon stills, fifty barrels of mash, and five gallons of alcohol. During the commotion two large police dogs attacked the agents and Richard J. Fuchtwanger, 5427 Hyde Park avenue, one of the agents, was bitten in the leg. He was taken to the Marine hospital. The dogs were turned over to the city health department for observation.

Two Bandits Get $240 in Holdup of Fruit Market

Two armed men shortly before midnight walked into the State Public Fruit market, 5832 West Madison street, forced the proprietor, Thomas Duckos, 20 South Waller avenue, into a rear room, tied him up, and escaped with $240. The Austin police were notified.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Remember a few years back when you couldn't tune in your favorite program without having Gracie Allen cut in and inquire about her missing brother? Well that seems to be what is happening currently with the Jack Benny-Fred Allen feud. It doesn't matter when or where you tune in, some one will be trying to horn in on this battle of the kilocycles. It's ballooned into amazing proportions, and if some of those trying to climb onto the band wagon don't drop off shortly it will soon become a pretty boring business to everybody.

But right now its going great and more persons are excited over it than ever heard of the Hatfield-McCoy feud. Ben Bernie, who has his own feud with Walter Winchell to maintain, has been having a lot of fun with it, and Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, George Jessel, Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, and Maj. Bowes have all joined in the argument as to whether Benny can play "The Bee" or not.

Alexander Woollcott and Boake Carter, too, are giving recognition to the stunt by starting a little argument between themselves.

In Chicago the sympathy seems to be largely with Benny. After all he's a Waukegan chap, hence practically a home town boy. Next Thursday on the Jamboree broadcast, Chicago and Waukegan are going to coöperate in a special show designed to vindicate Benny's reputation as a violinist. Mayor Mencel Talcott of Waukegan will journey in to local studios to tell what he knows of Jack's early manifestations of musical virtuosity.

Roy Shield, NBC musical director, has expanded the violin finger exercise that Jack usually warms up on, into a Triple X number which he calls "Swing Etude." It has more fancy embellishments than a Kostelanetz arrangement, according to advance reports, and will go far to crystalize public sentiment in Benny's favor.

Maj. Bowes, by the way, is to salute Chicago on March 4 in connection with its celebration of Charter Jubilee Centennial day. You don't hear much talk nowadays about the major's crusade to make young America over, but he is still hard at work every Thursday evening. A spokesman yesterday declared that he still has a mighty following.

Jerry Marlowe and Irma Lyon, NBC pianists, are performing at the Chicago theater this week. They have a five piano combination built around them and are offering a specialty of George Gershwin tunes.

The Hoosier Hot Shots, who play "mountain music" on the National Barn Dance, are planning to go to Hollywood next week with their saucepans, washboards, cowbells, and whistles to make music for "Mountain Music," the next picture Bob Burns and Martha Raye are to make.

JOHN ICKES TELLS THE JUDGE WHAT HIS BROTHER SAID

Talks that "Brother Harold" had with other politicians about his pay roll troubles were included yesterday in the testimony of John Ickes, 2061 Humboldt boulevard, before Judge W. Joe Hill of Benton, sitting in the Superior court here. Ickes, brother of the secretary of the interior, is suing the city for his salary as chief clerk of the special assessment bureau in the board of local improvements during seven years when he was kept out of that job, plus interest on the salary he didn't get, making a total of $51,462. He was removed from his position in 1926 under pressure, Ickes charges, but obtained reinstatement through court action, on June 2, 1933. Brother Harold told him of a deal, said Ickes, which included his resignation so the late mayor, Anton J. Cermak, then county board president, could fill the job with an appointee in return for swinging the Bohemian vote to Mayor Dever. Other politicians, he said, promised to help him get adjustments of his salary losses.

BEGGAR DIES IN LOCKUP.

GUN BLAST TOLL ON BATTLESHIP 7 DEAD, 13 INJURED

San Pedro, Cal., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—The toll of lives taken in the explosion of a gun aboard the U. S. S. Wyoming during yesterday's war games was increased to seven today and it was disclosed that a total of thirteen others were wounded.

Private Sidney Emsley of Atlantic City, N. J., died aboard the hospital ship Relief today. Six other United States marines, including a captain, were killed outright by the blast.

Three names were added to the number of injured, first announced as ten. They were Privates F. L. Tanner, C. B. Powers and Ernest M. McManus.

The increases in the casualty list became known shortly after a secret board of inquest met on the Wyoming to probe the disastrous accident which occurred as the battleship was participating in mimic war operations near San Clemente Island, 50 miles out in the Pacific.

EFFECTIVE PLEA FOR LAKE HARBOR WORK PLANNED

An effective appeal for needed Chicago harbor improvements was planned yesterday by a subcommittee of the Chicago plan commission, which met to consider the war department's recent unfavorable ruling on the proposal. The improvements are sought for the entire downtown lake front from Oak street to 18th street.

"A city of four million people must have an adequate harbor at its doorway," said Hugh E. Young, chief engineer for the commission. "Our first step will be to request time in which to perfect an appeal that will pack a punch. Regulations give us only until March 6 to present the appeal, but we need another month."

Yachting and motor boating would be as popular as golf if the proper man-made facilities supplemented the fine natural setting of Chicago, Mr. Young said.

A major item in the improvements to cost a total of $4,000,000 would be a new breakwater running from Adams to 18th street.

430 BIG CASH PRIZES! SEE MONDAY'S TRIBUNE!

THE RULES FOR THE FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT SERIES

1. This contest consists of a series of "Roosevelt Crossword Puzzles." Beneath each puzzle will be found a biographical item representing an event in the life of Franklin D. Roosevelt. A certain word or words in such items will be missing. Such word or words will be found in the puzzle. You are invited to solve the puzzles, find the missing words and complete these biographical items.

2. This offer is open to everyone except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. It is free.

3. A new puzzle has been published in the Chicago Daily Tribune each weekday for 44 consecutive days. Puzzles are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do not send in each puzzle separately. Hold until you have the 44. Then send them to "Roosevelt Crosswords," Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1718, Chicago, Ill. All entries must be in by midnight March 7, 1937.

4. The Chicago Tribune offers TWO sets of cash prizes for the most nearly correctly solved, complete sets of puzzles submitted in accordance with these rules. (See the two prize lists printed here.) In selecting the winners the judges will choose first, the First Prize Winner for Prize List No. 1; next, the First Prize Winner for Prize List No. 2; next, the Second Prize Winner for Prize List No. 1; next, the Second Prize Winner for Prize List No. 2; and continue to alternate in this manner until winners have been chosen for all of the prizes enumerated in both lists. The total number of prizes to be paid hereunder will be 860 and the total sum of money $10,000.00. No contestant shall be entitled to receive more than one of the 860 prizes.

5. You do not have to solve ALL the puzzles correctly to win. Prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest.

6. No person may submit more than one entry. Entries should be sent by First Class Mail, Postage Prepaid. Each entry must be accompanied by a letter giving your name and address and stating, in 100 words or less, which event in the life of Franklin D. Roosevelt, in your opinion, is the most interesting and why. Letters will be considered only if two or more contestants submit equally correct solutions of the puzzles; in such event, letters will be judged on the basis of human interest and originality. Accuracy in solution of the puzzles will be the first consideration, however, in awarding the prizes.

7. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles. The Chicago Tribune may be examined free at its offices or at Public Libraries. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. A condition of entry is that the judges' decision shall be final. In case of a tie for any prize in Prize List No. 1 or Prize List No. 2, duplicate awards will be paid to tying contestants.

'Green Light' Is Interesting, Inspiring Film

Movie Keeps to Novel by Lloyd Douglas.

"GREEN LIGHT."
Produced by First National.
Directed by Frank Borzage.
From the novel by Lloyd C. Douglas.
Presented at the Chicago theater.

THE CAST.

Dr. Newell Paige	Errol Flynn
Phyllis Dexter	Anita Louise
Frances Ogilvie	Margaret Lindsay
Dean Harcourt	Sir Cedric Hardwicke
John Stafford	Walter Abel
Dr. Endicott	Henry O'Neill
Mrs. Dexter	Spring Byington
Pat Arlen	Erin O'Brien-Moore
Dr. Lane	Henry Kolker
Dr. Booth	Pierre Watkin
Sherif	Granville Bates
Sheep Man	Russell Simpson
A Nurse	Myrtle Stedman

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Well, I don't know just WHEN I've seen so many noble people all in one picture!

Not a villain among 'em. True, Dr. Endicott does forget duty in his panic over stock exchange losses, and, when a life is the toll for his lapse, is cowardly about shouldering blame. But, in the end he turns out to be not such a bad fellow. And, as his straying results in benefit for the masses, even if it has entailed temporary unhappiness upon individuals, realization is again brought home that all's well that ends well.

"Green Light," from the pen of Lloyd ["Magnificent Obsession" and "White Banners"] Douglas, sings of hospitals, doctors, and nurses. Mr. Douglas' son, I am told, is a physician who rigorously passes on all technicalities having to do with the medical aspects of his father's works. And so, I had a comfortable feeling that discussions having to do with blood counts, cells, hormones, germs, etc., were strictly on the up and up. Too many of these, by the way—and too long.

The "green light" refers to that something within us that starts us going again and again after we've been stopped by life's various red lights. . . . Dr. Paige's green light keeps him from telling on Dr. Endicott and spurs him on into new avenues of endeavor—new fields of comprehension—after, through no fault of his own, other lanes have been closed to him. . . . And then there's the green light of Miss Ogilvie, who loves him, but whose love is not returned. . . .

And the green light of saintly and crippled Dean Harcourt, and that of sweet, perturbed Phyllis Dexter, and of Dr. Booth, who hies him to Montana to fight the spotted fever bug. . . .

Lots and lots of green lights and all working.

The picture is aptly acted. Errol Flynn is certainly versatile. Every bit as good in the rôle of an up and coming young doctor as in that of a swashbuckling "Captain Blood." Margaret Lindsay plays her self-renunciatory rôle with fire and sand. You'll like all the players.

Also you'll find the story with its blend of romance, suspense, and psychology interesting—and inspiring after the manner of "Magnificent Obsession."

The first part of the piece is better than the last, which sort of goes on and on——.

"THE GREAT O'MALLEY."
Directed by William Dieterle.
Presented at the Avalon and Riviera theaters.

THE CAST.

Patrick Aloysius O'Malley	Pat O'Brien
Barbara Phillips	Sybil Jason
John Phillips	Humphrey Bogart
Mrs. Phillips	Frieda Inescort
Judy Nolan	Ann Sheridan
Captain Cromwell	Donald Crisp
Attorney for Defense	Henry O'Neill
Mrs. O'Malley	Mary Gordon
Mrs. Flaherty	Mabel Colcord
Father Patrick	Frank Sheridan
Miss Taylor	Lillian Harmer
Tubby	Delmar Watson
Dr. Larson	Frank Reicher

This is a nice little human drama with cops and kids and other folks who keep you interested in and liking them.

O'Malley is an officer who is a stickler for the letter of the law and can't be taught to temper justice with mercy. Until—his insistence on giving a ticket to a desperate young man on his way to the first job he's landed in months precipitates a series of tragic happenings that show the hard-boiled New York cop the light.

You see, the victim is late and another man replaces him. To get money for food for his hungry wife and little lame daughter he holds up a pawnbroker. He's sent to jail. . . . Not long after, O'Malley, shifted to school zone crossing duty by his irate captain, finds his life strangely merged with those of the family of the man who has gone to jail. . . .

Mr. O'Brien is splendid as O'Malley [a strangely humorless yahoo for an Irishman]. Sybil Jason, with her worried little face and quaint English accent, is a lovable and pathetic heroine. Other rôles are efficiently taken.

Just a simple programmer, "The Great O'Malley," but it has that definite "something" that gets under the skin of most of us.

Wedding Gown of 1883 to Be Worn Tonight

Another Bride Designs Her Own Frock.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHEN Miss Margaret Fenner and Miss Marietta Gillette take their marriage vows this evening the gowns that they and their attendants will be wearing will be of more than usual interest to the wedding guests.

Miss Fenner will wear the gown in which her grandmother was married, with her only attendant in a dress that was worn by one of the grandmother's bridesmaids, and Miss Gillette and her five attendants will wear gowns designed by the bride herself.

Miss Gillette and Howard Austin Will will be married at 8:30 o'clock at the Fortnightly club in the presence of relatives and close friends. Mr. and Mrs. William Shippen Jenks, uncle and aunt of the bride, will receive with the bride and bridegroom following the ceremony. The bride's father, Edwin F. Gillette of Pasadena, will give his daughter in marriage.

Miss Helen Gillette, who, with her sister, has been staying with Mr. and Mrs. Jenks, will be the maid of honor. The bridesmaids will include Mrs. Hyde Gillette, sister-in-law of the bride; Miss Nancy Harrison of Minneapolis, Mrs. William Jeffery Hudson of Milwaukee, and Miss Margaret Halsted of Pasadena. Seward Bowers will be best man. Ushering will be Hyde Gillette, Kenneth Montgomery, Reuben E. Swanson, and William S. Turner.

Although Miss Gillette's gown and those of her bridesmaids are the fruit of the bride's artistic talents and are brand new, of course, there nevertheless will be a bit of sentiment attached to the bride's dress. It will be trimmed with lace that belonged to her grandmother, Mrs. Augusta Bixler of San Francisco.

Mr. Gillette will return to his California home tomorrow, and Mr. and Mrs. Jenks will leave for the west coast next Wednesday to spend the remainder of the winer. Miss Helen Gillette will stay on here to continue with her dancing, for the Chicago City Opera company is putting on an occasional opera and Miss Helen is among the company's danseuses.

Also, since she is to stay on in Chicago, Miss Gillette will be able to help settle the apartment in which her sister and Mr. Will will make their home when they return from a wedding trip to Jamaica.

Old Gown Perfect Fit for Bridesmaid.

The occasions when a bride wears her grandmother's wedding gown are infrequent enough, but it is almost never that a bridesmaid's frock is preserved, too. However, Mrs. Robert C. Fenner has kept the frock worn by one of her mother's sisters at the wedding of Lillie Harris to Damon N. Coats in Springfield, Mass., in 1883. The bridesmaid's dress is the only one fit to wear of the several that Mrs. Fenner laid away in the Fenner attic with the bridal gown, and it suits perfectly Mrs. David Sampsell, who will wear it tonight.

Not one seam had to be altered to make ready the old-time bridal gown for tonight's other bride. The wedding will take place at 8:30 o'clock in the Fenner home at 1316 Church street, Evanston. The bridegroom is Robert Gregg Berry Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Berry of Shenandoah, Ia., who are here for the ceremony. Cole A. Berry will be his broth-

"JOHNNY, can you spell 'straight'?" inquired teacher. "S-t-r-a-i-g-h-t," spelled Johnny. "Good. Now what does it mean?"

Definition—Query—Noted—Altitude.

"Without ginger ale," Johnny answered.

Johnny was, we are reliably informed, the same lad who wanted to know how one could tell if WPA workers were on a sitdown strike.

SATURDAY notes from the Friday cuff. That game Mrs. Sycamore makes her guests play in "You Can't Take It with You" was played after a dinner party the other night, with hilarious results. The game—one player reads aloud a list of words and each player writes down the first word he thinks of after each word is read. Then the reactions of each player are read aloud. . . . After that a lady of the theater suggested the theater game. One person names a play, the next must name a play the title of which begins with the last letter of the title of the preceding play. Thus "High ToR" . . . "Richard the SeconD" . . . "Death Takes a HolidaY" . . . "You Can't Take It with YoU," and so on. . . . But perhaps you prefer to argue about the Supreme court.

Dorothy Aldis' new book, "Time at Her Heels," is a heart warming tale, deftly done. Its author and her husband, Graham Aldis, now are taking a Mexican holiday. . . . The pale blue plaster curtains at the windows of the new Arts club dining room, matching the pale blue plaster of the walls, are very engaging. . . . At a very elegant recent dinner party, with lobster and fowl and champagne, the dessert was a perfect, i' simple, custard the hostess called the laundress in to make. Once when the household had been without a cook for a day or two the laundress had been pressed into service, and they had discovered her heavenly custards. Now it's the favorite dessert of the house. . . . Don't miss the interesting exhibit of lithographs by Matisse at the Roullier galleries. . . . André Blum, who knew Charlotte Walker during her Texas childhood, says her first histrionic efforts were reciting the Riley poem about the goblins that'll git you if you don't watch out.

Mrs. Ben Marshall gave her husband a trailer for Christmas, but like the fellow who had to wreck his home to get out the boat he had built in the basement, Mr. Marshall, who made additions and changes in the trailer, had to do some dismantling to get it out of his garage.

GEORGE R. VINCENT, president emeritus of the Rockefeller Foundation and former president of the University of Minnesota, recently has taken to flying about the country to keep his lecture engagements. On a recent plane trip he was listening to a man of affairs gravely discussing the trend of world events when he was astounded to see the man clasp his hand to his heart, a look of fright and consternation appearing on his face. Mr. Vincent thought the altitude had affected the man's heart, but his anxiety was quieted by his companion's discovery that the fountain pen in his breast pocket had burst, due to the diminished pressure outside on the pen that had been screwed shut at sea level. The pen owner had thought for a second that he had been shot in the heart.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

A lanolin super-fatted soap we rediscovered the other day is probably just what some of you women with thin, easily irritated skins are looking for. Soaps are always something of a problem; what's perfect for one woman may be just too bad for another. It's pretty hard to guess on the soap question. Shopping around until you find the one that suits you is by far the best course.

We know a woman with skin like a blonde baby's. The soap she uses and loves and that certainly does right by her fragile complexion we can't use at all—and her skin is far more sensitive than ours. It's individual reactions that make all the difference.

But the thin skinned have one starting point in their soap hunt—they must find one that's neutral. If the skin is extremely dry they want the kind of soap that is as soothing and softening as any cleansing agent of that type can be. Soaps that take away too much of the natural oil are too trying for dry skin. It's the precious natural oil that keeps skins pliant and youthful and smooth surfaced—and that oil is hard enough to preserve without having a too harsh soap as an additional threat.

The lanolin super-fatted soap we've been experimenting with lately isn't new, but this is the season when so many of you will be glad to be reminded of it. It's a grand face soap and is inexpensive enough to be used in the bath. We've been recommending it to all our unfortunate friends who suffer from that maddening complaint, bath itch. They all report that the skin irritation is materially lessened after a few days.

It's a pleasantly fragrant soap—and one thing about it that appeals to our economical instincts is that a cake lasts a surprisingly long time.

Two Recitals by Strawinsky Set for March

Famed Composer to Play at Winnetka.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Igor Strawinsky, world famous Russian composer ["Petrouchka," "The Fire Bird," "The Rite of Spring," etc.], will appear in concert at the Dushkin school of music, Winnetka, on Wednesday and Thursday, March 3 and 4. Assisting him will be the violinist, Samuel Dushkin [brother of the head of the Dushkin school and intimately associated with the composer's concert activities] and Beveridge Webster, pianist, who played recently under Mr. Strawinsky's baton in New York.

The program on both nights promises the Strawinsky concerto for two pianos, composed in 1935. This will be followed on March 3 by the same composer's Serenata e Tarantella, and on March 4 by a group of his smaller works. The Beethoven Kreutzer sonata opens the first program, the Brahms D Minor the second.

The Chicago Light Opera company, a resident organization using both professional and nonprofessional singers, gave the first of three scheduled performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" in Kimball hall last night. The second presentation is due tonight, the final one next Monday.

Music will play an important part in the Pushkin Memorial celebration at Orchestra hall tonight. The Ukrainian chorus of Chicago, Ruth Mills, soprano; Saul Dorfman and Leon Benditzky, pianists, and David Moll, violinists, are among those scheduled to appear. The program will mark the centenary of the death of the Russian poet, Alexander Pushkin, who was killed in a duel on Feb. 10, 1837.

Offers Six Hour Day to Mothers by Using Apprenticeship Plan

New Orleans, La., Feb. 19.—(AP)—A six hour day for mothers was urged here today by Mrs. Laura Chassell Toops, faculty member of Ohio State university.

"An apprenticeship of girls with a program of supervised homework for children would be a great help to the mothers of America," she told the convention of the American Council of Guidance and Personnel Associations.

"They are sick and tired of working long hours at dishwashing, clothes washing, and housework."

Bright Colors Line Bags of Patent Lether

Make a Telling Contrast with Black.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The bright linings of the black patent lether handbags that have deluged the town are cheery enough for the darkest kind of weather. There are three styles of the bags, strap handle, pouch effect, and good looking long envelopes, all priced at three dollars.

The inside colors include gray, beige, old gold, vivid green, firetruck red, and bright blue, and they are telling contrasts against the sleek black shine of the patent lether. The envelopes have zippered compartments and at the pulling end of the zipper is a small oblong of the patent lether faced back with the gay silk lining of the bag itself—a flippant extra, but a darn good idea as a further spot of color to flutter against a dark suit or coat.

If you are hunting for hosiery to take you through sloppy weather try the good sheer, flattering things in the big assortments in the same shop where you buy the bags. Three weights are to be found with three prices, all under a dollar.

Service sheer, street sheers and dress parade sheers are offered. Some have sandal feet and a few have French clox at the sides. Not a permanent event these prices, but they'll last long enough to allow you to replenish your supplies just before the days of sloppy street crossing make the life of a stocking short and spotted.

For another dollar bill you can buy the newest bit of neckwear, one of the smartest of fake front ideas for suits. These come in a soft crushed halter neck effect. Around the lower waistline is a band or tie belt of the same print.

Both paisleys and floral patterns in spring colors are yours at this low price. A glittering rhinestone pin is included but can be omitted for severely tailored suits.

Cinnamon Buns Like These Are Works of Art

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

There is a fine art in eating a cinnamon roll properly. First one must lift the hot bun carefully in the fingers, turn it gently around and admire it from all angles, at the same time breathing in its spicy fragrance. This first step is comparable to the first step in the connoisseur's enjoyment of a fine wine and is designed to arouse the aesthetic senses as well as the digestive juices.

The next step is to break off a tiny piece of the crisp outer fold of the roll, and to nibble it daintily and casually, taking time to roll its light tenderness around on the tongue. From then on the matter grows progressively simpler as the roll is unravelled and consumed, raisin by raisin! The climax comes when the center of the roll is reached, that tenderest, most delicate morsel of all, where the fattest raisin lingers and the sugar and cinnamon are thickest. Here one should pause to admire again before consuming the final tidbit, whereafter he may be permitted a sigh and a reach for a second roll.

Only the best of cinnamon rolls, of course, are worthy of such devoted attention. Only rolls such as those which may be made with today's step-by-step recipe. And, to be truthful, the more worthy they are of such treatment, the less likely they are to get it. Two sniffs and a gobble and the first cinnamon roll has disappeared and the next is on its way!

Cinnamon Rolls

[About 30 small rolls]

1 cup milk
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons butter
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cake compressed yeast
3 tablespoons lukewarm water
2½ cups plus 2 tablespoons all purpose flour
Melted butter
Cinnamon
Raisins

1. Scald the milk and add to it the sugar, butter, and salt. Stir until the sugar is dissolved.

2. Cool the liquid to lukewarm and add the half yeast cake, which has been dissolved in the 2 tablespoons of lukewarm water. The water must not be hot, as hot liquid will kill the yeast plant and keep the dough from rising properly.

3. Sift the flour before measuring. Stir into the liquid combination enough flour to make a thick mass, and mix it vigorously together. Knead the remaining flour into the dough with the hands. The mixture should be quite soft, and only enough flour should be used to enable one to handle it easily.

4. Place the dough in a bowl, a rather warm [not hot] one, brush over the top of the dough with melted butter and cover the bowl.

5. Let the dough rise in a warm place for about 2 hours until it has doubled in bulk.

6. Turn the mixture out on a lightly floured board and give it several quick punches. Roll it out gently to the thickness of about one-quarter inch.

7. Spread with melted butter, and over the butter sprinkle a mixture of brown sugar and cinnamon and as many raisins as are desired.

8. Roll the dough up jellyroll-wise and cut in three-quarter inch slices. Place them an inch apart in a greased pan, brush the tops with butter and allow the rolls to rise about half an hour longer.

9. Bake in a hot oven [425 degrees] for 20 minutes.

Wedding Gown of 1883 to Be Worn Tonight

Another Bride Designs Her Own Frock.

er's best man, and the Rev. Harold L. Bowen of St. Mark's church will officiate.

Following a wedding trip to Nassau Mr. Berry and his bride will be at home in Evanston.

A. Watson Armours Married Year Today.

Those who took part in a fashionable wedding a year ago will meet again tonight to celebrate the first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. Watson Armour III. [Jean Schweppe]. Mr. and Mrs. Armour are entertaining at dinner in the Lake Forest home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Mrs. Armour's parents.

Mrs. James Murray Washburn, who now lives in Lake Lure, N. C., but who used to live here, is back for a visit with friends and relatives. She now is with Mrs. Harold C. Smith and later she will be with her son and his wife, the junior Murray Washburns. Dr. Washburn, who now is mayor of Lake Lure, did not accompany his wife north.

Mr. and Mrs. William Paul Martin Jr. are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter on Thursday at the Presbyterian hospital. Mrs. Martin is the former Katherine Bolger.

Seymour Morris left yesterday for a fortnight's vacation in Vero Beach, Fla., and from there will go to New York, where he expects to reside permanently. He will live at the Princeton club there.

Women Voters Will Hold Conference Here.

Mrs. William G. Hibbard will have three guests at her hospitable Winnetka home next week, Mrs. Malcolm McBride of Cleveland, Miss Florence Harrison of New London, Conn., and Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer of Bloomington, Ill. They are coming to Chicago for the personnel conference of the National League of Women Voters to be held on Wednesday and Thursday at the Palmer house.

Mrs. Robert A. Taft, who is coming from Cincinnati for the conference, will be the guest of Mrs. Frank P. Hixon in Lake Forest, and Mrs. George Gellhorn of St. Louis will visit Mrs. Louis E. Guenzel of 219 Lake Shore drive.

Mrs. Frank Loesch, Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter, Mrs. Keith Carpenter, Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee, Mrs. Ogden West, Mrs. Paul Magnuson, and Mrs. Arthur Bissell are among those who have taken tables for the luncheons on the two days of the conference.

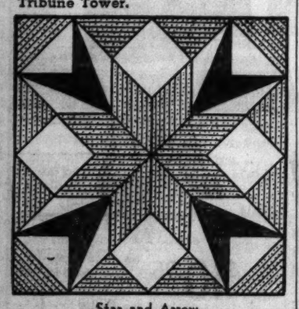
Mrs. Frank Wheeler, formerly of Chicago, is here for the week-end at the Pearson hotel, having come from her home in Pittsburgh to attend the funeral of her close friend, Mrs. Otis McGraw Howard, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Howard died suddenly from a heart attack Tuesday night just after she and Mr. Howard had returned to their home in Belden avenue from the Woman's Symphony concert at the Auditorium. She was well known in Chicago, especially among music lovers, and was greatly loved by all who knew her.

The countess of Listowel will speak on "Danger Spots in Europe" tomorrow night at the Saddle and Cycle club. Members will gather for a buffet supper at 7:30 o'clock before hearing the English woman who is on a lecture tour in this country.

Arrowheads Form Effective Design of "Star" Quilt

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.



Star and Arrow.

By NANCY CABOT.

For the many women who have pieced the various star patterns, and preferred that type of pattern to any other, have an unusual variation of the pattern today in "Star and Arrow." The arrowheads form a distinctly novel combination, since they are not often used in quilt patterns. The block is made of a combination of printed and plain materials and is set together, block to block, to form an all-over design. The finished quilt measures 91x105 inches square, with the individual blocks measuring 14 inches.

For a limited time only, Nancy Cabot offers ten quilt patterns of her own selection for 10 cents, 12 cents in stamps by mail. They may be purchased at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby, or by writing to Miss Cabot in care of the Chicago Tribune.

Jumper Frock for Juveniles

JUVENILE JUMPER DRESS.

If you have a tiny daughter who is just arriving at the age when babyish dresses are out of place, you will welcome the pattern illustrated today. It is distinctly a child's model, of course, but it is tailored just as are the frocks of Mary Ann's older sisters. This is a jumper model, a highly practical style. It is comfortable and easily washed and ironed. Buttons in groups, or in a row, trim the front of the skirt, and ruffling trims the neckline, armholes and seam down the front. With this jumper skirt is worn a pretty little blouse with a high and plain neckline and demure puffed sleeves. The original of this model is fashioned of gingham. The jumper is navy blue and the blouse is red, white and blue plaid. Peasant prints are appropriate for juveniles, too. Checks also are pretty for the little blouse. Another idea is to use a gayly sprigged cotton challis for the jumper with a harmonizing plain shade for the blouse.

Style No. 2954 is designed for sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires ⅞ yard of 39 inch material for the blouse, with 1 yard of 39 inch material and 2¼ yards of 1 inch ruffling for the jumper.

Scalp, Like Rest of Body, Needs Plenty of Exercise

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Massaging the scalp is getting to be quite a lively industry in our midst. It took a lot of urging, nagging, and sometimes threat of hair loss to put women to work with fingers on the scalp. But they finally are coming to believe the good old rule of hair care, namely, "brush hard, wash often, and massage the scalp daily."

I am delighted to report that the weekly appointments at hair dressing salons for massage treatment have grown vastly in numbers the last year or more. Good news from the hair beauty standpoint. But I guess women found for themselves that one can't keep on tucking her head under a hot-air dryer frequently, subjecting it to the permanent wave strain without its suffering dryness and perhaps other scalp ailments.

Also there has been much propaganda lately on the polish to hair that can't be acquired without some kind of massage. The brush will give it, true enough, but the massage added to the brushing gives the hair just that much more beauty.

One operator explains that the presence of dandruff made women thing seriously about whither their hair might be drifting. I know that the dandruff problem has increased tremendously lately. However, it doesn't matter how women get around to the massage idea. It is only important that they DID get around to it. The regret is that more of them aren't manipulating their fingers with firm pressure throughout the entire length, breadth, and width of the scalp. Then we'd see more heads with that luscious glow that well massaged scalps show.

If you use your brush vigorously enough, you can do a lot of scalp massaging with this mechanical massage implement. But, as said, if you will do double duty, adding the finger massage, you're bound to have brighter, more alive, glossier hair as a consequence.

If your hair tends to dryness, massage olive, almond, or coconut oil into the scalp. If it is oily, cologne water or alcohol should be rubbed in. But don't overlook the importance of the rubbing. It's the massaging that brings the glow to the scalp and sets the blood coursing through the roots.

All Influences Secondary to That of Home

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Contrary to the popular belief that parent-teacher associations are interested exclusively in school affairs, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, through its 25,000 local associations, is carrying forward an aggressive campaign for good home environment for the nation's children. Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, national president, makes that point in "Our Homes" a new book edited by Dr. Ada Hart Arlitt, professor and head of the department of child care and training, University of Cincinnati, and national chairman of parent education for the congress.

"Because of the necessity during the last few years of rallying support of the schools to keep them open, we may have seemed to overlook the importance of good homes in the educational scheme," writes Mrs. Langworthy. "During this period the morale of the home has been affected quite as much as the physical quality of it.

"It will do us little good to insist upon adequate schools if our children leave those schools to return to inadequate homes. Our parent-teacher leaders feel that this is the proper time to emphasize the home as the source of all family life, cradle of our children's character and health development, and joyful spot of reunion after absences into the world of business or education.

"The home must be made the most interesting, restful, and joy-producing environment in the consciousness of all members of the family. This will not be accomplished simply by beautiful furnishings or well equipped back yard playgrounds. Our homes must be pervaded by the spirit of hospitality, of serenity, and of pleasant industry."

Some of us who, a few years back, pounded away at the importance of home [and all that the name implies] in a child's life, were voices crying in the wilderness. So it is with a sigh of relief that we hear once again, on every side, sentiments similar to these expressed by Mrs. Langworthy.

It is because of the growing complexity of modern life that children need for balance and spiritual nourishment, a bright, sheltered, and sympathetic home.

"Understanding the Adolescent" is the name of a fully written booklet which will be sent on receipt of a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

The Effects of Climate.

A man living in Wyoming sawed a piece 12 by 12 inches from a cottonwood board one inch in thickness. After boring an auger hole through the middle of it he hung it on a nail on the side of the house. A heavy rain came, and the 12 by 12 board swelled to 13 inches square and 2 inches thick.

After the rain it turned hot. 'Twas so hot it was necessary to splice two thermometers together in order to register the altitude of the mercury. That 12 by 12 inch board shrunk up until there was nothing of it left but the auger hole hanging on the nail. —A. B., Newport avenue.

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

The take-out with two of a lower ranking suit falls into the same category as the one-over-one except that the minimum strength required can not be quite as low, eight tricks being required to make two-odd. The requirements:

One and one-half honor tricks with a five card biddable major suit; two honor tricks with a five card biddable minor suit; two and one-half honor tricks with a four card or shaded biddable suit.

With less than these requirements the responder should find a possible raise or one-over-one take-out and, failing this, should bid one no trump. Even the one and one-half honor trick minimum for showing a five card major may drive the partnership too high if the responding hand has no intermediates or support for the opener's suit, but since it is more disadvantageous to suppress information about a five card major suit the lesser of the two evils is chosen. The weak major suit take-out occurs only when the opening bid is one spade and the response is two hearts.

TODAY'S HAND.

North, dealer.

SOUTH
♠ A 10 2

♦ K Q 7
♣ 8 6 3 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the heart queen, which declarer allowed to hold. Hearts were continued, dummy's king winning, and now South returned to his hand with a diamond and took a deep club finesse, losing to East's jack. East's last heart was returned, declarer winning, and another club finesse was taken, this time losing to the king. A low spade came back and, whatever South did, he was licked, since West had to get in with the spade king and had two good hearts to run.

South had played the hand badly. The problem here, obviously, was to guard against West's heart suit, and the best method was to attack his possible outside entry. Obviously, this could not be in clubs since he was under the dummy, but if he held even one spade honor, and both club finesses lost, declarer was in danger.

The holdup of the heart on the first lead was correct, but when hearts were continued a spade finesse to the ten should have been taken. Only if West had both the outstanding spade honors, and East both the club honors, could this plan lose, and in that event no other plan would have a better chance of succeeding. With West's side entry removed at an early stage the club finesses could have been taken in safety. When they failed to work, a second spade finesse for the ninth trick would be forced.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Dealer opened the bidding with one heart. What should second hand bid with the following: ♠ K 10 9 ♥ 7 ♦ A Q J 8 4 ♣ A J 8 6?

Answer: Double. Although there are only three spades, the support for all suits is good and a take-out double best expresses the strength of the hand.

Renaissance Society Hangs New Works of Maude Phelps Hutchins

The Renaissance society of the University of Chicago did not have its usual tea to open an exhibition yesterday because the artist, Maude Phelps Hutchins [Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins] is busy being a mother rather than an artist these days. She could not be certain of being able to attend a tea. The baby daughter of the president of the university and Mrs. Hutchins is ill. But Mrs. Hutchins succeeded in visiting the galleries in Wieboldt hall for a few moments.

Dozens of people attended the opening and Mrs. Inez Cunningham Stark, president of the society, was there to receive them. The exhibition includes sculpture and drawings and many of the works have recently been returned from a one-man show at the San Francisco Museum of Art.

There are a number of portraits in the show, including one of Chicago's Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, one of Tagore and one of Henry Morgenthau of Washington.

Mrs. Hutchins has three interesting drawings of three generations of the Hutchinses, President William J. Hutchins of Berea college in Kentucky, his son, Robert and Franja, the Robert Hutchins' elder daughter.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Gerwig of 7623 Kingston avenue announce the approaching marriages next Saturday of their twin daughters, Florence Elizabeth to William A. Burns Jr. and Louise Constance to Searing W. East. The double ceremony will take place at Bond chapel at the University of Chicago. Both couples are graduates of the university.

WPA Theater Presents Drama of Depression

"THE GOOD OLD SUMMERTIME."

A play by Martin Flavin; given in the Blackstone theater Feb. 19, 1937, under the auspices of the federal theater project [WPA]. Harry Minturn, stage director.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The latest phase of WPA dramatic activities at the Blackstone theater is a drama of small town life in the middle west in the depths of the depression which bears the ironic title of "The Good Old Summertime." In New York, where it had a brief period of non-WPA acting last fall, it was called "Around the Corner." The author is Martin Flavin, whose comedy, "Broken Dishes," had a long run in the Blackstone last season.

This play, whose theme is the disintegration of average American character during the depression, may be called "dated," if you wish—the topic with which it deals has lost its timeliness. On the other hand, it may be said to have historical value as a document of a troubled era in the life of the nation. It is a minor—an exceedingly minor—contribution to the sociology of the recent painful years. Unlike many other plays that have dealt with the depression, however, it ends on a note of optimism; and it depicts its small towners as able to rally, after much bellyaching and wabbling at the knees. There is a stiffening of backbones and a decision to face the music and keep on plugging among all the characters as the curtain falls.

The scene is the home of a small hardware merchant whose establishment is crowded with depression refugees. Grandpa and grandma, ejected from their farm; son, daughter, and son-in-law, jobless fugitives from the big city, are all living on the bounty of Mr. Perkins, whose store is about ready for a sheriff's sale. Family quarrels provide the action of the earlier scenes; then the two discouraged young men of the group start some excitement by taking to whisky and theft. The Perkins ménage is apparently headed for complete disaster, but the third act changes things neatly and the clouds of the depression begin to show a silver lining.

"The Good Old Summertime" is a weak play in structure, and its chief value is its painstaking study of small town character. The cast is fairly capable.

CHINA'S DICTATOR GIVEN NEW VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Urged to Retain Office; Tells of Kidnaping.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20. — [Saturday.] —Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, dictator of the Nanking government, late yesterday appeared before the plenary convention of the central executive committee of the Kuomintang [People's] party and presented each delegate with a copy of a pamphlet in which he recorded, from memory, a day to day record of his recent captivity. Chiang was kidnaped and held prisoner at Sianfu, Shensi province, for thirteen days, ending Christmas day.

The generalissimo then presented for the third time his resignation from four posts—vice chairman of the standing committee of the central executive committee of the Kuomintang party, vice chairman of the central political council, president of the executive yuan and president of the military affairs commission.

Urged to Remain in Office.

The convention immediately rejected his resignation unanimously and urged Chiang to remain in office.

Chiang then officially informed the delegates of his position respecting the so-called program which young Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, the dictator's kidnaper, tried to compel the generalissimo to adhere to while he was a prisoner.

The points in the program included: Reorganization of the government, cessation of civil war, the release of political prisoners, a guarantee of freedom of press and assemblage, lifting the ban on popular political movements, adherence to the political will of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen [which recommended an alliance with Russia], and convocation of a national salvation conference.

Finds Program Meaningless.

Chiang declared that despite the pressure on him he refused to accept the program, which he designated as "meaningless," and that hence he even refused to take it to Nanking following his release for the purpose of presenting it through legal channels.

Local Japanese papers declared the convention rejected all the so-called Red proposals from the Chinese communists, which were submitted as a requisite for the Reds to surrender their armies and territories to Nanking's rule.

It also was said that a second proposal was adopted providing for freedom of speech, press and assemblage.

Cheered by the new government vote of confidence, Generalissimo Chiang and his wife, who was educated in America, made a joint radio appeal to the nation urging support of the "new life" program to the regeneration of the Chinese nation. Mme. Chiang spoke in English.

Dogs Have Mumps?

New York, Feb. 19.—[Special.]—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Winsett Sr. at East Rockaway, Long Island, has been placed under quarantine because their two children have mumps and their eighteen bull terriers have swollen jaws, suspiciously like mumps.

The trouble started with 8 year old Nina Winsett. She became ill with the mumps one day before her 6 year old brother, Herbert, was afflicted. Then one of eleven puppies developed a swollen jaw and was ill. Soon the jaws of the ten other pups and seven grown dogs began to swell, and they likewise were ill.

There seems to be a difference of opinion, however, over whether the dogs actually have mumps. Mr. Winsett feels that if it isn't mumps his pets have it's something "very much like it," and he has the dogs shut up in the cellar.

Dr. Thomas C. Dix, a veterinarian, threw water on this theory by telling the Winsetts that "dogs don't have the mumps." As enlarged glands are a common ailment with bull terriers, he believes the swollen jaws are just a coincidence.

1ST STREET SIGNS WILL GO UP ON CITY JUBILEE DAY

The first of 17,350 new street signs, bright yellow and black, will be erected March 4, the 100th anniversary of the incorporation of the city, to start Chicago's charter jubilee celebration. Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt in making the announcement yesterday said he has been promised delivery of a supply of signs before that date by the Federal Electric company.

Oil and gasoline companies yesterday became the second of fifty-five business, professional, and industrial groups to raise their quota of the $300,000 sought to finance the jubilee. The Phillips Petroleum company contributed $1,000, bringing the total for the group to $10,150—$150 over its quota.

MEXICAN LABOR MOVES TO KEEP CHURCHES SHUT

Syndicate Decides to Enter Into Politics.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Powerful anti-religious forces tonight threatened to disrupt conciliation of Mexico's stormy church-state controversy.

The Confederation of Workers of Mexico [CTM], strong labor syndicate which carries influence in virtually every Mexican sphere, tentatively decided to resist legal reopening of churches in Vera Cruz state. Militant Catholics recently opened the churches themselves. They had been closed —under Mexican law—for a decade.

The widely influential CTM, basically opposed to all religious expression, strengthened its potential weight in the conflict with a decision to enter openly into Mexican politics through a projected alliance with agrarian groups under the aegis of the National Revolutionary [government] party.

Kept Clear of Politics.

In it's first year—ending Sunday—as a nation-wide labor organization, the CTM exerted its influence only from the sidelines. Vicente Lombardo Toledano, secretary-general, and other confederation officers refused to authorize members to seek office on a labor platform.

Gov. Miguel Aleman of Vera Cruz, silent on his discussions with President Lazaro Cardenas on the church issue, left for Jalapa, the provincial capital. At the same time three Vera Cruz delegations from the regional Federation of Workers and Peasants [FROC], a CTM affiliate, conferred with Lombardo Toledano at Coahuila.

They disclosed the national committee of the CTM was summoned to meet Monday to decide finally on its stand in the church strife.

Fight Religious Propaganda.

CTM statutes, they pointed out, demand opposition to "all religious propaganda." The delegates declared "one of the primary duties of the CTM is to try to alienate the Mexican people from religious fanaticism inherited from the conquisadores and which is a reaction the bourgeoisie is trying to take advantage of now."

Residents of Orizaba, Vera Cruz, where the Catholics rose in "peaceful rebellion," discounted the influence the CTM might have on Aleman's expected decision.

$39 $49 $59

Here is, we have good reason to believe, a collection of British Isle coatings that is unequaled for its variety, of the finest that are loomed. It's a remarkable showing, and one you'd never expect to encounter this side of the famed tailoring establishments of London's West End, where coats of these fabrics, even though made to measure and exceedingly far more expensive, can point to no more careful hand tailoring or more distinctive styling.

Suits Priced for Clearance—Imported and Domestic Fabrics; Business and Sports Suits

Including as it does many of the fabrics and styles scheduled for reappearance this spring, is a good reason along with the sale prices in effect, why you should consider seriously the matter of seeing to your suit requirements now. There is, of course, not a complete range of sizes in all colors and patterns, but you will find a complete range of sizes in each price group, and the odds decidedly in your favor of being able to find just what you want, and at the price you want to pay.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Red Squill for Mice.

"OATS a la red squill" are being featured this week in a small, locked room in one of the stables on the Wheaton experimental farm. This new stable is free from rats as far as we can tell. A cat in the stable caught the only two ever seen around this new structure. But there are many mice feeding on grain in a small room of the granary. So John D. Griffin, the exterminator, furnished the cigar box and the granary furnished the oats to prepare an appetizing dish for these mice.

It's a simple meal. Oats plus red squill powder is all that is needed. The mice are coming into the granary through a hole that was cut for wire conduits, and they follow a regular route behind the feed grinder. All the oats close to the grinder were swept up to the other end of the small room, leaving a bare floor.

Meal Is Served.

In this area the little box containing oats and red squill powder is placed so that the incoming mice find it as soon as they scamper across the floor.

But the animals also are invited to eat before they hit the floor. A little grain doctored with red squill has been placed 'way back in the partition and on top of the wire conduits which are being used by the mice as a runway. It will be interesting to see how the animals react to these lures.

Red Squill and Hogs.

When the farmer in Chicagoland wrote us regarding the effect of red squill on hogs we had little information on this point. But now we find the experiments conducted by three biologists and pharmacologists show this to be true: A 4 month old pig weighing 35 pounds was given a capsule containing enough squill to kill 35 pounds of rats. In other words, enough squill to kill about seventy rats.

This pig was sick for two days and then recovered. It was then offered an appetizing meal of grain containing 10 per cent squill. The pig took one nibble, grunted his disgust, rubbed his snout on the walls, and refused to eat any of the stuff.

Therefore, the natural deduction is that a pig could nardly eat enough poisoned rat bait to be killed by it, and, secondly, a pig doesn't like the taste of squill so it is not likely he would eat it at all unless he was half starved.

Get Set for Mud.

When we were on the Yorkville farm the other day we noticed that the boys were all set for the mud which is certain to bother them for the next month or so. Two of the boys were wearing new overshoes with heavy rubber soles, and Louis was decked out in rubber boots which came to his knees. It was muddy in the lot where they were assembling the new pig pens, so the boots were necessary.

Clarence remarked that there probably won't be many days during the next month when the men will be able to work in ordinary shoes. The other evening a hard snowfall served as the "mud provider" since it melted almost as soon as it fell. The ground will be thawing for a few weeks to bring on more mud. . . . And by the time it quits thawing April showers will be here.

BRADDOCK, LOUIS READY FOR CASH CUSTOMERS

SONJA'S CROWDS FIND BESS GOOD ICE SKATER, TOO

Norwegian Girl Tells How Styles Differ.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Sonja Henie.

But the crowds in the Stadium last night for the second time showed that, even if they came to see her, they liked equally well to watch an almost unknown woman skater—Bess Ehrhardt. Sonja refuses to recognize it as competition, but Bess does.

In interviews yesterday both girls revealed that underneath their ladylike and icy-smooth relations toward each other, an interesting conflict of personalities is in progress.

Balks at Program.

It began the minute Sonja, accustomed to stardom in amateur sports since childhood, arrived in Chicago to be billed with a troupe of ice skaters who have toured the country. Miss Ehrhardt, who comes from Superior, Wis., and never took part in an Olympic meet, was among them.

Miss Henie looked over the program and announced that it wouldn't do. Edward Mahlke, manager of the troupe, and others worked with her for five hours, until 3 a. m., changing it to suit her. She refused among other things to follow a comedy number.

Miss Henie's attitude was summed up in the words: "Any one can be an acrobat, but not every one can be a skater. I am a skater."

Miss Ehrhardt said with equal pointedness: "I give the people what they want."

Brought Back Ten Times.

Miss Henie was brought back for encores three times after her first solo last night and Miss Ehrhardt 10 times. Miss Henie, however, did four solos and Miss Ehrhardt only one. Miss Henie will get $32,400 for five shows in four days and Miss Ehrhardt $1,000. A total of 85,000 persons will see the carnival before its closing, now that a Sunday matinée has been added to the program. The five performances will bring in $121,000 and establish a world's record for attendance at an ice carnival, Mahlke said.

Arriving at the Stadium last night swathed in mink, the lovely Sonja, smiling occasionally, dazzled fans who lined her path. She was flanked by Mama and Papa Henie, but their formidable presence apparently did not discourage one admirer who sent roses with a letter beginning: "Forgive me for being so bold as to send you roses again, but my admiration knows no bounds."

Dislikes Bare Legs.

While Mother Henie said proudly that she had been with her daughter during every hour she was on ice, even practicing, since her childhood days in Norway, Sonja wrapped her coat about her and smiled.

Although deep in mink, she wore little else, except a pair of stockings minus garters. The explanation is that she comes to the Stadium all made up, blonde curls and sweeping lashes over her brown eyes included, and ready to step into her costumes. She wears no girdle, she confided, but she always wears stockings.

"I do not like bare legs," she said. "I do not think they are nice."

"Do skaters always wear stockings?" she was asked.

"Skaters, yes. But those people in the show here—no," she said.

Her perfect cupid's bow mouth was unsmiling as she replied to a question as to whether she thought Bess Ehrhardt's skating were good.

"Splits Have No Place."

"Ah, yes," she replied with precision in her musical low voice whose slight huskiness is reminiscent of the famous Swedish film star, Greta Garbo. "That is, she does acrobatic skating. I do not do that—splits and things. I think splits have no place on ice."

Her mother spoke to her rapidly in Norwegian, but she continued with a sweet smile:

"You might as well compare Anna Pavlowa's dancing to that of some one in a circus. They are different things. But America has some nice skaters. Yes, really. Maribel Vinson [of Boston, American figure skating champion] is very good. There are better skaters in America than Bess Ehrhardt."

Sonja made it clear that any criticism that she was not as good at

Steele Whips Risko in 15 Rounds; Keeps Championship

New York, Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Freddie Steele, Tacoma boxer, successfully defended his middleweight title against Babe Risko, Syracuse, N. Y., boxer who formerly held the title, tonight in 15 unexciting rounds before a slim gathering in Madison Square Garden. Steele won 11 rounds to four for Risko.

The decision was unanimous, Referee Arthur Donovan and Judges George Kelly and Charles Lynch seeing eye to eye, as did a crowd of 6,461 customers. The receipts were only $15,686, a distinct disappointment to the promoters.

Risko Loses at Gate Also.

Risko gambled for high stakes and lost because he was slow of action. He was so eager to get Steele into the ring that he took 50 per cent of the receipts and guaranteed the champion $25,000 because he was confident he could regain the title from the man to whom he lost it. This was mistake No. 1 for Risko. He made another mistake in his brand of battle. Instead of employing the reckless abandon that is his chief ring characteristic, Risko back pedalled and fought only in flurries, against a rival who was consummately clever by comparison.

The natural result followed. Risko won only the first, fifth, sixth, and fifteenth rounds, gaining the sixth on an accidental foul. The rest went to Steele, who merited the decision because he did most of the fighting and absolutely all of the boxing.

Steele Real Champion.

Steele is a capable champion. A cool, calculating combination of boxer and fighter who fills the unfamiliar rôle of pursurer of challengers, a condition strange in the ring today. Steele proved himself master of Risko at every turn of the battle in his first appearance in New York.

Steele's most damaging punch was his right. He sank it to Risko's heart countless times, and when he shifted to the upper regions of Risko's anatomy, the right hand drive had the former champion wobbly on two distinct occasions, dangerously off balance on another, and down to his glove tips, through a combination of the punch and being off balance on a fourth occasion.

The challenger hammered Steele's body well in the first round, but after that he waned and fought only in flashes. He reserved most of his good fighting for the final round, when it was too late.

HOW TO MISS

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BYRAN GRANT proved himself a prophet before his recent match with Don Budge, America's No. 1 tennis player, at the Surf club's invitational tournament in Miami Beach. . . . "If Budge and I meet in the finals he will win in four sets," said Grant, who previously had beaten the lanky redhead twice this winter on Florida courts. . . . FIGHTERS GATHER FOR TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS

Forty-Three Teams to Be Here by Monday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The boys from the far west, Ogden, Utah, were the first to register in Chicago for the Tournament of Champions which opens Monday night at the Stadium. But this afternoon, with the arrival of the Texans from Fort Worth, the squad from Cleveland, and a dozen teams from intermediate points, the Golden Gloves army will be ready to complete preparations for competition in the world's greatest amateur boxing tournament.

Forty-three teams, comprising the best talent in the middle west, winners in a field of 21,000 boxers, will join with the Catholic Youth champions of Chicago and the Chicago sectional champions in this tournament. Chicago's representatives were chosen in two weeks of fighting in which 1,100 boys participated. The last of four Chicago groups were named in the sectionals at Loyola university and at White City Thursday night.

Teams Check In.

By tomorrow practically all of these teams will have registered at Golden Gloves headquarters. Many are planning workouts this afternoon. The others will drill immediately after arrival tomorrow. The Tournament of Champions officially opens Monday night at 6 o'clock. But six hours before that the boys in the flyweight, bantamweight, featherweight, and lightweight classes will weigh in at the Stadium. They also must pass their medical examinations.

The examinations will be held from noon until 2 o'clock. Then the pairings will be made. The luck of the draw will determine the opponents in all fights. After the first round, which will be fought between teams from centers of approximate parity in population, all survivors will be paired by lot regardless of the size of the original tournaments.

Hold Finals March 5.

First and second round bouts are on Monday's six hour program in three rings. On Tuesday evening, the boys in the welterweight, middleweight, light heavyweight, and heavyweight divisions will report for their first and second round fights. Then, on Wednesday evening, all boys will fight in the third round and quarter finals of the tournament. At the conclusion of those bouts, again held in three rings, 32 boys will remain eligible for the conclusion of the tenth tournament sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and associated newspapers.

The championships will be held at the Stadium March 5 and from that tournament will come the boys who will meet the New York Golden Gloves team in Chicago March 24.

Greatest of Tournaments.

The tournament this week, however, remains the greatest of all boxing tournaments. For number of competitors, all champions in preliminary meets; for the number of teams, and for the reasonable prices of admission, no amateur boxing

IT HAPPENS HERE AT LAST!

Winters, Cal., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Frank Demaree, Chicago Cubs outfielder, was being treated at his parents' home here today for a scalp laceration and a severely bruised left shoulder suffered Wednesday night in an automobile accident.

Dr. H. G. Potter, who closed Demaree's scalp wound with seven stitches, said the injuries were not serious and that Demaree would be able to report for spring training on schedule

Demaree's new automobile was demolished when it skidded off the highway and crashed

Minnesota to Meet Purdue for Big 10 Lead

Games Tonight

Michigan at Northwestern.
Ohio State at Chicago.
Minnesota at Purdue.
Illinois at Indiana.
Wisconsin at Iowa.
Pittsburgh at Notre Dame.
Detroit at De Paul.
Loyola at St. Francis [New York].

The close Big Ten basketball race heads into the stretch drive tonight with five games, all bearing more or less directly upon the championship, on the night's program.

Michigan, which still figures as a distinct threat, must get by Northwestern at Patten gym to stay in the running, while Ohio State's hopes rest upon the outcome of the game with Chicago on the Midway. The only game which doesn't affect a title contender is the Wisconsin-Iowa clash at Iowa City.

Minnesota vs. Purdue.

Minnesota, which clings to the lead by one game, will test the second place Boilermakers. The Gophers upset Purdue at Minneapolis two weeks ago, but since then Coach Ward Lambert's five has come back.

This game will bring together three of the leading sharpshooters in the conference. Jewell Young, Purdue's great forward, will match shots with Kundla and Addington of Minnesota.

Illinois must get past slipping Indiana to remain in the running. The Illini rule a distinct favorite over the Hoosiers. The presence of Harry Combes, who holds second place in the Big Ten scoring column, is the principal reason why Illinois is favored.

Northwestern, which hasn't won a game in its last three conference starts, will endeavor to eliminate Michigan from the race. The Wolverines defeated the Purple, 34 to 31, in their meeting at Ann Arbor.

Maroons vs. Ohio State.

Despite frequent lineup changes the Wildcats have been unable to hit the stride that marked their early season showing.

The Wildcats enter tonight's game with the possible loss of Fred Trenkle, veteran forward, who sustained a leg injury in practice Thursday night. In the event Trenkle is unable to play he will be replaced by Jake Nagode, who will be shifted from center. Jean Smith will then take over the pivot position.

Chicago's luckless Maroons will be out after their first victory in 10 games when they face Ohio State.

POSE, SIGN AND SHAKE HANDS AT CEREMONY

Foley Becomes Sole Promoter.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A great wave of relief swept over the city at 12:47 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a modern Paul Revere appeared at the door of the Roosevelt room in the La Salle hotel and shouted the startling news:

"They've signed!"

It was true. Champion James J. Braddock and Joe Louis had just put their official John Hancocks on the contract that calls for them to meet at Comiskey park on June 22 in a 15 round bout, with the world's heavyweight boxing championship at stake.

Early last night there were signs that the city's pulse was gradually returning to normal and that within a week order would be completely restored.

Any More Signings?

The only thing lacking was the assurance that there won't be several more of these signings between now and that June evening when the fight is to take place.

The first one took place some four weeks ago and the exclusive announcement was carried in the columns of THE TRIBUNE on Feb. 5 that the fight would be held at Comiskey Park on June 22.

But what earthly good is a signing for a championship prize fight that was witnessed by only ten or a dozen persons?

Joe Foley, matchmaker and promoter, quickly complied and arranged for the public signing. He invited many folks to yesterday's party.

What Goes On.

Now for the benefit of those who never have been heavyweight champion of the world or never have attended one of these numerous official signings it might be well to run over quickly what goes on at a party such as the one which opened at the stroke of 12 at the La Salle hotel yesterday.

Perish immediately the thought that it in any way resembled a pink tea party with Louis pouring at one end of a rose strewn table and Irishman Jim Braddock at the other.

In contrast, there was a definite feeling as one passed through the portals of the Roosevelt room, where the party was held, that a privileged character was entering a sanctum sanctorum where men are men and think all day long of nothing but the manly art of self-defense, rippling muscles, and the survival of the fittest. A Tarzan angle was added by the presence of Society Kid Hogan, who immediately asked: "Will it be bourbon or scotch?"

Louis Natty in Green.

Braddock and Louis were there, of course. Louis was meticulously dressed in a pale green suit with wide stripes, green shirt, green tie, and green socks. Braddock's blue serge suit appeared to need a press, his blue shirt didn't seem to fit around the collar, and the laces on one of his large brogans became untied before he got around to the business of signing the papers.

They struck the onlookers as being two splendidly trained silent specimens of physical perfection, straining at the leash to write a new chapter of boxing history.

Between the two gladiators sat Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, and Matchmaker-Promoter Foley. Behind Braddock stood his manager, verbose Joe Gould. Back of Louis was one of his managers, Julian Black.

Movie cameras clicked. A radio announcer tried to tell a waiting world what was happening. Louis yawned. Braddock scowled. Braddock signed. Then Louis did the same.

It was all over!

Relieves the Tension.

Society Kid Hogan relieved the tension by a raucous call, "What will it be, boys—bourbon or scotch? Help yourself to the spaghetti and meat balls and to the herring."

The contract revealed that Braddock has his choice of 50 per cent of the gross receipts or a $500,000 guarantee. Louis is to receive 17½ per cent of the gross less state tax and ring costs.

Should it be a million dollar gate Louis' end will be approximately $175,000.

And in the event of such a big turnout the promoters will reap a harvest of about $200,000.

Sporting Club Withdraws.

Before he permitted Braddock and Louis to sign the papers Triner made the announcement that the bout was not to be promoted by the Sporting Club of Illinois.

"There is a clause in the Sporting Club of Illinois' charter which prohibits the club from promoting any event for profit," Triner said. "So the Sporting club withdraws from any connection with the fight."

JOLIET FIVE WINS SOUTH SECTION CATHOLIC TITLE

St. George Lightweights Win on North Side.

De La Salle of Joliet, by winning from the Mt. Carmel heavyweights in the Catholic prep basketball league, 48 to 34, last night, qualified to represent the south section in the championship playoff.

The St. George lightweights who won from De Paul, 27 to 21, in two overtime periods, will represent the north section in the lightweight division.

The two winners each won seven games and lost one.

The Lake Forest heavyweights won the northwest conference title last night by routing Wauconda, 68 to 13. Hopkins and Rose scored 17 and 14 points, respectively. Lake Forest lost only one game of eleven, that to Loyden, which finished second with nine games won and two lost.

Bensenville completed its schedule of eleven games in the lightweight division without a defeat, its last victim being Grant, beaten last night, 36 to 16. Arlington Heights was runner-up, winning ten games and losing one.

Lane Tech, safely in the playoffs for the Chicago Public High school league senior basketball championship, suffered its first defeat of the season in the North section, losing to Roosevelt, 35 to 22.

Lake View, now in second place with six victories and one defeat, must win from Schurz next week to clinch the No. 2 spot in the title playoffs.

BOXERS GATHER FOR TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS

tournament ever has equalled the Tournament of Champions.

For $1.10 you may sit in a ringside seat. Other prices are 66 cents and 40 cents. There will be more than 100 bouts on Monday and Tuesday. On Wednesday there will be 96 bouts fought in the three Stadium rings. The Chicago novice championships will be held in conjunction with the Tournament of Champions. On Monday night the semi-finals will be held. The eight championship matches will be staged on Wednesday evening.

Seats Still Available.

There are excellent seats remaining for the Tournament of Champions. Tickets for the finals on March 5 also may be purchased at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and in the lobby of Tribune Tower.

The scope of this year's Tournament of Champions surpasses all others. The Atlanta, Ga., champions, for instance, come from South Carolina and Florida, as well as Georgia. Texas will compete for the first time. Ogden's champions have won laurels in tournaments as far as the Pacific coast. Minneapolis is sending boys from the northwest.

Flood Stops Fighters.

Two teams will not be present because of flood conditions in the Ohio valley. These are Louisville and Cincinnati. But Evansville, Ind., and Huntington, W. Va., will have their fighters here although their tournaments had to be postponed. Lexington, Ky., with a number of champions from the University of Kentucky and from the eastern part of the state replaces Louisville in the Tournament of Champions.

How will Chicago's boxers fare with this array of talent from 17 states? Last year only two Chicago boys won championships. Johnny Brown and Chester Rutecki now have finished amateur competition. But from the results of the C. Y. O. tournament last December, and the hard fought battles this past week, it would seem that Chicago still will be able to hold its own against all comers.

Stockings Shows Courage.

Stanley Stockings, 126 pound champion from the north section, and Nate Bolden, 160 pound north side champion, are two of the best. Bolden is regarded as a contender for the diamond studded golden glove. He won the Illinois Athletic club tournament last month.

Stockings is 20 years of age and competes for the Joe Heniff gymnasium. He received a citation from the war department for heroism during an accident at a C. C. C. camp last year. A truck went over a 35 foot embankment and Stockings, despite broken ankles, directed the rescue work which saved several lives.

Lou Packs Dried Beef and Also Packs Quite a Punch

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Lou Angelucci was back at work as usual in the stockyards yesterday, but he had plenty to think about as he went through his duties in the dried beef department of a packing house. He was jubilant over the south side Golden Gloves title he had won on the preceding evening and was making plans for some particularly hard punches he intends to land in the Tournament of Champions Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at the Chicago Stadium.

He's Still with the Army.

Angelucci, who fights in the welterweight division, is making his second appearance before Chicago's boxing public. Last year he was a member of the United States army team from Hawaii that competed in the Golden Gloves Olympic trials. He didn't quite make the grade that time, but he's back again this season with more weight and more experience. He'll be a tough customer for any one.

Angelucci was with the army in Hawaii when the Olympic trials were being conducted last year. He still has his military affiliations, representing the 124th Field artillery in the present tournament. Now he has settled down in Chicago, is married and lives at 823 East 82d street. He is 24 years old and has been boxing for four years.

Sam Wants to Be a Doctor.

He has ambitions of becoming a first class professional fighter. His performance in the south sectional trials indicates that that ambition is well founded. The going will be much tougher next week when he is thrown into the ring with Chicago's other sectional champions and winners of forty-three other sectional events in twenty states. But his pals from the 124th artillery will be in there cheering for him, convinced that, win or lose, he'll fight like a good, tough soldier.

The south side tournament brought out a number of versatile fellows with varied accomplishments. Sam Smith, for instance, is a colored, happy-go-lucky lad who sings, plays the piano and tap dances as well as he fights. He won the light heavyweight championship in the south section trials. But his real ambition is to become a doctor.

He learned to box at the Savoy Athletic club, where quite a number of colored Golden Glove stars got their training. He attends Du Sable High school, where he goes in for all sports. Sam lives at 4524 South Wabash avenue.

From Office to Ring.

Ray McDade, the south section's 118 pound champion, follows an occupation that is mighty peaceful compared to his activities in the ring. He is a comptometer operator. He is 20 years old and his ambition is to complete his education. Athletic ability runs in Ray's family, for his father was once a catcher for the Kansas City Blues.

standing that Joe Foley has arranged to act as promoter of the bout and we believe the fight could not be in more competent hands.

"Although legal technicalities prevent our club from being active in the promotion, our members will do all in their power to make the fight a success for the Chicago Centennial celebration."

"Where are you going to get the $500,000 to pay Braddock if nobody goes to your fight?" Promoter Foley was asked.

"Tex Rickard claimed that 600 millionaires backed all his promotions," Foley answered. "I'll be a bit more conservative and say that only 300 millionaires are backing this fight."

Mike Jacobs of New York, generally regarded as the actual promoter since he has a contract calling for Louis' exclusive services, was present but remained in the background near a corner of the long bar where Society Kid Hogan was being such a genial host.

"It will be a great fight," Jacobs said, but further than that he had little comment to make.

Promoter-Matchmaker Foley said he had employed Jacobs to serve as his adviser.

Plenty of what it takes

It takes a good looking girl to catch your eye and real Havana tobacco in your cigar to bring you the utmost in smoke contentment. Every Harvester has a heart of Havana, yet the price is only five cents.

USED TO COUGH

Bookkeeper: I used to cough my head off until I switched to cigars. A Harvester with a heart of Havana tastes better; and no smoker's cough.

Sugar Prefers to Stay Home, Milk Cows.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Merritt Cain, who is called Sugar because the monicker hooks up with his last name, and not because of any saccharine quality in his disposition, sought to give J. Louis Comiskey a piece of his mind in a letter received yesterday. And Mr. Comiskey, who doesn't mind friendly arguments with his hired hands, won't be bawled out by anybody without rarin' up a bit.

Sugar Cain.

"Mr. Cain will change his tune or he's out of the picture," the Sox boss said with a florid burst of sincerity. "I offered him a $1,000 raise and the guy gets tough with me. Says he'll stay in Carrollton, Ga., and mind his business rather than play for the White Sox on any such raise.

It's Sox—or His Cow.

"I am not entirely familiar with the character of Cain's business which commands so much of his valuable time. However, I gather from a picture I saw in a recent issue of THE TRIBUNE that his off season profession is milking a cow. I concede that the cow is a pretty good looking bovine but I still do not believe he can make as much money milking her as he could pitching for the White Sox. I am sure of one thing, that I will do nothing further to take him away from Bossy, which I assume is the name of the cow—at least, I never knew a cow by any other name."

Cain, despite an inherent strain of Georgia laziness, won fourteen games after joining the Sox last season. Earlier with the Browns he had beaten the then defending world champion Tigers for his only victory. His season's record was 15 victories and 11 defeats. Cain, who is 28 years old, was obtained from the Browns in exchange for Lee Tietje, also a pitcher.

Wrigley Not Seeking Sitdowners.

The Cubs heard nothing from their holdout squad yesterday. None of the recalcitrant half dozen has broken into print and the front office has hopes of amicable agreement in each instance. It was said, however, the members of the Pacific sitdown union composed of Frank Demaree, Augie Galan, Tuck Stainback and Joe Marty will not be sought out by Owner P. K. Wrigley, now on the west coast.

"Mr. Wrigley went west on gum business," a Cub attaché said yesterday. "If the sitdowners want to talk to him they will have to catch up with him. Mr. Wrigley left all baseball contract matters in charge of Vice President John Seys, who is in Chicago.

Detroit U. to Play De Paul Five Tonight

De Paul university will seek its fifth straight basketball victory tonight against the University of Detroit at the De Paul gymnasium.

Detroit is paced by its high scoring colored captain, Larry Bleach, who has scored 100 points in ten games.

Nick Yost, De Paul's gangling center, has scored 50 baskets and 19 free throws to lead his team in scoring. Although he was out of two complete games with a sprained ankle.

The Detroit squad has been reduced to seven players in the last week due to ineligibilities and injuries. Ed Lukaszewicz, regular guard, is out for the year the result of an appendectomy and his successor, Bill Kerwin, was ruled out by the faculty. Roger Hayes, a Chicago boy, will start at guard tonight.

LOYOLA PLAYS ST. FRANCIS

Loyola university's basketball squad, winners of eleven out of twelve games this season, will meet St. Francis college as part of a double-header at the Hippodrome in New York City tonight in the first of six games on the road. For the first time in seven years, when Loyola last made an eastern invasion to the seaboard, the team will play the last game of the season on a foreign court.

After resting tomorrow the Ramblers will oppose George Washington university at Washington on Monday, Washington's birthday, and then enjoy a day of traveling before playing four games in as many nights. In this quartet of games Loyola will meet Niagara university at Niagara, St. Bonaventure at Olean, N. Y., John Carroll university at Cleveland, and the University of Toledo at Toledo, the last named game a week from tonight.

Wisconsin Boxing Team Whips North Dakota

Madison, Wis., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's boxing team, defeated only once since the sport was placed on an intercollegiate basis four years ago, opened the 1937 season with a 6½ and 1½ victory over North Dakota university in the fieldhouse tonight before 8,500. Vito Schira, Wisconsin's 165 pound All-university champion, scored the only knockout when he droped Gordon Strauss with a hard right to the jaw after 1 minute and 40 seconds of the third round.

IOWA TRACK TEAM OVERWHELMS MAROONS, 61-25

John Graves, promising Iowa sophomore, won the 880 yard run in 1:57.1, but finished only two yards ahead of his teammate, Lyle. The Teufel brothers, Carl and Fred, Iowa's sophomore identical twins, ran well. Carl won the 60 yard dash and anchored the winning mile relay team and Fred was second in the quarter mile.

Billig, another sophomore, won the quarter in :50.2, five yards ahead of George Halcrow, Maroon star, who was third.

Chicago's victories were scored by Capt. John Beal, who won the hurdles and tied with Kobak of Chicago for first in the high jump, and Dave Gordon who won the pole vault.

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Nelson [I.]; Purvis [I.], second, Schmidt [I.], third. Time, 4:28.9.

60 YARD DASH—Won by C. Teufel [I.]; E. Waples [I.], second; Matteson [I.], third. Time, :06.5.

IOWA GYMNASTS WIN

Iowa's gymnastic team maintained its undefeated record last night by defeating Chicago's Maroons, 752 to 562.25, at Bartlett gymnasium. With Beyer, Maroon star, incapacitated because of a hand infection, Iowa won all five events, with the biggest margin in the side horse event. Eugene Wettstein of Iowa took first in the horizontal bar, side horse, and parallel bars and placed second in the flying rings. Capt. George Nissen of Iowa, national intercollegiate tumbling champion, won that event.

University High and Austin Divide Dual Track Meet

University High and Austin split a dual track meet at the University of Chicago fieldhouse yesterday. The University High juniors triumphed, 33 to 26, and the Austin seniors won, 35 to 32.

BessGoodToo, Sonja's Skate Crowds Find

showmanship as she might be did not disturb her.

"I do not want to be good at showmanship. I am a skater," she said. "I work harder, with more exhibitions, than as an amateur. That is the only difference."

Sonja is 5 feet 2 inches tall. She does not know her weight, and she does not know her measurements, she said. She can eat anything she wants, but she does not drink or smoke.

She wears a rabbit's foot pinned on her costume, never forgetting to pin it on anew with each change. She has done this for ten years, having worn it in her first world match. She has won ten of these, her first at the age of 14 years. She is now 23 years old.

Uses American Skates.

Sonja revealed other bits of information: That she wears German shoes and American skates; has three pairs of shoes, and cuts them up with her skates at a great rate. She gets from 300 to 400 letters a week "besides all the studio gets." There was "nothing romantic" in her former association with Jack Dunn, English skater, who accompanied her to this country last year and appeared at the Stadium.

Miss Ehrhardt was interviewed in her room at the Sherman hotel in the afternoon, where she and her partner, Roy Shipstad, professional ice champion, and the clown of the carnival, Heine Brock, were mulling over the events of the opening night.

Slender and Pretty.

She is as pretty as the graceful Norwegian queen of the ice, with an animated face, brown eyes and hair, and a taller, more slender figure. She knew her measurements by heart—5 feet 4 inches tall; weight, 118 pounds; waist, 25 inches; hips, 36; bust, 34, and ankle, 8.

A demure young woman, 19 years old, who said earnestly that "the members of our troupe are ladies and gentlemen," she spoke rapidly in a soft voice.

She said without hesitation that she expected to be as big a headliner as Sonja in two years.

"Five motion picture companies have queried me, and I think we'll make a picture as soon as our tour is over. I photograph very well," she said confidently. "I want all the troupe to be in it, and I will get that."

She was asked how she and Sonja got along.

"She is very nice," she started out formally, "and I always tell her, 'Sonja, that was wonderful.' She never tells me anything about my skating.

"She just says 'Thanks?'"

"She doesn't even say 'Thanks.' Of course," she went on, "she does dance beautifully and gracefully. But acrobatic dancing is more difficult, because you're in danger of falling and breaking your neck."

Miss Ehrhardt exhibited scars on her shins, and two swollen finger joints, one of which is still painful. These she got in practice.

"I've just been lucky. I've never fallen during an exhibition. Roy kicked me once when we were dancing at the College inn, though."

Bess was unabashedly elated because "last night Sonja was called back for one encore to my five the first half of the evening."

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Feb. 19.—Dear Wake: In the early '70s and for some years thereafter over a track on Evanston avenue, now Broadway, a little steam dummy on Sundays pulled two or three ordinary street cars of the time north to Graceland avenue, now Irving Park boulevard, then west to Gravel road, now Clark.

These cars always were crowded with merrymakers with lunch baskets going to or from picnics in that vicinity or with those more soberly inclined visiting Graceland or other cemeteries thereabouts. Engineer of the Sunday dummy was employed as engineer at the Ogden school on weekdays. Chas. E. Jennings.

Back in the old century, when a boy of 12 years old, I spent several seasons with a wagon show or circus whose circuit included outlying prairies of Chicago. In those days circuses were called "wagon shows" because they traveled from town to town by wagon instead of train. This show was a "one elephant" show. At that period, a circus without an elephant, no matter how small the show, wasn't a circus.

Among performers was an African magician, a giant colored man. He and I became fast friends and constant companions. His name was Umslopogaas, strangely enough same as that of the mighty black warrior of H. Rider Haggard's "Ayesha," "She," "King Solomon's Mines," etc.

Symbol of the order to which my friend belonged was a skull. He always wore a red fez with a blue skull tattooed on his forehead right below the edge of the fez. I was a "brother" of the order and as such was entitled to the blue skull, but instead of on the forehead I had it tattooed on the back of my left hand where it has remained with me through many adventures in many lands. Prince Warren.

For almost 80 years I have been of this town. I knew Joseph Medill as well as his brother Samuel and many old time Tribunites, for I was a shareholder and employé of Rand, McNally & Co., then located just across the street on Madison from THE TRIBUNE.

The Dearborn school lot vacant, 1873, was next west of our building on which James Walsh, no kin of Banker John R., built the Chrystal block, famous as housing Sam T. Jack's burlesque theater and "The Drum," operated by Charley Clayton, which dispensed rare vintages.

Notre Dame, Pitt Fives Play Tonight

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Intent on adding to their impressive records, which are almost identical, Notre Dame and Pitt will meet in basketball here tomorrow night before a capacity crowd of 5,500.

A sellout for the March 8 game with Minnesota was announced today. Next Tuesday's Marquette contest will provide the only opportunity for local fans without tickets for the Pitt or Minnesota games to see Notre Dame in action again this season.

Pitt has won 11 out of 14 games and Notre Dame has won 14 out of 17. Each lost two early season games and each has been defeated but once in its last 12 starts. The Notre Dame defeat was administered a month ago by Pitt, 34 to 31.

TEXAS SENATOR SEEKS TO RESCIND BIBLE'S CONTRACT

Austin, Tex., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Sen. L. J. Sulak introduced a resolution in the legislature today requesting University of Texas regents to rescind a contract with Dana X. Bible, employed recently as head football coach for ten years at a reported salary of $15,000 annually.

Referred to committee without argument, the resolution further requested the regents to employ a football coach and athletic director at a salary "commensurate" with other salaries paid at the university.

It said Bible's reported salary was "nearly twice that paid the president of the university."

OLYMPIC STARS TO RUN TONIGHT IN BAXTER MILE

New York, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The classic mile, forced to the background at Boston last week by Don Lash's record two mile performance, moves back into the spotlight tomorrow night in the New York A. C. games at Madison Square Garden.

Except for the absence of Champion Jack Lovelock, the Baxter mile will be a duplicate of the Olympic 1,500 meter run with five of the finalists at Berlin running.

Glenn Cunningham, world record holder, is the favorite. The addition of Luigi Beccali, Italy's 1932 Olympic title holder, who ran third at Berlin, has brought out a new challenge to the Kansan's record of 4:08.4.

Lash Leads Two Milers.

Completing the field will be Archie San Romani, Emporia, Kas., Teachers; Gene Venzke, New York A. C. veteran, who has shadowed Cunningham all season, and Miles Szabo, Hungarian 1500 meter champion.

Lash dominates the two mile field, but several rivals may force him to better his new record of 8:58. Tommy Deckard, Lash's Indiana teammate, who won the Millrose two mile, and the Rideout twins, Wayne and Blaine, of North Texas Teachers, will run against Lash.

George Varoff, who lifted the pole vault record to 14 feet 4⅞ inches at Boston, will be absent, but Earle Meadows, Southern California's Olympic champion; Suedo Oye of Japan, and Oscar Sutermeister, former Harvard star, will compete.

Allen Meets Donovan Again.

John Woodruff, Pittsburgh, 800 meter Olympic champion, and Abe Rosenkrantz of Michigan Normal top a field of seven in the Halpin half mile.

The 60 yard high hurdles will bring together Jack Donovan of Dartmouth and Sam Allen of Oklahoma Baptist, who finished one, two, respectively, at Boston.

MAROONS PLAY HAWKS TONIGHT; WINGS TOMORROW

Chicago Seeks 1st Victory Over Montreal.

New York, Feb. 19.—[Special.]—The Chicago Blackhawks left here tonight for Montreal, where they will play their final National Hocky league game of the season with the Montreal Maroons tomorrow. Immediately after the Montreal contest the Hawks will go to Detroit to meet the champion Red Wings Sunday night.

The Montreal Maroons have a decided edge on the Blackhawks this season. Five games have been played and the Canadian team has won all of them.

Bill Beveridge has replaced the veteran Alex Connell in the nets for the Maroons. The exit of Connell from the big league ranks marks the passing of one of the greatest of net minders. In 1927-'28 only 48 goals were scored on Connell, who guarded the nets for Ottawa. He shut out the opposition 15 times and in one stretch blanked Ottawa's foes six times in a row.

Black Horse, Oak Brooks to Play Tonight

The lead in the senior division of the Metropolitan Polo league will be at stake tonight when Oak Brook rides against the Black Horse Troop association at the 124th Field artillery armory.

In the first game of the double-header the Parkway Polo club of Milwaukee will meet the Senecas of Chicago, junior division contenders.

Oak Brook Unbeaten.

With victories over the 124th Field Artillery, defending champions, and the 122d Field Artillery, the Oak Brook team is undefeated up to now in the high goal title race.

The Black Horse Troop will be at full strength for tonight's battle. Capt. Maxwell Corpening will resume his place in the lineup after being out of action for nearly a month with back injuries.

Teams Closely Bunched.

A victory for Oak Brook will practically clinch the championship, while a defeat will create a three-way tie for first with the Black Horse Troop and 124th F. A. The top teams are so closely bunched that a victory means a tie for first for the Troop and a loss will drop that team to fifth place in the standings.

Time, :34 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Who Knows $7.70 straight, $4.40 place, $3.20 show; Darby Delt $11.80 place, $5.40 show; Bestest $4.90 show. Winner, ch. f., 2, by Polydor or Sumair-Fairy Moon. Owner, Middleburg stable. Trainer, M. Brady. Start good. Won driving; place same.

WHO KNOWS broke alertly, ran straight down the center of the track and stood long drive gamely. DARBY DELT was hustled away from the gate and performed brilliantly. BESTEST was hard ridden all the way. MEMOIRS closed a big gap. MICRO is sure to improve. BERTILLON ran good race.

SECOND RACE—One mile. Three year olds and up. Claiming. Purse, $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

BUSHMASTER	110	8	4	6	5	8	8	J.Oagen	44.65-1

Time, 1:38 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Pepper Patch $13.10 straight, $6.40 place, $4.20 show; Night Raven $12.20 place $7.00 show; Count Rae $4.90 show. Winner, ch. h., 4, by Scotch-Broom-Pepper Pot. Owner, Mrs. F. Rossiter. Trainer, E. Coppa. Start good. Won driving; place same.

PEPPER PATCH, going in best form, began to move up around turn, swerved sharply in stretch, interfering with PEEDEEQUE, then drew away but was doing his best to win. TIGHT RAVEN got away to a good break, set pace, saved ground, and held on gamely. COUNT RAE on the outside, clearing interference, finished with good courage. CRYSTAL PRINCE had four bandages on. PEEDEEQUE was moving up stoutly when he was blocked by the winner.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Three year olds and up. Claiming. Purse, $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, 1:10 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Pelerine $5.50 straight, $3.70 place, $2.80 show; Patsey Begone $4.40 place, $2.80 show; Earl Porter $2.70 show. Winner, b. f., 4, by Supremus-Ancient Queen. Owner, Hal Price Headley. Trainer, D. A. Headley. Start good. Won driving; place same.

PELERINE was sent to the front soon after the start, opened a good gap and rated along, was best. PATSEY BEGONE broke fast, but was outrun by the winner and was doing her best to save the place from EARL PORTER. Latter was poorly handled, was taken wide and lost many lengths around turn, closed gamely on his own courage. SUNCRAX had no mishap.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Three year olds and up. Claiming. Purse, $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, 1:10 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Miss Monoa $25.00 straight, $10.40 place, $4.90 show; Wise Duke $6.70 place, $5.70 show; Idle Midget $3.00 show. Winner, ch. m., 5, by Noah-Mon Amie. Owner, R. Stuart. Trainer, D. Stuart. Start good. Won driving; place same.

MISS MONOA broke a bit slow, was held in reserve to the stretch where she was taken to the outside and, closing with a good burst of speed, got up to win going away. WISE DUKE slipped through on inside and finished fast. IDLE MIDGET was used up racing MINEY MYERSON into defeat and tired at end. MINEY MYERSON ran good race. NAUGHTY was allowed to drop far out of it and was taken very wide around turn. WHOOPER had plenty of speed for half a mile.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Three year olds and up. The Clearwater. Purse, $1,100. Net value to winner, $775; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, 1:37 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Tattered $3.70 straight, $3.30 place, $2.50 show; Candlelight $5.70 place, $3.10 show; Anglo Saxon $2.60 show. Winner, br., 3, by Pennant-Untidy. Owner, Greentree stable. Trainer, J. M. Gaver. Start good. Won easily; place driving.

TATTERED much the best. He was away well, but unable to keep up in the early part, weaved his way through the field on turn, assumed lead in stretch and won going away. CANDLELIGHT broke fast, followed pace and made a game effort. ANGLO SAXON, away flying, displayed keen speed for entire route and held on well. HARVESTING showed good speed. ABADDON closed a big gap.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Four year olds and up. Claiming. Purse, $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, 1:50 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Wise Will $14.40 straight, $7.60 place, $5.10 show; Whatway $12.80 place, $7.30 show; Hermie Roy $4.80 show. Winner, ch. g., 4, by Wise Counsellor-Willow Tit. Owner, Mrs. F. Rossiter. Trainer, R. Coppa. Start good, for all but Round Table. Place driving.

WISE WILL, showing improvement, was kept close to early pace, came with a powerful rush in run through stretch and got up to win. WHATWAY, showing more early speed than usual, made a game effort. HERMIE ROY closed with a rush on the outside. LIVE ONE had plenty of speed and held on well. HUNTERDON made his bid around turn, but faltered at end.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and a quarter. Four year olds and up. Claiming. Purse, $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

PEERLESS PAL, showing remarkable speed, opened wide gap and galloped along in front and never was let down. LAST ROMANCE came with a rush in final furlong. BULLFINCH, well up all the way, ran good race. TREASURE SHIP finished fast under weak handling. HOT CAKE on the inside all the way. MINE BOY moved up on the inside in stretch, but broke down and was pulled up at end.

BANKS TAKE BIG LOSS ON LOANS TO M. J. INSULL

Get Back Small Part of 9 Million Advance

BY JOHN FISHER.

Echoes of the historic crash of the Insull utilities empire in 1932 were heard yesterday with the disclosure that 15 creditors of Martin J. Insull have agreed to a compromise settlement that may yield between one and two million dollars on total claims of $9,000,000. Chase National Bank of New York stands to lose more than $4,000,000.

Martin J. Insull.

Insull was head of the Middle West Utilities company, key holding unit of the Insull system, when it went into receivership in 1932. He now resides in Orillia, Ont.

Disclosed in Bank Report.

The agreement was disclosed in a quarterly report on settlements made by debtors of the Central Republic Trust company filed in the Circuit court by Charles H. Albers, receiver for the bank.

Under the agreement made last Dec. 23, Insull creditors share pro rata in $360,000 in cash and 30,694 shares of capital stock of Ashland Oil and Refining corporation [formerly Swiss Oil corporation]; also, they receive bills of sale from Insull covering the securities pledged to secure the notes to creditors.

Both cash and the Ashland Oil stock represent the balance of unpledged assets and properties that were turned over by Insull in 1932 to William C. Freeman, banker, and Ely M. Aaron, attorney, Insull's liquidating agents. The Central Republic report says that when Insull turned over these assets he retained only $3,213 in cash and life insurance policies having a face value of $42,500, the cash value of which had been exhausted.

Stock Value $250,000.

The market value of the Ashland Oil and Refining corporation stock is approximately $250,000. It closed on the New York Curb exchange yesterday at $8.12½ a share. The value of securities pledged as collateral for the notes is uncertain. At an estimated value of $1,000,000, the total recovery would be $1,610,000.

Heaviest losses were sustained by creditors holding as collateral the securities of former Insull units that since have become worthless.

The only definite recovery revealed was that of Central Republic. On notes from Insull for $261,873 it received $13,000 in cash, 1,156 shares of Ashland Oil stock, currently valued at $9,392, and a bill of sale for securities pledged to the notes. These securities were valued at $30,000.

Bank's Recovery $52,392.

This represents a recovery of $52,392 on notes of $261,873 which, with accrued interest, total more than $300,000. The Central Republic is said to have fared far better than many of the other creditors because of the particular collateral.

The agreement revealed that as of Dec. 31, 1935, the indebtedness and losses on notes for which Martin J. Insull was sole obligor were as follows:

Creditor—	Indebtedness.	Loss.
Chase Nat. of N. Y.	$4,592,000	$4,188,000
Middle West Corp.	1,250,000	1,250,000
Contl. Ill. Nat. Bk. Chicago	415,000	415,000
Cent. Rep. Bk., Chgo.	308,000	283,000
First Nat., Chicago	234,000	234,000
Washington Flexner	260,000	180,000
Lincoln Printing Co.	219,000	219,000
Miss. Valley Utilities Investment Co.	203,000	185,000
Amerex Holding Corp.	69,000	69,000
Jackson Bros.-Boesel	62,000	56,000
George Pick & Co.	38,700	38,400
Term. Nat. Bk., Chgo.	37,400	37,400
U. S. Cold Storage	30,000	30,000
Harry A. Bigelow, trustee Insull, Son & Co.	36,000	36,000

The additional notes on which Insull was jointly liable were:

Creditor—	Indebtedness.	Loss.
Chase National	$ 402,000	$ 402,000
First Nat., Chgo.	386,000	270,000
Central Republic	187,000	21,000
Cent. Ill. Pub. Service	121,000	121,000
Cont. Ill., Chgo.	46,000	46,000

Total Debt Nine Millions.

The total indebtedness for these creditors is in the neighborhood of $9,000,000, with the losses on Dec. 31, 1935, about $8,100,000. Since that time, however, there has been an appreciation in collateral securities that has reduced losses.

The Central Republic had a joint note for $102,944, signed by Insull and Washington Flexner, president of Lincoln Printing company, but reported that Flexner's liability had been compromised and that collateral for the joint note was more than sufficient to cover the note.

The agreement of the 15 creditors provides that in consideration of the settlement they shall surrender the notes now held and grant Insull a complete release from further liability. All have agreed to this except the Chase National bank.

That bank holds at present 584,574 shares of common stock of Corporation Securities company of Chicago, and 103,822 shares of Insull Utility Investment, Inc., common stock, which Insull pledged against loans.

Of similar holdings in its own portfolio the Central Republic said in the report:

"Certain of the securities enumerated in the composition settlement have definitely been determined as worthless. They will be delivered to Mr. Insull."

Vote 1½ Billion for Postoffice and Treasury

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—(AP)—A record breaking $1,501,930,151 appropriation to finance the treasury and postoffice departments for the next fiscal year won house approval today and went to the senate. Although the measure passed without a record vote, debate over a "rider" to prevent use of any of the funds to pay salaries of departmental employés lent to congressional investigating committees delayed its passage.

Inquiries now being conducted by two senate committees would be most directly affected by the prohibition.

Plan Ocean Air Mail.

In addition to routine expenditures, the bill provided for an outlay of $750,000 to permit establishment of this country's first trans-Atlantic air mail service. Plans call for commencement of two round trips weekly by an American owned company about next Nev. 1. Negotiations also are underway to have a British company begin a similar schedule of flights about the same time.

Carrying $782,469,361 for the postoffice department and $718,485,790 for the treasury, the bill's total exceeded last year's appropriation by $234,900,149 but the increase was occasioned entirely by an almost 50 per cent boost in the social security board's old age reserve account, for which $500,000,000 was provided this year.

Funds to Retire Debt.

Secretary Morgenthau testified during hearings on the bill that most of the reserve account and funds to be collected under the old age tax would be used to retire the public debt. He estimated approximately $30,000,000,000 would be lopped off the debt in the next 17 years.

The attack on the "rider" was led by Representative Rankin [D., Miss.] who termed it an attempt to "gag the United States senate." He sought to eliminate the section on a point of order but was overruled.

Representative Woodrum [D., Va.], a member of the house appropriations committee, defended the prohibition as designed primarily to help enforcement of a law on the statute books since 1809.

FARM TENANCY PROGRAM LINKED TO COST OF LAND

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Success of the administration's farm tenancy program now before congress speakers agreed at the National Farm Tenancy forum meetings today, primarily on stabilization of lands values and prices paid farmers for their products.

Some predicted that if congress would enact legislation to stabilize farm income, many tenants and prospective tenants, without further aid would become owner-operators through their own initiative. It was generally agreed, however, that there is need for legislation to stabilize land values, to curb land speculation, which was charged with responsibility for much of the tenancy of the northern half of the country, and to discourage absentee ownership.

W. W. Alexander, resettlement administrator, spoke on the farm tenancy bill now pending in congress. It was generally agreed that the 40 year amortization period for mortgage indebtedness would be most successful. Low interest rates of 2½ or 3 per cent met with approval.

COCOA, COFFEE AND HIDES MAKE NEW PRICE GAINS

Cocoa, coffee and hides added further to their recent price gains in yesterday's commodity trading. Coffee advanced 0.07 to 0.09 of a cent a pound in the New York futures market. Hides rose 0.06 of a cent and cocoa closed about 0.04 of a cent higher. Rubber, cottonseed oil and sugar declined moderately.

Utility Deposits Funds to Retire Bond Issues

The Northern States Power company has deposited $59,340,300 with the Harris Trust & Savings bank to pay off its 4½ per cent bonds of 1961 and 5 per cent bonds of 1964, which have been called for redemption, according to announcement made yesterday. The Harris bank is trustee for the company's new $75,000,000 of refunding bonds which mature in 1967. It is one of the largest corporate trusteeships ever handled by a Chicago bank. Northern States Power is a subsidiary of Standard Gas and Electric company.

LOSES PIGGLY WIGGLY FORTUNE; SEEKS NEW ONE WITH 'KEEDOOZLE'

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Clarence Saunders sighted along the comeback trail today from behind an impressive array of electrical gadgets and a bright new store he calls the "Keedoozle."

The "Keedoozle," in which electricity conveys the customer's purchases to him and adds up his bill, will open about March 6, Saunders said. The name "doesn't mean anything particularly."

He's won and lost two fortunes, first, when he was deposed as president of Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., after a Wall street battle, and second, when he lost out with his "Clarence Saunders—Sole Owner of My Name" stores.

"But now," he said, "I'm going to make ten times more money than I ever did."

Saunders escorted his interviewer through the store in a preview. "Take one of the keys," he said. "Now, whenever you want anything, just poke the hole corresponding to the item."

Saunders said: "Buy anything you want—it's all in fun, anyway." The interviewer liked corn and peas—especially petit pois.

"All right, there you are," Saunders pointed. "Put the key in that hole. See, the bulb flashed. You've made a contact. If you want two cans, let it flash again. Ah, there you are. Well, let's get along to the jelly."

Shopping concluded, Saunders led the way to the cashier desk, and placed the keys in another hole. The things purchased came tumbling out on conveyer belts while an adding machine automatically totaled the cost. The second key went in and the performance was repeated.

RISE IN FREIGHT TRAFIC EXCEEDS NORMAL UPTURN

Freight trafic of the nation's railroads during the week ended Feb. 13 totaled 691,618 cars, an increase of 16,592 over the 675,026 cars loaded in the preceding week, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday. This was a larger than seasonal gain and the largest total for any corresponding week since 1930.

Loadings in the latest week rose 60,523 cars above the corresponding week a year ago and were 109,949 cars over the same week two years ago, the association said.

Loadings of various classifications for last week, and comparisons with the preceding week and the corresponding week a year ago, follow:

Am. Hair & Felt Minority Seeks Proxies for Meeting

William G. Harsin, chairman of the protective committee for minority stockholders of the American Hair and Felt company, $6,000,000 Chicago concern, yesterday sent a letter to stockholders soliciting proxies for the annual meeting on Feb. 25. He pointed out that the committee proposes to have Mason B. Starring Jr. elected a director to represent the minority stock interests and also that steps be taken to provide for cumulative voting on directors.

Couch Admits Buying Stock of Kansas City Southern

New York, Feb. 19.—(AP)—In an interview today, Harvey Couch, chairman of the board of the Louisiana and Arkansas railway, confirmed the report he and his associates had purchased from Paine Webber & Co., New York investment firm, a large block of Kansas City Southern railway stock. It was too early, he added, for any statement regarding plans for a possible merger of the roads.

Treasury Sells 273 Day Bills at Rate of 0.386

The treasury department announced yesterday that $50,124,000 of 273 day bills, dated Feb. 24 and maturing Nov. 24, have been sold at an average of 99.708, equal to an annual rate of 0.386 per cent on a bank discount basis.

Modify Profit Surtax, Trade Group Urges

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—Recommendations for the modification of the surtax on undistributed corporate profits, passed by the last congress, were made today in the report of a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The committee, composed of tax experts and business men, said the operation of the tax has conclusively demonstrated the soundness of the chamber's contentions at the time the tax was under consideration. The chamber argued that the tax was wrong in principle and destructive in results.

Believe Tax Should Be Killed.

The committee expressed itself still convinced that this form of raising revenue should be abandoned. If the tax is to be retained, the committee reported, major imperfections should be identified and early remedial action taken. The committee listed as the most outstanding defects in the act the following:

Conflict between state and federal laws most apparent in cases of corporations with impaired capital.

Exceptional and unfair burdens placed upon corporations with outstanding debts contracted in good faith.

Lack of allowance for use of current earnings for business expansion and other appropriate corporate purposes.

No Relief Provided.

Failure to provide relief for corporations bound by contracts which operate to restrict dividend payments.

Establishment of the time of dividend payments at such a date as to impose unreasonable or impossible conditions.

Coercion of corporations into doubtful fiscal policies and generally weakening of their financial structure.

Ambiguous and harsh provisions which supply the basis for excessively restrictive regulations.

"While the base of the normal tax should be made to correspond more closely with true income, it should be clearly established as a general rule that the surtax should apply only to the true earnings of corporations as determined by proper accounting methods," the report said.

HUTTON CONCERN TO TAKE SEC SUIT TO HIGH COURT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Counsel for W. E. Hutton & Co., fighting a government charge of stock manipulation, prepared today to carry the case to the federal courts. David W. Peck, chief counsel for the New York brokerage house said he would battle the Securities and Exchange commission in the Supreme court if necessary.

The defense move was made when Edward C. Johnson, trial examiner, overruled Peck's motion to quash a new subpena for every check issued by the Hutton firm between Nov. 1, 1935, and Aug. 1, 1936, to customers holding Atlas Tack corporation and other stock.

"That is ridiculous," Peck shouted. "It amounts to a complete audit of the books of W. E. Hutton & Co."

He entered an exception, based on the constitutional guarantee against "unreasonable search and seizure." He previously had charged the securities and exchange act was unconstitutional.

NORTH WESTERN BUYS 8 GIANT ENGINES TO DO 120 MILES AN HOUR

The Chicago and North Western railroad yesterday announced the placing of an order for eight new passenger locomotives with the American Locomotive company. Purchase of the locomotives at a cost of more than $1,000,000 was approved last December by the federal court on application of Charles P. Morgan, trustee of the road, which is reorganizing under section 77 of the amended bankruptcy act.

The new locomotives will be streamlined, capable of high speed, and giants in size, the announcement said. Delivery will be made about Sept. 1. The locomotives will be the most powerful 4-6-4 type ever built, it was said, and will be capable of hauling 14 to 16 cars of standard weight at 120 miles an hour.

The combined weight of engine and tender will be 38 tons, with the tender capacity listed at 25 tons of coal and 22,000 gallons of water. Drive wheels will be 84 inches in diameter, compared to the present 76 inches.

EGG PRICES EASE DESPITE LARGE FEDERAL BUYING

Prices of egg futures continued to decline on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday despite heavy buying by the government of eggs in the cash market. March storage grade closed at 22¾ cents a dozen, a new low mark for the year. The government bought 36,000 dozen eggs here and 100,500 dozens in New York.

Most losses were confined to ¼ cent a dozen or less, although a decline of a full cent a dozen in April standard firsts was recorded when a sale was made at 23⅛ cents. The last previous sale in this contract was made Jan. 7 at 24⅛ cents. Total sales of egg futures were 47 cars.

Butter futures developed a firmer tone in the final hour of trading and recovered most of their early losses. Potato futures were unchanged to 2 cents a hundred pounds lower. Prices of futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange follow:

General Electric Boosts Pay at Schenectady Plant

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 19.—(AP)—E. D. Spicer, works manager of the Schenectady plant of the General Electric company announced today a blanket wage increase amounting to $420,000 annually for 5,000 shop employés in the plant. The increase, Spicer said, will take effect Feb. 26. The 5,000 shop employés who will benefit from the pay boost were described in the announcement as in the "salaried or day working class."

United Air Lines Reports Gain in Express and Mail

United Air Lines reported yesterday that air express and mail carried on its coast to coast line in January this year amounted to 561,596 pounds, compared with 406,711 pounds in the same 1936 month. The Pacific coast route of the company reported an increase of 16 per cent in mail and express business.

Standard Oil of Indiana Advances Kerosene Price

An increase of 3-10 cent a gallon in normal tank wagon prices on kerosene in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Wisconsin was announced yesterday by Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The increase will become effective next Tuesday.

U. S. STEEL LEADS RISE IN STOCKS; UP $6 A SHARE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 19.—Skyrocketing prices for steel and metal shares, a direct reflection of the world armament race, dominated the stock market today. Gains easily outnumbered declines at the close, although a large number of stocks finished lower for the day. Trading totaled 2,729,990 shares, the largest of the week.

United States Steel, once more the favorite of speculators, led the upturn. Opening 1⅝ higher at 108⅝ on a block of 6,000 shares, it crossed 110 for a gain of 3 points and then in the late trading sold at 113, where it closed, a net profit for the day of 5⅞ points.

Metal Shares Buoyant.

Other steel and metal shares were buoyant. Gains ran to 6 points among the coppers, leads, zinc, and silvers. A new peak was posted by Bethlehem on an advance of 4¼ points and by National on a climb of 3⅜. Others in the group to move up at least 2 points were Crucible, Wheeling, Gulf States, and Inland, while gains of more than a point were registered by Republic and Superior.

American Smelting ran up 6 points, U. S. Smelting jumped 3, Cerro de Pasco advanced 2⅛, International Nickel climbed 2⅞, International Silver moved ahead 2¼, St. Louis Lead was boosted 3⅜, and National Lead rose a point.

Similar buoyancy was exhibited by the coppers, where Anaconda, Kennecott, Magma, Andes, Phelps-Dodge and others tacked up gains running to 3 points.

Rail Issues Strong.

Rails were accorded good buying. Illinois Central and Baltimore and Ohio registered new highs. Utilities forged ahead and shipbuilding shares were active.

Adversely affected were the farm implement shares, which sagged severely. Deere and Case each sold off 3½ points. Chemicals were soft and a number of the so-called blue chips lacked support. American Can, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, and Douglas moved lower.

Amusement issues were mixed. Warner Brothers preferred dropped more than 4 points on its first trading since the company announced withdrawal of the contemplated stock offering. Radio gained a fraction in an active market.

REPORTS LEWIS PLANS UNION IN ALL OIL FIELDS

Houston, Tex., Feb. 19.—(AP)—The Houston Post says it learned today from reliable sources a nation wide drive to unionize the oil industry under the Committee for Industrial Organization will open in Houston April 5.

"The full force of the C. I. O., led by militant John L. Lewis, will be mobilized in the unionization drive," the Post says. "Its aim is organization of more than 1,000,000 workers engaged in producing, transporting, refining, and distributing the nation's major fuel supply.

"Houston and the Beaumont-Port Arthur districts, center of the world's largest refining and oil shipping area, have been selected as focal points of the C. I. O. drive, which is expected to extend through sixteen major oil producing and refining states from the Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific coast."

OUTPUT OF MEAT HIGHER; TOTAL BELOW NORMAL

Production of meat in 1936 was the second smallest of any year since 1921, being surpassed only by the record low total in 1935. Output of meat by packers under federal inspection totaled 12,751,000,000 pounds, compared with 10,274,000,000 pounds in 1935 and an average for the preceding five years of 12,771,000,000 pounds.

The department of agriculture reported that packers invested $1,638,000,000 in live stock last year, compared with $1,316,000,000 in 1935 and the 1932 depression low of $861,289,000,000.

Hog prices at the Chicago stock yards were unchanged on the average yesterday, although the top price of $10.25 a hundredweight was 5 cents below Thursday. Cattle were steady in extremely dull trading, but lambs climbed 10 to 25 cents.

NOTICE TO SECURITY HOLDERS OF THE CUDAHY PACKING COMPANY

The Cudahy Packing Company has, in accordance with the provisions of Section 11 (a) of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, made generally available to its security holders an Earnings Statement for the twelve months period from November 3, 1935 to October 31, 1936, such period beginning after the effective date of the Company's Registration Statement for its $20,000,000 First Mortgage Sinking Fund Bonds Series A, 3¾%, due September 1, 1955, and $5,000,000 Convertible Sinking Fund 4% Debentures, due September 1 1950. Lewis Fights Trade Pacts with Debtors

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—Senator James Hamilton Lewis [D., Ill.] introduced a resolution in the senate today proposing that no reciprocal trade agreements be negotiated with the countries that have defaulted on their war debts to the United States.

Senator Lewis.

Senator Lewis declared in a speech accompanying his resolution that Walter Runciman, representing the British board of trade, sought mostly, on his recent visit with President Roosevelt, the assurance "that there should be no neutrality legislation that would forbid our country supplying England with whatever would be necessary as war supplies" should England become involved in a war.

Disagree Over Payment.

Senator Lewis' proposal precipitated a debate in which Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas and Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho], ranking minority member of the foreign relations committee, disagreed over the prospect of collecting anything on the 12 billion dollar war debt to the United States.

While emphasizing that he was speaking only for himself and had no official assurances from the administration, Senator Robinson contended that there was "a reversion of sentiment" in the European countries respecting the war debts and "a strong likelihood that within the next year something substantial will be accomplished looking toward the settlement of those debts."

Senator Borah demanded to know whether there had been any proposals for a settlement. Robinson said he knew of none.

Vandenberg Warns of New Loans.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] expressed the opinion that there would be no settlement on a mere "token" basis which would lay the foundation for more "fabulous loans" in this country.

"All of these debtor lands referred to have provided systems of embargo against our trade in some form and with no latitude except as to those which they say cannot be produced by themselves," declared Senator Lewis.

"I propose that the United States give notice clearly to the countries which are in our debt that we will not negotiate treaties that allow them to send their products to us and flood our markets while they, in the meantime, refuse to pay us any portion of their debts due us or to adjust the same or to sit in conference looking to their disposition upon some mutual basis of friendship."

Committee Approves Extension.

The senate finance committee approved the administration's proposal to extend the reciprocal tarif act three years. A heavy Democratic majority in the committee rejected seven proposed amendments. Extension of the present law, which expires June 12, already had been approved by the house.

Mutual tarif concessions were exchanged by the United States and El Salvador in a new trade agreement signed today at San Salvador, capital of the Central American republic. In return for continuing present customs advantages extended to El Salvador, the United States was accorded duty reductions ranging from 50 to 83 per cent on nineteen items, principally foodstuffs, and assurances against any increase in present duties on six others.

SHOPPERS BUY 'GLAD' RAIMENT; EASTER IS NEAR

New York, Feb. 19.—[Special.]—A pre-Easter seasonal increase in shoppers' activities is present in retail buying, with weather favoring the movement of early spring apparel, Dun & Bradstreet reported today in its weekly trade review.

February promotions in furniture, household goods, floor coverings, and dinner ware contributed importantly to the upturn. Cotton, silk, and rayon in surrealist prints are outstanding in dress fabric sales, according to the credit agency. Practically all retail lines are sharing in the broadening demand.

The volume of retail distribution for the country as a whole is estimated at 12 to 20 per cent above the comparable week of a year ago.

METAL PRICES SOAR ON WORLD RACE TO REARM

'Famine' Is Feared by Producers.

Feverish war preparations of European powers yesterday set off a boom in metals in the principal markets of the world. Basic materials used for armaments soared to the highest prices in seven years. The uprush in prices was regarded by trade authorities as foreshadowing a world-wide metal "famine."

In London copper sold at 15 cents a pound, the highest price since 1929. It has been moving up steadily for the last several weeks. The rise in the London price was expected to force American producers again to revise their price of 14 cents a pound which was agreed upon earlier this week. Such action was forecast by theu pturn yesterday in the export price in New York to 15.175 cents a pound, ¾ of a cent above Thursday's quotation.

Price Boosted Three Times.

Since the start of the year American copper producers have raised their prices three times, each in response to an upturn in the foreign market. Copper has been moving out of the country at such a heavy rate that it has been feared domestic buyers would not be able to obtain adequate supplies.

The increasing demand for the metal for armament purposes has developed simultaneously with expanding commercial requirements accompanying the revival in industrial activity. The present price is approximately double the low of 7.02 cents a yound at which it sold last year. At its depression low copper sold at 3.75 cents a pound.

Both zinc and lead were boosted yesterday to seven year peaks. American Smelting and Refining company and St. Joseph Lead company, leading producers, raised the price of lead a fifth of a cent a pound to 6.50 cents, delivered in New York.

Zinc Rises Fifth Cent.

Zinc advanced a fifth of a cent a pound to 6.80 cents. A rise of 1¾ cents a pound in tin lifted the price to 54 cents a pound in New York.

Steel authorities said a world shortage of pig iron and scrap is rapidly developing. British mills which are engaged in armament work are inquiring in this country for 50,000 tons of basic iron. The Daily Metal Trade, Cleveland said that unless British mills are able to supplement their supplies of pig iron they will soon be forced to curtail steel production.

Blast furnaces throughout the United States are working at capacity to produce pig iron. Operators of blast furnaces on the eastern seaboard are unable to handle foreign orders because they cannot obtain ore from the Lake Superior region at this season of the year.

Pig iron is currently selling at $20.50 a ton, $13.98 above the depression low price. The number of blast furnaces in operation is estimated at 170, compared with the 46 in operation at depression ebb.

Interlake Iron corporation, Chicago, one of the leading merchant iron works, reported Thursday that it is operating 6 furnaces for the first time since 1930. It is booked up solidly for the first quarter of the year.

SALE BLOCKED BY NAVY.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Officials disclosed tonight that the navy, unable to buy sufficient steel for warship construction, recently blocked a proposal that the government sell its idle armor plate plant at Charleston, W. Va. Both they and President Roosevelt denied, however, that the administration was considering use of this plant if private manufacturers continued to ignore navy demand for steel.

Navy officials have attributed the industry's indifference to government business to the Walsh-Healey act, which requires certain labor standards to be maintained in filling government contracts over $10,000.

Automobile Output Climbs with Settlement of Strike

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 19.—[Special.]—Resumption of activity by General Motors resulted in increased automobile production this week. Cram's Reports, Inc., estimated production at 95,698 units, compared with 72,452 last week and 69,813 in the 1936 week. Ward's Reports placed assemblies at 88,740 cars and trucks compared with 74,145 last week and 66,547 last year.

LARGEST PROFIT SINCE '31 EARNED BY QUAKER OATS

Other Big Concerns Have Gains for 1936.

Quaker Oats company yesterday reported its profit for last year was the largest since 1931. Net income was $5,733,956, equal to $6.64 a share on common stock after provision for preferred dividends. In the preceding year the company earned $4,552,501, or $4.97, a share.

Directors authorized a quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on common stock, payable March 25 to stockholders of record March 2. Heretofore the company has paid a regular quarterly of $1 and an extra dividend of $1 at this period. It was explained the extra payment was omitted because the company distributed all its 1936 earnings to stockholders and that it is too early in the year to determine what special payments must be made in 1937 to avoid liability under the federal tax on undistributed earnings.

Prices Affect Profits.

John Stuart, president, said in his report that 1936 profits were enhanced by the general rise in commodity prices.

"When general commodities like grains and the supplies we use are advancing in price we pick up in earnings," he said. "On declining markets the opposite is true. Our grain problem during a good part of 1937 is going to be difficult on account of the very short 1936 crops."

Competition in the industry, he said, is keen and general operating costs of the company are rising.

Other concerns reporting larger 1936 earnings yesterday were the Bon Ami company, Underwood-Elliott-Fisher company, Lincoln Printing company and Lone Star Cement company, formerly International Cement.

BANKS' "INTERIOR" RESERVES

"What are 'interior reserves' as applied to banks," asks R. T. T. "I've heard of 'excess reserves,' 'legal reserves,' and 'reserves for contingencies, but this is a new one. Will you please explain."

"Interior reserves" is a phrase sometimes used to denote assets owned by a bank, but not shown on its published balance sheet.

For several years following the collapse of 1929 you didn't hear much about such hidden assets for the good reason that few banks had any. During the last two years, however, the steady upturn in security prices attending business recovery has swollen the assets of banks enabling them to report ample assets without including everything in the shop.

At the bottom of the depression bank examiners combing over the securities and loans held by banks required the managements to reduce the reported values of assets which had depreciated. A thousand dollar bond issued by a corporation having financial difficulties, for example, might have been reduced to five hundred dollars, two hundred or, in some cases, to zero in appraising its value for purposes of reporting it in the bank's quarterly statement of financial condition.

This "chargeoff" or "writedown" policy resulted in total reductions of millions in the case of many large banks.

As recovery has progressed, however, many corporations indebted to banks have been reviving rapidly. Consequently, their securities have not only increased in value, but have become marketable, enabling the creditor banks to sell them for cash when and if they choose.

Thus these assets become "interior reserves" which frequently remain concealed until they are sold and the cash is transferred to surplus, undivided profits, or ordinary reserve accounts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 19.—Further improvement was shown today in bond prices on the New York exchange under the leadership of a spirited demand for second grade railroad issues. Trading was slightly smaller, transactions totaling $17,484,000, par value, compared with $18,607,000 Thursday.

High grade corporate loans were stronger. The turnover in United States obligations was small and prices were higher at the end of the day.

Closing Prices Mixed.

The long term treasury issues advanced 1-32 to 5-32 of a point, while the guaranteed loans were a shade lower, closing 1-32 to 3-32 point lower.

The advance in secondary railroad bonds extended over a broad front and lifted prices fractions to about 3 points. Virtually all carrier loans participated in the upturn. New York Central convertible 6s again were unusually active and advanced fractionally to a new high at 114¼.

Several Industrials Strong.

Several strong spots developed in the industrial list during the day. American Petroleum issues responded to a brisk demand, with gains of 1½ to 3⅝ points, while Republic Steel convertible 4½s rose 5½ points and Vanadium convertible 5s closed 6 points higher.

Foreign dollar obligations worked irregularly higher, with several South American loans resuming their upward course. Chilean government loans were in good demand, as were those of Rio Grande do Sul and Rio de Janeiro.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL was easier today after declining 6 points to 10 points on the more active positions under further foreign and eastern liquidation. There was partial recovery on later trade buying and covering. Final prices were 1 point to 6 points net lower, except October which was 2 points higher. Sales 232 contracts. Bleachable spot, nominal.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Standard Oil of Kentucky.

Investors' Guide: Would you be kind enough to send me some information regarding Standard Oil of Kentucky stock?—T. C.

Answer: Standard Oil company of Kentucky is principally a distributor of petroleum products. Its refinery operations were discontinued several years ago. Oil and gas are produced on a limited basis. More than 1,500 bulk and service stations are operated in Kentucky, Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, and Florida. The company now has a plan for leasing its service stations.

Net income in 1936 is reported to have been the best in six years, though official figures have not been released. Net income after all charges except income taxes was equal to 88 cents a share in the first seven months of the year, compared with 46 cents in the corresponding 1935 period.

For all of 1935 net income was $2,198,000, or 84 cents a share, compared with $2,599,000, or $1 a share, in 1934; $2,458,000, or 94 cents, in 1933; $2,594,000, or $1, in 1932, and $3,332,000, or $1.28, in 1931. Record net income was $7,310,000 in 1926. The figure for 1929 was $6,653,000.

Dividends paid exceeded net income in four of the five years through 1935, but financial position continues to be strong. Current assets were $18,972,000 against current liabilities of $4,290,000 at the end of 1935.

Regular dividends of 25 cents quarterly are paid. Including extras, dividends amounted to $1.35 in 1936, $1.25 in 1935, $1.50 in 1934, $1 in 1933, and $1.30 in 1932.

Sole capitalization consists of 2,604,801 shares of $10 par common stock. There is no funded debt.

The stock is rather high grade.

Republic Steel Bonds.

Investors' Guide: Kindly offer a suggestion as to why Republic Steel 4½ per cent bonds due in 1956 are quoted at 106 and the 4½s of 1956 and 1961 are around 99 to 100.—F. F. B.

Answer: The price of the 4½s of 1950 is not controled by ordinary bond considerations — interest rate and soundness—as are the 4½s of 1956 and 1961. The 4½s of 1950 are influenced by the price of the common stock because they are convertible into stock at the rate of 45 shares for each $1,000 bond on or before Sept. 1, 1937. With the stock at $37, a $1,000 bond is convertible into $1,665 worth of stock. The number of shares into which each $1,000 bond is convertible drops to 40 in the next two years, to 35 in the next succeeding three years, to 30 in the next three years, and to 25 after Sept. 1, 1945.

UNITED STAT

COTTON CLOSES .05 CENT LOWER TO .01 CENT HIGHER

Trading in cotton futures again was small yesterday. Fears of heavy deliveries on March contracts early next week had some effect on sentiment. Trade estimates indicated 20,000 to 25,000 bales of spot cotton might be delivered on March contracts next Tuesday. Closing trades on futures were .05 cent lower to .01 cent a pound higher.

Mill takings of American cotton this week are estimated at 344,000 bales, compared with 237,000 last week and 289,000 a year ago. Spot cotton closed unchanged to .05 cent lower, with New Orleans, 12.80 cents; New York, 12.95 cents, and Houston and Galveston at 12.55 cents a pound. Prices follow:

NOTICE TO BIDDERS.

Sealed proposals for supplying and installing new furniture, furnishings and elevator for the new Terre Haute City Hall will be received at the office of the Board of Public Works and Safety at Terre Haute, Ind., by the Board of Public Works and Safety of Terre Haute, Ind., at 2:30 o'clock P.M., Eastern Standard Time, March 2, 1937, and then will be publicly opened and read. The work to be done as per plans and specifications prepared by Miller & Yeager, Architects, Terre Haute, Ind., consisting of the following:

Proposals shall be made separately on the various items, as follows:

I. Wood Furniture—
[1-a] Chairs, davenport and costumers.
[1-b] All other items in wood as shown and as specified in Art. II.

II. Steel Furniture—
[1-a] Items S-1 to S-5 inc., and S-8 in green finish.
[2-a] Items S-1 to S-5 inc., and S-8, walnut finish.
[2-b] All other office type furniture, walnut finish.

III. Venetian Blinds.
IV. Table, Desk and Floor Lamps.
V. Carpets.
VI. Typewriters.
VII. Adding and Calculating Machines.
VIII. Automatic Duplicator.
IX. Radiator Covers.
X. Cuspidors.
XI. Light Fixtures [except table, desk and floor lamps].
XII. Electric Fans.
XIII. Electric Clocks.
XIV. Alternate on Woods Items S-1 to S-5, inc., and S-8 in place of steel.
XV. Elevator and Equipment.

Proposals shall be properly and completely executed on proposal forms furnished by the architects in accordance with Form 95 with non-collusion affidavit required by statutes of Indiana and must be accompanied by Questionnaire Form 96-A of State Board of Accounts, for any bid of $5,000.00 or more.

Each proposal shall be accompanied by acceptable certified check made payable to the City of Terre Haute, Indiana, or acceptable bidder's bond for an amount of not less than 5% of total bid price.

Contractor or supplier will be required to furnish acceptable surety bond in amount of 100%.

Work shall be paid for from funds derived from sale of bonds and award shall be conditioned on funds being available for such furniture, furnishings and elevator and the Board of Public Works and Safety may hold proposals for sixty days.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of 30 days after date set for opening of bids.

The Board of Public Works and Safety reserves the right to reject any and all bids. Instructions to bidders, plans, specifications, etc., are on file at the office of the Board of Public Works and Safety, State Board of Accounts, Indianapolis, or may be obtained from Miller & Yeager, architects, Terre Haute, Ind., upon receipt of a certified check in the amount of $25.00 which will be returned to bidder upon return of the plans and specifications less the cost of the blue prints.

Request for Troops to Remove Sitdown Strikers Expected as Guard About Factory Is Increased After Battle

Wisconsin Skater Rivals Sonja

Bess Ehrhardt, who is from Superior, Wis., and relatively unknown, is competing with Sonja Henie, three times Olympic figure skating champion and recognized as the world's best, before throngs attending carnival at the Stadium. Miss Ehrhardt was brought back for ten encores last night to three for her rival. (Story on page 19.)

The new star in the figure skating firmament keeps in touch with the home folk in Superior by correspondence while keeping an eye on the Olympic marvel she is rivaling. She said she expects to be as big a headliner as the Scandinavian girl in two years.

The Superior skater in an informal moment as she sips a cup of coffee in a loop restaurant. For five shows in four days she receives $1,000, while Miss Henie will be paid $32,400. She expressed a hope that she and her associates might appear in a movie.

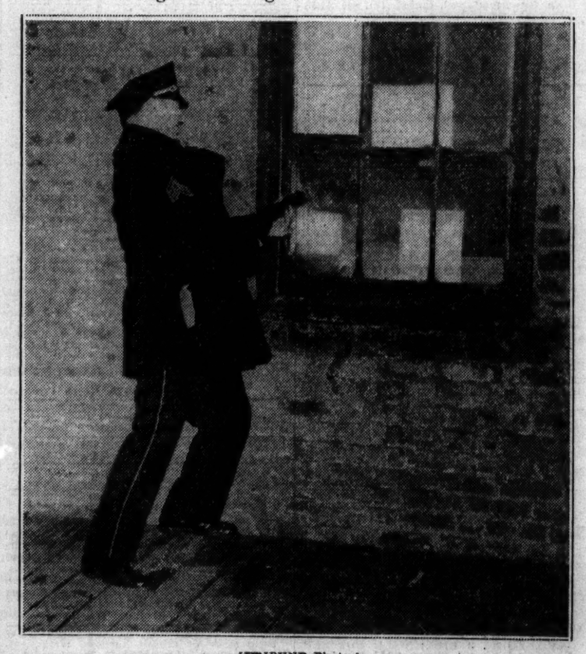
BATTERING AT FACTORY DOOR—Here is the start of Fansteel battle. The deputies tried to break in door, but they never gained entrance to the plant held by strikers. All the battling was through windows.



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

HOW THE BATTLE WAS WAGED—No firearms were used in attempt to wrest factory from strikers, but plenty of tear gas was loosed. This policeman acting as special deputy sherif is firing his gas gun into a window.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

ASSEMBLING THE ATTACK ARMY—Swearing in special deputies in North Chicago before assault on Fansteel plant. A force of 125 took part on the side of the law, but the result was a draw.

THE PLANT WHICH IS HELD—One of the four main buildings of the Fansteel company in North Chicago. Only two of the structures are held by strikers, but all production work has stopped.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

WHAT STRIKERS THREW AT DEPUTIES— A collection of small wheels, pipes and other articles which came sailing out of windows of Fansteel plant at deputies when they tried to carry out the orders of the court.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

THRONGS HECKLE SPECIAL DEPUTIES—Crowd pressing about the Fansteel plant in expectation of possible further violence. Spectators grabbed badges of three officers. The guard was increased last night to 150.

Picture Story of Fire Tragedy

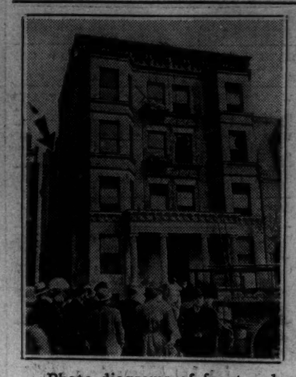

Photo diagrams of front and rear of apartment building at 4347-49 Oakenwald avenue, where Mrs. Edna Short and daughter, Mary, perished in flames. On back view arrow points to flat of victims and firemen are shown carrying trapped residents to safety. There are no stairs in rear of building. On front view the arrow also indicates the Short home. [TRIBUNE Photos.] (Story on page 5.)

The victims of fire tragedy, Mrs. Short and baby girl, age 2. They were trapped in fourth floor apartment by the rapidly spreading flame.
